VICTIMS OF THE FLOODS

Daylight Finds Some of Them Clinging to the Trees.

A SCENE OF DEVASTATION

Many Are Supposed to Have Been Washed Away.

WITH THE FIRST RAY OF LIGHT THE WORK OF RELIEF BEGINS—EVERY HOUSE, DRIFT PILE AND TREE EXAMINED IN SEARCH OF THE DEAD—FIVE HUNDRED HOMES SWEEP AWAY, 150 HOMES WRECKED AND 1,000 PEOPLE HOMELESS—THE DAMAGE TO PROPERTY IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF $100,000.

Guthrie, O. T., April 29.—In the flood-stricken valley of the Cottonwood river today heroic efforts have been made towards the rescue of those unfortunate whose lives were still endangered and for the relief of the hundreds of destitute and hungry. Tonight it seems a certainty that the loss of life in yesterday's deluge will not exceed twenty.

All day persons, supposed yesterday to have been drowned, have been found clinging to bushes or drifted down the stream, on the west bluffs, or scattered in farm houses for miles.

During the great part of yesterday the torrent cut off communication with the submerged district and in the excitement the death list was swelled to hundreds.

Daylight found dozens of persons still clinging to trees, overturned houses or timbers in perilous positions. For miles along the scene of devastation, 1500 people homeless, half ill from exposure and hunger, passed a miserable night, and morning found most of them too weak to help themselves or give assistance to others.

The river fell rapidly during the night and while it is still bank full the water has receded from most of the inundated district. There is a confused mass of debris, overturned and demolished houses scattered over the valley where last night was a sea of water. The banks are littered with the carcasses of farm animals. Whole blocks, whose steel a home in nearly every lot, were stripped, and huge trees torn up by the roots, were scattered everywhere.

With the first ray of daylight the work of rescue and relief was begun with a will and kept up with tireless energy. During last night men had been busy with the work of clearing up, constructing boats, and dawn today witnessed a dozen craft steering out from all directions to the rescue of the unfortunates. The work of the raftsmen proved more effective, and one by one persons were transported from their perilous positions to places of safety. Every house, drift pile and tree was closely examined in search of the dead. The family of Wesley McGill, reported yesterday as drowned, was found safe. The only bodies found during the day were those of James Ruffin, and five children, all lodged in a pile of driftwood. These, with George Owen drowned while rescuing others, Frank Meyers, Mrs. Jane Watt, Mrs. Francis Moore, Mrs. Drummond, Mrs. Dennis and child and Mrs. Watson are the only identified dead, though many are still missing.

SYSTEMATIC RELIEF. During the day systematic relief was perfected and carried on. Forries piled across the river carrying provisions and clothing and returning with injured. Such were carefully cared for in private homes in Guthrie. By night fall ample arrangements had been made for the immediate care of the homeless and there was an assurance of no further suffering, at least for the time being. Five hundred homes were swept away; 150 houses were wrecked, and twenty persons were drowned, leaving 1,000 people homeless and half as many destitute. The work of supplying shelter and food for all these was by no means a small undertaking. But the Guthrieites were equal to the task, and tonight thousands of dollars have been subscribed to aid the afflicted.

The damage along the Cimarron river east is very extensive and hundreds of farms have been devastated along Deep Fork in Lincoln county. Gangs of men worked all day rebuilding houses along the stream. The damage to property will be in the neighborhood of $100,000, while that sustained in crops may equal or perhaps double that amount.

The receding flood has left an immense pile of wreckage at the railroad bridge, six miles below the city. Search for the dead has begun at that point this evening and when darkness put a stop to the work the bodies of a white man and a colored baby had been recovered. It is claimed that several other bodies have been sighted in the debris there.

An attempt was made to poll the residents of West Guthrie this afternoon, but the count taken is not considered accurate. It shows 82 persons missing, most of them negroes.

Death of George W. Biddle. Philadelphia, April 29.—George W. Biddle, who, until his retirement, three years ago, was one of the leading members of the bar, died today. He was 72. His death was due to general debility.
