IS IT A GENUINE SUICIDE?

Or Is This Man's Disappearance Only a Big Hoax?

Pittston, May 2.—About a month ago, according to the Gazette, J. E. Cope, an employe on the Wilkes-Barre and Eastern railroad, became a member of the Brotherhood of Railway and Shipbuilding, and was placed upon transfer from Middletown, N. Y. Conductor Mathewson, of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western road, who is secretary of the Pittston division, was surprised the other day to receive three copies of a letter, which was signed by J. E. Cope, and which was addressed to Clark's Green, April 24, in which she applied for assistance and enclosed the following copy of a letter sent her by her husband, dated April 20:

"Dear Wife: I will bid you goodbye. When this reaches you I will be no more and I will never be found. My dues was paid up to April 20, 1897. Apply for policy. You will find it in trunk. Write to mother. I can't. Good-bye till we meet in heaven."

Mrs. Cope advised the members of the Pittston division that she was left with three little children, is soon to become a mother, and has no means of support. The policy to which reference is made in the above letter provides for $1,000 benefits upon the death of the member, but there being no positive evidence as yet of Cope having committed suicide, his wife can draw nothing from the Order of Railway Conductors upon the certificate.

Cope was engaged in his duties as a member of the division, and his family resided for a time at Yatesville, and recently at Sebastopol. The family resided at the latter place until one day early last week, when Cope suddenly and mysteriously left home.

Mrs. Cope received the letter mentioned above. She informed her parents of her trouble, and last Tuesday her father came from Clark's Green and took his daughter and the children to his home, the home in Sebastopol being broken up. The relatives of the member, but there being no positive evidence as yet of Cope having committed suicide, his wife can draw nothing from the Order of Railway Conductors upon the certificate.

The Woodward Mine.

It is Settling Again and the Danger is Threatening.

Wilkes-Barre, May 2.—The threatened cave which involved the Woodward colliery of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company several weeks ago and from which the mine is still endangered, has become very alarming.

The watchman who is employed inside and whose duty it is to warn the men who are at work engaging and cribbing the affected portions reported to the boss of the gang on Friday night that the noise made by the crushing pillars was becoming louder and louder each minute and that it was an ominous sign.

The gang of forty men were hastily notified to clear out, which they did in short order. The few mules which were inside to haul the heavy timbers about, were also taken outside. The mine is still regarded as unsafe.

FOREST CITY.

A 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Decker, Jr., died on Friday morning. The remains were taken to Moosic for interment on Saturday.

Lafayette Decker, Jr., of Avoca, who for years resided in Forest City, was in town Friday and Saturday called here by the death of his grandchild.

Rev. H. H. Dresser, of Duluth, Minn., is lying dangerously ill with typhoid fever at his home in that place.

A letter received here by a relative states that his condition is such that his life is despaired of. Mr. Dresser is well known in the Wyoming conference, having served on many charges here, among others being Green Ridge, Pittston, Athens and Montross.

The electric light company has discarded its alternating arc lamps and has substituted the regular direct current arcs. The improvement is very noticeable.

It is reported that the Hillside Coal and Iron company's mines will soon be worked on three-quarter time.

On May 12 the pupils of the Forest City graded school will give an entertainment in Davis' opera house.

A carefully prepared and interesting program of plays will be given, the proceeds will go toward enlarging the school library.

W. B. Searles, of Carbondale, was the guest of relatives here on Friday and Saturday.

TROUBLES OF CRETANS.

Famous in Greek Mythology as the Home of the Minotaur—Once a Country of Small Republics, Afterwards the Prey of the Romans, the Saracens and the Turks Respectively—A Century of Insurrection.

From the Philadelphia Times.

The turbulent state of affairs in Crete recalls the fact that this island has been the scene of perpetual discord and strife from time immemorial.

To go back as far as one can, that is, to the legendary period of Greek mythology, it was first celebrated, under the rule of King Minos, as the home of Daedalus, who constructed among the tortuous and rocky inlets of its coast the famous labyrinth in which the Minotaur was concealed.

About 1,000 B. C. the Dorians established several small republics on the island modeled after the fashion of the Spartans. The Cretan archers were renowned at that time for their skill as archers and were in the highest repute in the world.

In 67 B. C. the population had greatly decreased and the island fell an easy prey to the Romans, who added it to their colonial possessions. Upon the collapse of the Roman empire the island was divided into three parts, one of which was the Byzantine empire, until A. D. 823, when it was taken by the Saracens, who held it until 961.

On the conquest of Constantinople by the Crusaders the island was allotted to Genoa. Genoa, of Montefiore, who sold it to the Venetians in 1204. In the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries it was subjected to a constant succession of assaults by the Genoese and Turks, but these attacks were successfully resisted until the close of the fifteenth century, when Candia, the capital, succumbed to the Turks after a protracted siege.

For the next hundred years the island was impoverished by oppression and devastated by repeated attempts at insurrection. In 1830 it was ceded to the viceroys of Egypt, but restored to the port again in 1841.

Insurrection against the Turkish rule broke out once more in 1858, but made slow headway until 1866, when the whole island was in a state of insurrection.

The population rose up in arms against the Mussulmans. Vigorous fighting took place in 1867 between the insurgents and the Turkish troops, under Omar Pasha, and the hostilities continued for three years, notwithstanding frequent efforts on the part of the British to bring about a settlement of the difficulties. Finally, in February, 1869, the insurgent leaders surrendered to the Turkish government, but the demands which they made for recognition for several years from insurrection for the establishment of banks to develop and foster agriculture and other measures of relief were granted.

Since then the island, though nominally a part of the empire, has had practically no connection with the Turkish provinces, which are again subdivided into twenty districts, each district sending four members to the general assembly elected by the people. The assembly meets forty days in each year and is presided over by a governor who is invariably a native or a Greek Christian. No tribute is paid to the Turkish government.

In the insurrection of 1866, the Greeks united by the ties of kinship and religion, strongly sympathizing with their Cretan brethren; the same feeling was strongly expressed today, and it is this determination to assist the islanders in their effort to shake off the suzerainty of Turkey that at the present moment is endangering the peace of Europe.

The island of Crete is 160 miles long and averages from 7 to 30 in width. In the center a chain of mountains some 8,000 feet in height runs the entire length, sending out spurs north and south. To the north the mountains terminate in rocky bluffs, which render the coast dangerous and inhospitable, but towards the north the spurs gradually slope to a low coast, forming several good harbors, of which the principal are Candia, Suda, Chania and Suda. There are no rivers worthy the name and but a small portion of the available land is cultivated, owing, it is said, largely to the laziness of the inhabitants.

SHK, however, of a good quality, and it is the home of the famous Kajibulbi, the favorite bird of the Turks.

Of these 280,000 inhabitants, almost all of whom are of Greek descent, about one-third are Mohammedans, and the other two-thirds, with the exception of 700 Jews, are Christians.

OUR FLOATED RIGHTS.

From the New York Sun.

The peremptory refusal of the Duke of Tetuan to consider further the demand made by the state department for compensation in the cases of August Bolton and Gustave Richefeu, naturalized American citizens, who were unjustly arrested and imprisoned in Spain, 1885, and not to be allowed. The correspondence which has passed between the state department and the Spanish government was recently brought to the attention of the senate and the whole matter in its hands.

Davis & Gordon, of this city, who represent August Bolton, declare that the case against them is deeply interested in the case, and they will urge upon the senators the necessity for passing legislation compelling the president to make an absolute demand upon Spain.

Bolton and Richefeu each ask for $10,000 damages for ill treatment, and for the loss of their property. The gang of forty men were hastily notified to clear out, which they did in short order. The few mules which were inside to haul the heavy timbers about, were also taken outside. The mine is still regarded as unsafe.

According to their memorials they were sailors, who having given up their business a time, had taken to fishing. They left Port-au-Prince, Hayti, on February 6, 1895, in a fifteen-foot open boat to fish for green turtles about Cape Hayti.

Three days out a gale struck them and tore their sail to shreds, and they made for the nearest land. They reached the coast of Hayti, in Bay in Hayti. There they were arrested, but having shown their papers from the American consul at Port-au-Prince they obtained

BEDRIDDEN.

FIFTEEN YEARS OF SUFFERING.

The Doctors Wanted Seven Hundred Dollars to Attempt the Case.

The following is a letter we received a short time ago from Mrs. M. C. Hinkley, 602 North Mississippi St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Gentlemen:—While suffering intensely from piles, I became interested in your advertisement in one of our daily papers and procured a package of your Pyramid Pile Cure from our druggist.

Contrary to my expectations, the relief was instantaneous. I used two boxes of the Pile Cure and one of the Pills and am convinced that they are the only cure for piles on the market.

I have never suffered from piles for fifteen years and have been confined to my bed about one-half of the time, expecting and wishing for death for the pain was so great. I went to the college here and the doctors said my case was a new one to them, the greatest pain having brought on a large rupture, which they wanted seven hundred dollars to cut out. I was very much afraid that death would result from the blood-poisoning which they said would result from the operation.

I feel that I can't praise the Pyramid Pile Cure and the Pyramid Pills too highly, as I am convinced that they saved my life. Before using your cure I weighed only ninety pounds and now I weigh one hundred and fifty and feel as well as I ever did in my life. You are in any manner you may see fit, as I want all sufferers from this terrible disease to know that there has at last been compounded a remedy that will cure piles. Mrs. M. C. Hinkley.

There is no need of the danger, pain and expense of a surgical operation for any form of piles. The Pyramid Pile Cure does the work without pain and is the safest and best. Remember also that the Pyramid Pills are a certain cure for constipation acting without gripping and restoring natural action.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is sold by druggists at 50 cents and $1.00, and the Pyramid Pills at 25 cents, or by mail from Pyramid Co., Albion, Mich.

their liberty. After refitting their boat they proceeded on their fishing voyage.

On February 12, and after getting provisions proceeded the next day for Cape Hayti. The wind and currents were against them, and so strong that they were carried to sea, and for three days they drifted. They had no food after the first day, they became weak, and little water. Under these circumstances they made for the nearest land, and arrived at Alligator Bay, Cuba, on February 16.

The port director of the port directed them to the United States consul at Guantanamo, where they got some money and were advised to go to Santiago de Cuba to get their boat and to return to the United States consul. On February 23 and asked the captain of the port to direct them to the United States consul. Instead he took them to prison, after searching their boat and baggage.

Dr. Fulaker E. Hunt, the United States consul, had them released that night and took them home to supper, but after supper they were arrested again and thrown into the jail. They were examined before a military court and told that they would have to remain in jail until March 1. They declare that they could not so strong to the United States consul. They were then sent back to prison and confined in separate rooms.

They were kept in the jail for ten days, and were taken to the prison hospital, then, while barely able to walk, he was marched back to the jail, where he was kept for two days and under the guard of two soldiers with drawn swords. On April 25 the two men were released on parole, and on May 2 they returned to their home in Cuba.

Some evil genius and a misguided desire to be agreeable led me into relating what I considered an intensely funny anecdote to a man I know the other day, says a writer in the Washington Post. He is quoted in dilemma. His silence, indeed, lasted so much longer than the story did that I ventured to repeat the point—you know there are men you have to do that way with. Still he did not smile. So I said:

"Why don't you laugh?"

"I am afraid, sir, that you don't know what humor is."

"Perhaps, I don't," I admitted. "What is it?"

And then he said, and claimed to be quoting from a German scientist, "Humor, being glad to say, I have forgotten. Humor consists of the revelation or the perception of the surprising or the incongruous in cases or under circumstances when the mind perceives a parallel or congruity."

That is really what he said.
