Sunflower Made to Smell as Does the Rose, and Others Not to Smell at All. It is a fad in Paris to perfume flow ers artificially. Experiment has proved that it is possible not only to take away the natural odor of a flower, but also to make it yield a perfume derived from some other vegetable product Some violets, for example, are perfec in form and coloring, but without fragrance, while others, very insignifi cant to look at, emit a delicious fragrance. The transfer of the odor from one species to the other has been ac complished. Those who have been most successful in this branch of horticulture refuse to tell their secret. It is said that the African marigold has been robbed of its disagreeable odor and endowed with a perfume that makes it much sought. The fad has been carried to the extreme of giving to the sunflower the odor of the ros and to the chrysanthemum that of the violet.
