OFFICIAL CLAIM OF THE CONTESTANTS

Mr. O'Malley, of Warren & Knapp, Says 338 Votes Have Been Disqualified. NO STONE HAS BEEN LEFT TURNED Every Available Bit of Evidence That Would Tend to Knock Out a Vote Is Brought Out at the Hearing—Several Women Called to the Stand Saturday—Clerk of the Courts of Luzerne County Nullifies Six Votes in a Hunch.

The petitioners closed their side of the case in the Dunmore contest Saturday, and after summing up the work, Mr. O'Malley, of Warren & Knapp, attorney for the contestants, made the claim that 338 Democratic votes had been disqualified.

The first witness called Saturday morning was George W. Thomas, clerk of the courts of Luzerne county, who proved by the records that Patrick McHale, Martin Walsh, Thomas Gill, Anthony Healey, James P. McAndrew and Patrick Lynch were mistaken when they testified on former hearings that they had been naturalized in Wilkes-Barre.

Mrs. Mary Fitzpatrick, mother of Gus Fitzpatrick, of the First district, of the Third ward, testifies that her son will not be 21 years of age until next July, which contradicts his claim that he was of age at the February election.

Mrs. Emma D. Potter and Mrs. Margaret Angwin, who were called to testify to the age of James McGill, fixed the date of his birth as March, 1874. HORAN WAS UNDER AGE.

Three witnesses were called to show that Patrick Horan was under age when he voted in February. Detective T. E. Reynolds swore that Horan's mother told him her son was born January 2, 1875.

Mr. O'Malley closed the contestants case by offering evidence to original registry lists, returns of all election districts, tally sheets on all ballots cast at the election in question.

Adjournment was made until Thursday morning, May 20, at 9 o'clock, when the respondents will begin the taking of testimony.

FACTORY GIRL'S PERIL.

Curf of Her Hair Caught in Machinery at the Saquoit Silk Mill—She Was Badly Injured.

Kate Winters, a 15-year-old girl, whose home is on Main street, Taylor, narrowly escaped a terrible death Saturday morning at the Saquoit silk mill, where she is employed.

Her screams attracted the attention of others and she was pulled from the machinery. She was taken to the home of her father, David Winters, of Taylor, where physicians are in attendance upon her.

The crushed fingers were amputated yesterday. Owing to the terrible shock Miss Winters is in a precarious condition and fears for her complete recovery are entertained.

Y. M. I. WILL CELEBRATE. Birthday of Charles Carroll to Be Fittingly Commemorated. Delegates from the various councils of the Young Men's Institute of Lackawanna and Luzerne counties met at the rooms of the Pittston council in the Durkin block on South Main street.

Attorney C. P. O'Malley took the stand and swore that he received a letter from Tax Collector Kennedy, of Olyphant, branding as erroneous the statement of Owen Sweeney that he had paid state and county taxes to him in 1895 or 1896.

This was the last evidence taken. O'Malley closed the contestants case by offering evidence to original registry lists, returns of all election districts, tally sheets on all ballots cast at the election in question.

Adjournment was made until Thursday morning, May 20, at 9 o'clock, when the respondents will begin the taking of testimony.

THEY MUST PASS AN EXAMINATION

New Law Affecting Minors Employed in Factories and Stores. WHAT INSPECTOR BISHOP SAYS

Boys and Girls Under Sixteen Years of Age, Who Cannot Read and Write Will Not Be Allowed to Continue in Their Employment—Test of Illiteracy to Be Made by the Deputy Inspector—It Is Not Thought This Locality Will Be Affected Very Much.

By the provisions of an amendment to the act regulating the employment of minors in factories, stores and the like, it will be unlawful, after Jan. 1, next, to employ children under sixteen years of age who can not read and write.

The act was passed by the legislature last week and is now being printed for distribution, among the deputy factory inspectors, to be distributed by them among the employes.

Just what effect the law will have hereabouts is hard to estimate. Deputy Inspector Earl W. Bishop, in speaking of the matter to a Tribune reporter yesterday gave it as his opinion that not many will be affected by the act in his district.

The purpose of the act, as is apparent, is to supplement the workings of the law which it amends. Now, in addition to preventing the employment of child labor, the law gives assurance that children will not grow up in ignorance through the thoughtlessness or negligence of parents.

THIRTEENTH HOME AGAIN.

Local Members of the National Guard Returned This Morning from the City of Brotherly Love.

The Thirteenth regiment after six hours of riding returned home at 9 o'clock this morning from Philadelphia. With Bauer's band playing the Second battalion, Colonel H. A. Courten, commanding, marched from the Delaware and Hudson station up Lackawanna avenue to the camp, where the soldiers boys in the tramp, tramp and just after the close of the Sabbath was dreadfully suggestive of war times.

The Second battalion dispersed at the army. Company E, of Honesdale, was carried on the same train as far as Carbondale, where they spent the night and will start for home this morning. Company H, of the North End, left the train at the Carbon street crossing and the members were taken to the corners on a special street car that was in waiting.

The trip was a delightful one and far exceeded in pleasure the New York drudgery. While in the City of Brotherly Love, as the boys found it to be, the Thirteenth, with the Eighth regiment, were entertained at the First regiment armory. The members of this regiment spared no expense or trouble in making the visitors comfortable.

During the visit the officers of the Thirteenth were royally entertained at the Aberdeen by the officers of the First. Yesterday the officers were given an informal reception at the rooms of the Philadelphia Yacht club. The soldiers were looked after by appointed members of the First regiment.

The trip to and from Scranton was made with only one noteworthy incident. Private Potter was taken sick from cramps on the way home and it was several hours before the hospital corps could alleviate his sufferings. In his agony Potter broke off one of his molar teeth. It is even possible that the soldier who lost the tooth was the one who followed the company during the parade Saturday. The canine refuses to associate with any other than Company B.
