FUNERAL OF MRS. PRICE.

Interment was made in Washburn Street Cemetery.

Mrs. Margaret Price, of 1722 Jackson street, was buried in Washburn street cemetery yesterday afternoon. Her funeral services were held at the late residence and were attended by a large concourse of friends who rendered this last testimony of friendship for the dead. Rev. Thomas Bell, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church, preached an eloquent sermon. He cited the earnest Christian character of the deceased, her kindly disposition, and the soul inspiring way she had lived.

Beautiful selections were rendered by a quartette from the Plymouth church choir. The floral tributes were profuse and exquisite. Those who acted as pall-bearers were Ephraim Thomas, Fred Cole, Chris Robertson, David J. Jones, John D. Jones, D. L. Kearns, of the Electric City Commandery 177, Knights of Malta, Thomas J. Williams, Henry Nichols, J. H. Davis, Hugh Williams, Daniel Evans, William G. Phillips, of the Knights of Lodge 37, Loyal Knights of America.

J. H. Hattenberg gave an exceedingly interesting sketch of President Madison and C. H. Helms sang, "Madison's Cabinet" was treated by Turvy Breeze and T. A. Patton entertained with a humorous reading. J. H. Malott played a guitar and Arch Mears touched upon the important events occurring throughout Madison's term of office. After a vocal solo by D. L. Morgan, Prof. D. A. Stone and C. H. Hall treated upon English literature up to the time of Chaucer and Spenser. After a recitation by W. T. Bural the evening's literary pleasure came to an end with a selection by the orchestra.

FIRE ON WASHBURN STREET.

An alarm of fire was sent in from box No. 35 yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, which was responded to by the Columbia and Franklin companies. No stream was used, it requiring but a few pails of water to put the blaze out. The fire occurred in the kitchen of the house at the corner of Washburn and Tenth streets. Some paper which had been pinned along the wall-board had ignited and communicated the blaze to some clothes hanging in the rear hallway. The paper was scorched, carpet burned, some lamps setting near by were exploded by the heat, and several articles of clothing badly burned. Mrs. McHale, who resides in the house, had her hands, arms, neck and face severely burned, in attempting to throw the burning clothes out. Mrs. Wallace, who resides next door, was so badly shocked by the excitement as to be in a very dangerous condition, she being in a very weak state from a recent illness. Chief Hickey also had

For That Reason and Other Reasons He Refused to Pay.

Judge Gunster yesterday made absolute the rule for an alternative mandamus compelling John Battle, treasurer of the Quins and Tools, to pay for that reason and other reasons he refused to pay.

The work of tearing down the old vault of the Scranton Savings bank was completed Saturday after a week's hard labor. It took four men four days to simply remove the concrete cap and this was only effected by chipping it away piece by piece with sledges and cold chisels. The massive granite stones which formed the vault proper were removed by working them loose with wedges and drills and pulling them from their foundations with a steam derrick.

The new vault is to be erected in the opposite rear corner of the building. It will be more modern in construction than the old one, that is steel will support the stone and concrete in a great measure, but it will not be any stronger or more fire-proof for it is quite impossible to imagine any way of improving on the old strong box in this respect.

The new vault will be used solely for books and the like. The money will be kept in an eleven-hour Mosler-Corless safe, which will be located in the center of the new building on a foundation of brick and concrete, extending all the way from the cellar.

THE SUPERVISORS COMPLAINED LAST WEEK.

The supervisors complained last week, through their attorneys, Watson & Zimmerman, that Battle, although having sufficient money on hand, refused to pay them their salaries. Yesterday Battle made answer through Attorney Squier, of Carbondale, alleging that the orders were irregularly drawn, inasmuch as the supervisors have no right to draw their own orders but should wait till the auditors decide how much they had earned. He also alleged that the supervisors' terms of office began March 1, 1897, and that they worked at private business until the 28th of that month, the weather was such during the month of March that no work could be done on the roads.

Judge Gunster held that the answer was insufficient and made the rule for a mandamus compelling Battle to pay on this rule will be had Monday, March 21.

STATUE OF LINCOLN.

That Is the End the Lincoln Memorial Association Has in View.

The Lincoln Memorial association will have T. Thomas Fortune, editor of the New York Age, to lecture at Penn Avenue Baptist church, May 21, on Abraham Lincoln, at which time prominent clergymen of this city will speak. The object of the association is to erect a monument in honor of the martyred president.

Alamantia Porter, G. W. Brown, Lewis E. Morton, H. H. Hall and Samuel J. Porter are the promoters of the project, and it is safe to say that not only will a charter be granted for the association but a suitable monument will attest for all time the estimate of Lincoln in this community.

TEST OF NEW TROLLEY DEVICE.

One Made Saturday Was Not Highly Satisfactory.

The new patent trolley, mention of which was made in Thursday's Tribune, was experimented with Saturday afternoon on a Scranton Railway company car.

The new trolley was made by the Steel Motor company with works at Johnstown, this state, and the one used Saturday was the first manufactured. It is a curious appearing object when placed on a car. Its size is three or four times larger than the simple trolley now in use and the very intricacy of the thing is an objection. Where in the old style but one foot in diameter grooved wheel about a foot in diameter to catch the wire and to slide along the vertical axle according to the variations of the wire.

When the trolley flies off the vertical bar catches the wire, preventing the trolley from swinging upright. By the use of two ropes the small wheel is then moved along the axle until it again catches the wire. The trial yesterday was witnessed by Frank Fox, superintendent of the railway company, and also by the city engineer, who was not entirely satisfied. From the street car barn to Penn avenue the trolley jumped off three times and the man with the two ropes was kept busy moving the little wheel. The effort to get a new kind of trolley is with the idea of evading the costly use of the common trolley pole, which is securely patented by the General Electric and Westinghouse companies.
