Some Faults in Our Primary Education. From the Sun.

Dr. J. M. Rice, who for many years has devoted himself to the study of American educational problems, has contributed to a recent number of the Forum an article on the system of instruction followed in most of our primary schools.

It is too much time expended in the primary schools on the three R's? The proportion of school time at present given to these fundamental studies is, it seems, about 70 per cent. Dr. Rice thinks it would be possible to reduce this time by at least one-half.

ject, then it could not be regarded as essential, but what is behind the domain of mental gymnastics.

As in language, so in arithmetic, the question of mental gymnastics plays a conspicuous part. Facility in ciphering, up to a certain point, is demanded by every individual.

ated for each branch, and the labor so divided that proper attention could be paid to details, enough might be accomplished in a year to clear the course of elementary studies of all matters which are retained simply by tradition.

Was Twice Insulted.

When General Kiddoo was in Tennessee, a prisoner of war in 1863, a Confederate major of boyish appearance took a fancy to the friendly way offered to buy them for twice what they had cost him.

"Well, if you won't sell 'em I'll have to take 'em," said the boy. "I thought you were a gentleman, and wanted to treat you right. Take 'em over, sir! One-two?"

The major's revolver was within three feet of Kiddoo's face, and the prisoner was, of course, unarmed. "You've got the drop," he said, and off came the boots.

"Now, you get down and disken your 'nits" ordered the boy, and at the pistol's point Kiddoo, who was a full-fledged colonel at the time, obeyed.—New York Press.
