PRESENT AND FUTURE OF SOUTH AFRICA

Rev. James Hughes Gives His Opinion with Reference to Them.

LIVED AT KIMBERLY FOR YEARS

Is Well Acquainted with Cecil Rhodes and President Paul Krueger of the Transvaal Republic--He Does Not Think South Africa Is a Good Place for a Young Man Without Means to Go to Just at This Time, but Believes It Has a Great Future.

There is at present visiting in this city a gentleman who has, during the ten years (1878 to 1887), been intimately connected with the momentous occurrences in South Africa. The gentleman is Rev. James Hughes, pastor of the Baptist church of Kimberly, South Africa. Rev. Mr. Hughes is the guest of his only brother, John R. Hughes, of South Rebecca avenue, and is accompanied on his visit here by his wife and child.

From his church in the instruction of the family physician. Rev. Mr. Hughes had already buried three children and had he not come away his wife and two other children, who were falling, would have succumbed. They were taken to friends in England, and then came to America for the first time to visit Mr. Hughes' brother, whom he has not seen for over thirty-three years. Since coming they have all improved in health rapidly, and are charmed with this country and our city.

With the object of procuring some facts first hand from one who had been so long in touch with South African life, and especially at the time when the famous "Jameson Raid" occurred, a Tribune reporter called upon Rev. Mr. Hughes and procured the following interesting story:

MR. HUGHES STORY.

Rev. James Hughes, a minister of the Baptist denomination, is a native of Wales having been born in Blaenavon. He entered the ministry when a young man, received his first call before his graduation from Pontypool Theological college. The call came from Lancashire, England, and immediately upon his graduation, he entered upon his charge, remaining there nearly twenty years.

While yet in charge at Lancashire, a call came from Port Elizabeth, South Africa for a Baptist minister. Upon application Rev. Mr. Hughes was strongly recommended to accept the invitation by the president of the Baptist union of England and Ireland. He went, and after three years of successful work at Port Elizabeth was sent by request of the leading men of the Baptist denomination of Cape Colony to Kimberly, the natural center of the diamond fields in point of population. The object was to establish a Baptist church in this place and so successful was the effort that in three years and a half, a spacious structure was opened for the worship of God. The cost exceeded $35,000 and the building had a seating capacity of nearly one thousand. The debt has been fully cleared, with the exception of a few debenture bonds, held by church members.

WHAT ARE PROMINENT.

The white population is composed of a great many diverse nationalities but the Welsh speaking part is very large. The great majority of the Welshmen there do very well and many attain prominence, as for instance, the mayor of East London is a Welshman. The mayor of Port Elizabeth, Kimberly, and Cape Town are all born "Cymros."

The manager and assistant manager of the government railways which cover quite a territory, are both Welshmen and the chief manager of the Beers Diamond mining company, the largest in South Africa, is a Welshman, but of American birth. The gentleman, Gardner F. Williams, is indeed a thorough American for all Kimberly knows when a national American holiday occurs by seeing the stars and stripes floating from Mr. Williams' residence. He is the lineal descendant of Robert Williams, only brother of Roger Williams, of Rhode Island fame.

Mr. G. F. Williams comes by his ability naturally through a long line of capable ancestry and today is recognized as one of the most competent managers in the diamond industry.

"What is your opinion of Cecil Rhodes?" was asked by the reporter. In response, Rev. Mr. Hughes said: "My opinion is that the consensus of opinion among the impartial thinking public is that Mr. Rhodes is one of the most capable men we have ever had in South Africa, and is one of the best qualified men to develop the resources of that country. We all condemn Jameson's raid, and consider that Mr. Rhodes in that case, committed a huge blunder for which the whole colony is sorry. Yet, while we admit that it was a great wrong, it was not a wrong unprovoked."

OPINION OF RHODES.

"As these questions are under the consideration of a parliamentary inquiry in Great Britain, I think it inconsiderate to say more in relation to this matter. As every man ought to have his due, however, allow me to say that Mr. Rhodes is the most liberal man south of the Tamesis in South Africa. He was the hardest working public man in the country. He is the strongest imperialist and is endowed with larger capabilities than nearly any other man in Cape Colony."

"I suppose, then, you are acquainted with Cecil Rhodes, or know something of his personal characteristics," was a query of the reporter.

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Williams, "my personal conviction is that President Paul Krueger, of the Transvaal Republic, is a man endowed with very large natural capabilities, and is educated to the extent of some of the present men of other countries, he would be a really conspicuous figure in contemporaneous public life. I believe him to be a good man in the true sense of the word, but somewhat misled in political matters by Hollanders, who are highly trained in state craft. I am persuaded that if President Krueger were left to act according to his own natural instincts and intelligence, the trouble in the Transvaal would never have occurred. Or, if anything had, by inadvertency, occurred, it would have been settled in the most amicable and satisfactory manner."

"What about other prominent men of the Cape Colony?" was further asked of Rev. Mr. Hughes.

MANY ABLE MEN.

"Well, in addition to those two previously spoken of, we have a liberal sprinkling of very intelligent public and professional men. The prime minister at present in Cape Colony is Sir Gordon Sprague, and he is a gentleman who stands high in the estimation of nearly every section of the country. He is the son of a Baptist minister and served, years ago, as parliament reporter in the house of commons for a leading London daily. Sir Gordon is surrounded in the Cape legislative assembly by a fair number of practical statesmen. Men of considerable erudition, energy and self-sacrifice."

"In the legal profession we have gentlemen who rank high in the opinion of even the great legal lights of England and we, in the Cape Colony, are proud of our judges and barristers. Commercial men are to be found in every great centre of industry of the country, who are distinguished for their business capacity, energy and success. Many of them have thus made their fortunes in South Africa."

"What are the general prospects of the country?" was the next query. "In answer to that question I would say that, judging from statements which I have received from reliable experts in different branches, my deliberate conclusion is that there is a very bright prospect before South Africa. The mineral resources of the country are both varied and rich. The agricultural capabilities of the country, especially fruit cultivation, warrant the conclusion that the country will continue to open up for many years to come wherein thousands of poor men will find remunerative employment."

LACK OF WATER.

"The great drawback to agricultural pursuits is want of water. The Cape Colony government has copied somewhat successfully with this difficulty by procuring a quantity of diamond drills and using them in locating water in every locality of the colony that was advisable. This was and is being done at the government's expense. In every case, water of a good quality has been found in depths at depths varying from a few feet to several yards."

"These testings unquestionably prove the existence of abundant water, but a short distance below the surface. Acting upon this proof, the members of the present parliament have decided to advocate a scheme of irrigation throughout the colony at the full or partial expense of the government."

"This will make, should it ever come to pass, no doubt it will, the best living in South Africa considerably cheaper than at present. The two great items of expense in living out there, are horse rent and fuel. The fuel obtainable is almost entirely wood. The climate, on the whole, is very charming and where there is sufficient water, vegetation, fruit and flowers are luxuriant."

"At present, however, I would certainly not recommend young men to go there unless they have employment to go to when they arrive. Because the labor market is glutted to a very large extent. In addition to that, war clouds are hovering over the country. Though I do not believe this present misunderstanding will end in a war, still it would be wise to allow the clouds to pass away and mutual confidence be realized between all the states, before men without capital at least, rush out there."

A GREAT OUTLET.

"I am fully persuaded that South Africa in a very, very short space of time will prove one of the grandest outlets for the congested population of the older countries. Also a country where labor will be adequately remunerated."

"And what bearing has the press upon the aspect of affairs in Cape Colony?" queried the reporter. "The press of South Africa in the Cape Colony is doing a great deal of good in the country and abroad, and is a great credit to the management of the press generally is very creditable and reliable."

"Of course the religious part of the community is well taken care of," was asked. "As far as Cape Colony is concerned, nearly every section of the church of God is found there in a flourishing condition. In the year of 1875 the Episcopal, or Church of England, was disestablished and since that time all churches enjoy the same legal rights and I am pleased to say that the whole of Cape Colony seems to be interlarded with religious organizations and Christian influences."

"How do the recently established Baptist missions prosper there?" It is indeed only of late years that the Baptist church in South Africa has been able to take up mission work among the natives. But since we commenced, a great deal of useful work has been accomplished. Four missions have been started. Two of them industrial missions, in which the native is taught to work and pray."

CONVERSANT WITH AFFAIRS.

Rev. Mr. Hughes seemed to be very conversant with the political as well as the moral side of "State" and country. Necessarily so as he was much in demand upon public occasions and being, as he was, in the direct current of business life and preaching to a congregation whose members were allied with all the public interest in many ways he is thus able to judge things in their true light.

He will remain here for some time and expects to deliver several lectures. He is a pleasant speaker and handles his subjects in a terse and interesting style. He and his wife are agreeably surprised with America and Americans.

THREE INJURED WORKMEN.

Received at the Moses Taylor Hospital Yesterday.

Three injured persons were received at the Moses Taylor hospital yesterday.

Eddie Davis, a helper employed in the Taylor mine of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company, in jumping off a trip of cars yesterday fell and fractured his right leg. He is 17 years of age and lives at Taylor.

A Poleander, employed at the South steel mill of the Lackawanna Iron and Coal company, was bruised about the chest and shoulders in an accident. Malakie was carrying a rail when he stumbled and fell, the rail striking his body.

A Poleander, whose name could not be learned, was injured yesterday morning by a fall of roof in the Pine Brook mine. His head and back are badly cut.

OBITUARY.

The Rev. Emus McLean, who died at the Moses Taylor hospital Friday evening, was a man of unusual intellectual and moral power and Christian spirit. He was a graduate of Hamilton college and Auburn Theological seminary, and took high rank in scholarship. He was for some years a foreign missionary in Chili, South America, with his brother, the Rev. Robert McLean. The fervid consecrated service of the "McLean Brothers," as foreign missionaries, had entered into the history of the Chilian mission. Owing to the failure of the health of his family, Mr. McLean returned to this country and devoted his life to home missions on the Pacific coast in Oregon. He was so self-sacrificing in his service that a simple reference to it by one of the home missionary secretaries at the general assembly stirred the great audience with sympathetic admiration. On the death of his wife to whom he was most tenderly attached, Mr. McLean returned east with his five children, with the hope of regaining his own greatly impaired health. The Presbyterian church in Elmhurst will never forget his able and spiritual ministry, nor the Presbyterian of Lackawanna his inspiring example and Christ-like spirit. But he never regained his health and for the past year and a half has been calmly waiting for the summons, cheered and comforted by the devotion of his children. His wife, who he buried in Oregon, v. a beloved sister of Mrs. William Hanley and Mrs. W. C. Woodward, of this city.

ALL DAY LONG ON THE WITNESS STAND

Defendant in the Von Storch Case Has a Hard Seige of It.

ARE NOT THROUGH WITH HIM YET

It is Likely That the Case Will Occupy the Greater Part of Next Week--Verdict in the Patch Case and the Case of Connolly Against Shannon--Court Crier Snyder Wins a Suit in Which He Was Plaintiff.

All day long, Curren Von Storch, the defendant in the Von Storch land suit, underwent a fire of questioning and cross-questioning from the ten lawyers engaged in the case, and at adjournment they were not yet through with him. Judge Jessup did the actual interrogating for the defense and Major Warren for the cross-examiners. It was a trying ordeal and when the day was over he gave unmistakable signs of fatigue.

Today at 11 o'clock the judge, jury, attorneys and interested parties will go to Providence to look over the ground in dispute. A special car will be engaged so that there will be no unnecessary delay. After the inspection necessary will be taken until 9:30 o'clock Monday morning. Judge Archibald agreeing to postpone the opening half an hour to accommodate one of the jurors, who lives over the mountain, and who wants to go home for Sunday. It looks very much now as if the case would occupy the greater part of next week.

The defendant's testimony yesterday was a virtually a repetition of the story told by Mr. Umsted in making the opening for the defense, which was printed in substance in Tuesday's issue.

THE CROSS-EXAMINATION.

In cross-examination the plaintiff's attorneys strove to bring out that William Von Storch had full control of the property in dispute ever since the time it is alleged he came into ownership, that he made the improvements thereon, received the rentals therefor, and that Curren Von Storch only occupied it through the graciousness of his uncle.

During the morning the witness was asked what his uncle, Godfrey, said when he heard that Abel Bennett, of Binghamton, had been put in control of the property. "My conscience won't allow me to repeat it," was the witness' laughter-producing answer.

The trial is attracting unusual attention among the members of the bar, there scarcely ever being a time when there are not at least a dozen lawyers talking in the proceedings, not counting the dozen or so connected with the case.

Before Judge Lynch yesterday morning, Court Crier J. B. Snyder prosecuted a libel suit against S. B. Mott for the recovery of a commission of $300, which he alleged was promised him for negotiating the sale of a couple of lots owned by the defendant's sister. Mr. Mott denied that "Uncle Jake" figured in the deal at all, but when John Bennett, the purchaser and a number of other witnesses gave evidence to the effect that as had, the jury concluded that he was entitled to the hundred. Taylor & Lewis represented the plaintiff, and John F. Scragg the defendant.

SHIPPER'S CLAIM.

A jury went out at 3 o'clock to pass upon Elijah Shiffer's claim for $1,000 damages, to which extent he alleges his property was injured by the grading of Tenth street. He avers that the cutting down of the street has left his property so high above grade that it will cost $800 or thereabouts to bring it down to where it will be conveniently approachable from the street. The city held that the property's value has been increased by reason of the grading. Mr. Burns appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. Torrey for the city.

The jury in the case of Owen Connolly against Thomas Shannon and defendant, a rule for a new trial was afterwards granted.

In the case of George C. Patch and Mary Patch, his wife, against the city of Scranton, the jury returned a verdict in favor of the defendant, as relates to the husband's suit, and for $417.66 in favor of Mrs. Patch. This is the second trial of the case. At the former trial it was non-suited.
