Senator Mills' Cuban Speech and a Romance of Our War. Senator Mills' speech on Cuba recently contained an illusion to a romance of our civil war, and the correscates the here and heroine of it. Mr Mills was describing the cruelty of the Spaniards and their habitual murder and violation of women. Then he drew this contrast: "Mr. President, while thinking of the slaughter of this girl, who attempted to save her father, there comes up in my mind the recollection of an incident that occurred in Alabama during our civil war. A colonel of an Ohio regiment was in command of a district in North Alabama, within whose lines the family of a confederate officer resided. Sometimes the bold rebel would slip through the lines undiscovered, and visit his family. On one occasion he was discovered by someone more devoted to the union than to his personal welfare. "Information was given to the colonel emmanding the district, who took a half dozen of his men and under cover of night went to the house to capture his confederate foeman. Arriving at the house he rushed in the door, pistol in hand, and found the Confederate soldier in the midst of his family, his pistol and belt lying upon the bureau and within reach of his daughter, a beautiful girl of 18 summers. In an instant she grasped her father's pistol to shoot in defense of her father's per-The colonel sprang forward son. seized the pistol in her hand to disarm her. Not being a Spaniard, it never entered his mind to shoot her. In the shot through the hand, but her father succeeded in making his escape, "The gallant officer returned in a few days to see about the wounded hand. He came again to express his profound regrets for that wound, and again and again to hope for its early recovery. He did not stop coming till he carried that hand off with him, clasped in his. It is his hand now, and has been for 30 years. Soon after the senator concluded his speech, says the correspondent, I met him and inquired regarding the identity of the Ohio colonel and the fair Alabama confederate. He told me he referred to an incident in the lives of Colonel S. W. Fordyce and his accom plished wife. Colonel Fordyce is the president of the St. Louis Southwestern
