AT TWO SCHOOLS

Annual Commencement of the School f of the Lackawanna.

THOSE WHO OBTAINED HONORS

Principal Walter H. Buell Made Some Announcements, in Which He Referred to the Distinctions Won by Pupils of the School in Colleges and Universities -- Class of '97 of the High School Conducts a Very Interesting Entertainment.

Yesterday was commencement day at the School of the Lackawanna. The class of '97 with the help of the students had transformed the interior of the school buildings so that they were hardly recognizable. Red and white hardly recognizable. Red and white bunting, flowers and ferns, the flags of the many colleges to which its pupils go, all played their part, under the guidance of the graduating class, in producing the change.

The school still observes its old cusom, in spite of growth, celebrating this day in the familiar school rooms. Never did the rooms look prettier than yesterday, and their capacity was tested to the utmost by the friends of the class and returning graduates,

The entire day was devoted to the exercises. In the morning the exercises of the preparatory department were held. They were admirably adapted to illustrate the growing work of the school for young children, Class exercises, recitations and songs, gymnastic exercises, a spelling match and a May pole on the lawn formed a and interesting programme which greatly pleased the parents and friends present, and reflected great redit upon Miss Mac Martin and Miss Close, who have charge of the room and conducted the exercises,

The work of the children in German elicited special commendation from those present, and the German dialogue given by the children was admirably rendered.

PRIZES AWARDED.

At the close of the exercises the following prizes were presented: Honor prize, Miss Dorothy Bessell, with honrable mention of James A. Linen, jr. German prize, Fred Terffe, with honor able mention of Gertrude Beckwith first prize in spelling, Lawrence Connell; second prize, Carlton Connell.

The exercises in the higher departnent began at 3 o'clock. Dr. Cann presided and the orchestra of the Secseveral selections, which added greatly to the interest of the occasion. After prayer by Rev. James McLeod, D. D., big basket. the Rev. Walter Q. Scott, Ph. D., formerly principal of Exeter academy, was introduced and delivered the annual address to the school. He took as his which Dr. Scott is thoroughly at home, and upon which his wide experience His address was philosophical and cloquent and much appreciated by thos who heard him

The school address to the class was delivered by Rev. William E. Plum-ley, A. M. He spoke as one of the faculty to old pupils, and his parting words of advice and counsel were list-

Dr. Cann now presented the diplomas to the class, whose names are as ollows; Emma L. Foster, May F. Albro, Louise E. Sylvester, in the Engcourse; Frank I. Linen, Fred A. Clark, John P. Fitzgerald, Ernest L. A. Klesel, in the classical course; John Tiffany, Richard J. Kelly, George L. Phillips, in the scientific course.

SOME ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The following announcements were then made by Principal Walter H. Buell. They form a record of which any schol might be proud. The school has sent to college during the past ten years one hundred and eleven students. It has had a representation of fiftyven in college during the past year. It has been represented in these years, in twenty-six different colleges, as folette, 10; Columbia, 7; Cornell, 7; Le-high, 7; Pennsylvania State college, 6; Pennsylvania, 4; two each in Annapolis Naval academy, Georgetown college, Troy Polytechnic, Syracuse, Union and Vassar, and one each in Baltimore, Boston Institute of Technology, Col-gate, Harvard, Mt. Holyoke, New York Teachers' college, Stevens institute, Trinity, Wesleyan, West Point.

The following are some of the honors taken by Lackawanna men who are now in college: Yale-Thomas F. Archbald, '96, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for next year; Robert Archbald, 98. Berkeley prize in Latin composition, McLaughlin prize in English, Ten Eych prize for English oration, ophical oration appointment Phi Heta Kappa; Frank R. Stocker, '98, philosophical oration appointment Phi-Beta Kappa; Arthur B. Williams, jr.,

'98, class deacon, vice president of the Y. M. C. A., won entrance prize. Charles M. Hathaway, jr., entrance prize in Greek. Princeton-Nicholas Stahl, '97, prize for entrance examinaion, graduated on Wednesday second in his class, high honors in mathematics and physicial science, Phi Beta Kappa, $600 fellowship in experimental science; Harry R. Lathrope, 1900, president of his class, first tenor on Varsity club, substitute on Varsity foot ball team, second group honorman; George H. Lathrope, 1900, captain of freshmen foot ball team, second group honorman; Edward Hulbedt, 1900, rank No. 1 in scolarship in school of science. Lafayette commencement appointments for the class of 1897 contained the following interesting items: Harry A. Nve, honorman; Walter S. Bevan, lass orator; Charles F. Niemeyer, class prophet, class secretary. Among the other colleges the following have been receivel; George R. Jackon, Lehigh, '99, prize in chemistry; Edward S. Jackson, Naval academy, 1900, second rank in class; Charles H. Gelbert, University of Pensylvania, varsity foot ball and base ball teams. Honors taken by the undergraduates: Eugene H. Fellows, chosen alternate in a competitive examination for appointment to West Point; Frank J. Linen and Norman J. McLeod, winners in singles and doubles in the lawn tennis contest with Wyoming seminary.

THE PRIZE WINNERS. The announcement of school prizes for the year just closed was as follows: Composition prize, William H. Crawford; classical prize, Ednest L. A. Kie-sel; geometry prize, Douglas M. Moffat; algebra prize, John T. Gavan; Caesar, Miss Nellie Shields; Greek lessons, Miss Mairi K. Show; Latin lessons, Harold Shields; German prize, Miss Katie A. Donnelly. The benediction pronounced by Dr. Cann brought the exercises of ident, for so successful a year.

the year to a close. The flowers with which the rooms were decorated were taken to the hospitals and the Florence

CLASS DAY EXERCISES.

Conducted in the High School Anditorium Last Night.

The class of '97 at the Scranton high school, which will hold commencement exercises at the Lyceum tonight, instituted the "class day" idea at the high school last evening when a fine programme was rendered in the presence of a great audience.

The exercises were on a magnificient scale. Each number was supplied from the remarkable individual resources of the class of sixty-two members, and there was an unmistable college ring in the air.

The auditorium had been lavishly bedecked in flowers, ferns and streamers of green. On the wall in front and immediately over the stage was a center piece of American flags. Round the stage front were bunches of daisies and laurels, and from the ceiling swung green streamers. Lawrence orchestra cupied seats below the stage front. The class of '97, the evening entertainers, in the front row, made a pretty picture-a bed of white with here and there a black break, where one of the few male members of the class had onced himself.

P. E. Kilcullen, president of the class, was chairman of the evening. Lawrence's orchestra began the entertainment with an overture, Rev. J. B. Sweet, whose son, Charles E., is one of the graduates, then offered a fervent invocation.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME.

Mr. Kilcullen made the address of welcome. Mr. Kilcullen is a tall, handome appearing young man, who is a prime favorite with his class mates. His address was most creditable. In closing he announced John J. Thompson, who responded to the number, "The Class History."

Mr. Thompson read from a paper his class history. It was a happy effort. The young man is a humorist and he made the most of the punning possibilities of the names of his classmates. President Kilcullen then announced for the next number-a piano duet by Miss Marilla K. Kiefer and Charles Doersam. The piece was one which called for a great degree of artistic execution. The applause of the audience warranted a second selection but was not given.

Miss Gertrude Fellows, a charming oung lady, recited "The Minuet," to the piano accompaniment of Miss Emma W. Burns. It was a very graceful rendering of a pretty piece. The next number was of the humorous kind. John B. Hitchcock made a class ond Presbyterian church contributed presentation. Two of the white-duck trousered ushers carried in upon the stage from the ante-room a mysterious

Then Mr. Hitchcock began his Santa Claus work. To one member of the class he gave a curry comb; to Mr. Doersam, a cotton dog; to Miss Wilsubject, "The Elements of a Liberal liams, a leather medal; to Mr. Sweet, Education." It was a subject upon some face powder; Mr. Kilcullen, the editor of the school paper, was made happy with a nickle novel; Mr. Hall enabled him to speak with authority. received a pair of 4-year-old trousers,

After Mr. Sweet the orchestra folowed with a medley of topical songs. The class poem was then read by Miss Grace Williams. Miss Williams, as speaker of English, is refreshing. Her diction was one of the delights of the entertainment. The poem consisted of happy hits at the class, the last word of each line jingling with some

Leila A. Porter recited "Tom's Little Star," a piece demanding a long range r versatility. This Miss Porter, with her wonderfully expressive features, fully covered to the credit of herself and friends. The oration by Edward R. Hughes on "John Greenleaf Whittier," showed well developed ability to orate, and lows: Yale, 21; Princeton, 16; Lafey- also a better developed ability to think. The last number was the class prophesy, by Miss Edith Murphy. This field Wells, 6; Wellesley, 6; University of had been much trampled upon by Miss Williams, Mr. Thompson and other previous speakers. Nevertheless Miss Murphy was interesting.

THE CLASS SONG.

The class song, composed by Arthur Sancton, and set to music by Mr. Doersam, was sung by the class, Professor Derman leading. The boys gave the class yell for the edification of the audience Rev. George E. Guild then spoke the final benediction, and the audience filed out to music by the orchestra. After the entertainment last night the orchestra supplied music from the steps leading to the upper floors, and the young people tripped the light fantastic for a time. The board of control, however, are not supposed to know of it. The first class day was a magnificient success.

A nice sum of money was realized. The committee in charge were: Charles E. Sweet, chairman; John P. Hitchcock, F. Grace Williams, Lella A. Porter and Marilla K. Keifer. The ushers were: Willis Sweet, Charles Geary, Roland Rice, Eugene Cooper, Clare Storm, John Newing, Simon Nye, Rollin Car and W. J. Welsh, jr., chief

MEETING OF HOMEOPATHISTS.

They Elected Officers Here Yesterday and Did Other Business.

In the office of Dr. H. B. Ware, in this city, yesterday the annual meet-ing of the Homeopathic Medical so- with flags, banners, palms, flowers and of Northern Pennsylvania, was held. In the absence of Dr. Hill, the president, who was absent on account illness in the family, Dr. Johnson, of West Pittston, presided.

The society received the reports of the committees on finance and enlistment for the Homoeopathic State society, which will meet in Scranton in September. Extensive plans were adopted and the finances fully provided for. The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: Dr. H. B. Ware, president; Dr. Sarah J. Cae, vice president; Dr. Anna C. Clarke, secretary and treasurer; Dr. Lang was appointed chairman of finance commitee, and Dr. Coolidge, chairman of enertainment committee. The review of the work for the closng year was most satisfactory, more papers having been presented than in any previous year. The average at-tendance has increased and perfect harmony prevailed. A vote of thanks was tendered to Dr. Hill, the retiring pres-

BUTCHER FRANK DAY FINED ONE HUNDRED

Found Guilty of Having Sold Oleomargarine for Butter.

WILLIAM LEITNER WAS ABSENT

He Will Be Given a Hearing at a Later Period -- Mr. Beemer Tells of Some Rather Peculiar Things That Agent Terry Said to Him -- Case Against the Beemers Held Under Advisement by Alderman Howe.

The oleomargarine cases were disposed of yesterday afternoon by Alderman John T. Howe. Frank C. Day, butcher, of 905 Capouse avenue, was $100 with costs of prosecution was imposed. The case of Agent James Terry against Beemer & Son, dining room proprietors, of Washington avenue, was reserved for a decision this morning. Mr. Beemer made an excellent part of the city has had but one gram defense, and in his testimony he indirectly charged Agent Terry with atmpted blackmail.

William Lietner, the huckster, could not be found yesterday, and his case will be attended to later.

Attorney Frank E. Boyle represented Agent Terry and Attorney S. B. Price

the defendants. The hearing attracted an interested audience in Alderman Howe's office. It was adjourned from the morning at 8.30 o'clock until the afternoon at 5 o'clock. At that hour James Flynn, a young man whose home is on the West Side, took the stand to give evidence against Mr. Day, the butcher.

Flynn had been used as a "noser" for Agent Terry. On May 21, he said he went into Mr. Day's butcher shop and called for a pound of butter. Young Herbert Day, son of the defendant, waited on him and sold him a pound of "butter." Flynn paid 15 cents for it. This butter was analyzed by Chemist Albert H. Welles, who found it to be the regulation "oleo,

SAID IT WAS ALL RIGHT. Agent Terry also testified that he vent into the place a short time afterward and upon entering had greeted young Mr. Day with: "Well, how's the oleomargarine business with you?' Young Mr. Day answered that it was "all right." He then became suspicious of the visitor and would answer no further questions, directing Agent Terry to "papa." When young Mr. Day was put or the stand he proved a very excitable witness. He admitted that he had sold oleomargarine many times, but he al-ways explained to the customer that it was a concection of tallow and other inviting ingredients. He thought that the young man Flynn had been in the shop before, so he didn't take the trouble to explain to him.

His father gave the same story. He was selling the stuff not for himself, he said, but for William Leitner, the huckster. He handled the stuff without any pay whatever.

The case against W. A. and O. A. Seemer was then begun. Agent Terry told how he and a friend had gone in to Reemer's about two weeks ago and ordered two meals. They "swiped" the butter patties and Chemist Welles discovered that the butter was not butter. Agent Terry's testimony did not conflict in the least detail with that of W. A. Beemer who took the stand af-

WHAT THE AGENT SAID. Only Mr. Beemer something Agent Terry said. Beemer stated that Agent Terry had conversed with him at the dining room office. Agent Terry opened the conversation by asking Mr. Beemer if he knew he was giving his patrons oleomargarine instead of butter,

Mr. Beemer indignantly denied this. Agent Terry asked him where he purchased his butter. Mr. Beemer then wanted to know who his questioner was. Agent Terry told him. Agent Terry said: "I might as well tell you that you are using oleomargarine. There is a penalty you know.' Then Agent Terry mysteriously asked Mr. Beemer if there was any piace where he could talk in private to Mr. Beemer said that the office was the most secluded spot in the place. Agent Terry then disclosed his intentions. "If you will help me," he said, "to trace this 'oleo' business in this city, why-Mr. Beemer readily responded. He would be only too glad to punish the imposters. He told Agent Terry that at 2.30 o'clock that very afternoon he would order some butter. This he invited Agent Terry to inspect.

HE WAS FINED.

Before Agent Terry left the place Mr. Beemer said: Well, am I to suppose that I am

"Yes," responded the agent. "Have you the papers?" "Yes, I have," answered the inspec Mr. Beemer said he wasn't the sort of a man to be hung before he was convicted, so he didn't pay the $100 fine then. He learned yesterday evening, he says, for the first time, that the agent has no power to collect the fine. Alderman Howe held the case under onsideration. Beemer will likely be discharged.

Threw Their Handsome New Building Open to the Public.

The Nay Augs had a house warming in their palatial new quarters last night and despite the drizzling rain between two thousand and three thousand persons attended. The exterior of building was gaily decorated with flags and bunting and the interior was with flags, banners, palms, flowers and brilliant illuminations. The members constituted themselves one general reception committee and with the assistance of a bevy of their young lady friends made everybody welcome and saw to it that they were well looked after. On the first floor the visitor was shown the apparatus and enlightened as to the workings of the various hurry-up contrivances, which permit the company to have the tail end of their hose cart even with the threshold fourteen seconds after the first tap of the alarm is sounded. On the second floor Bauer's crchestra from a position in the bunk room played enlivening airs, while in the parlor, during the intervals that the orchestra was resting a planist kept up the melody. On the top floor a corps of colored waiters helped the visitors to dainty refreshments and in the later hours of the evening informal dancing was indulged in there. At the conclusion of the council meeting the members of both branches in response to special invitations went down in a body and were introduced around by Chief Hickey and District Chief McManus. Chief Ellerick, of Pittston and more other firemen from adjacent towns attended. Each visitor was presented with a neat souvenir containing a history of the organization, and haif-tone portraits of President Isadore Goodman, Vice-President F. F. Zizelman, Secretary F. W. Zizelman, Treasurer W. E. Gilhool, Foreman John W. Moir, First Assistant Foreman O. A. Beemer, Second Assistant Foreman Frank Moir, and ex-Chief Engineer Enoch Page.

INSPECTING THE SCHOOLS.

Buildings that Were Visited Yesterday by the Officials. City Superintendent of Schools George Howell, T. J. Jennings, president of the board of control, and members John Gibbons and W. J. Welsh yesterday visited school buildings Nos 36, 2, 3, 8, 10, 11 and 7. This took up the found guilty and the minimum fine of entire day. Today they will inspect $100 with costs of prosecution was im- No. 12 and possibly one or two others if they have time.

Some time was spent on the South Side arranging for the proper promotion of the children. Heretofore that and all of the students from that part of the city had to pass through that building before they could reach the high school. Superintendent Howell proposes also to make new No. 10 a grammar A grade, which will be a great convenience to pupils living in the upper portion of the Nineteenth and in the Twentieth wards.

The inspecting party yesterday paid particular attention to arranging for the promotion of pupils to the most convenient schools,
