MEETING OF POOR BOARD.

Short, Business-Like Session Conducted Yesterday Afternoon. A short, business-like session of the poor beard was held yesterday afternoon in the board rooms in the city hall. Agent Walter, of the Humans society, of Wilkes-Barre, appeared before the board and asked to have Amelia Dougherty, insane, who is now in the Luzerne county jail, admitted to the insane department of the Hillside Home. The woman is a charge of the Pittston poor district, and Mr. Walter said that corporation will pay for maintainence. Permission granted to take the woman to the Hillside Home.

Secretary E. J. Lynett reported that he had made arrangement for the ad-mission of three children into the Elwyn Home for the feeble minded, and his report was approved. Hugh McManama came before the board and asked for transportation to Philadelphia. He said that he came here in search of his son, but had not been successful in finding him. His story was disjointed in some particulars and the board offered him the hospitality of the Hillside Home until such time as his tale can be investigated. He delined the offer.

Mrs. Burke, of Dunmore, who was deserted by her husband, was allowed transportation for herself and six children to Towanda, Bradford county.

Director Shotten called the attention f the board to the case of John Mc-Mahon, who is now in the county jail for abusing his children. His wife is in the old country, and their six children, in the absence of both parents, are woefully neglected. Mrs. Duggan, who was present about the same case said that she had a letter from Mc-Mahon stating that he desired her to take charge of the children. She afterwards received a letter from the man's attorney warning her not to take them,

The attorney of the board, Mr Scragg, was directed to make an investigation, and then proceed at once to have the children legally placed where they will be cared for.

A neat programme has been received of the commencement exercises of the Lancaster Young Women's Christian as-sociation, which promises to be very fine, Wilkes-Barre is already planning for the entertainment of the annual state convention in the fall. It will no doubt be felt to be a great help to their local association as it was in Harrisburg last

A friend fitted up a country house for the use of young women last summer and sixty spent part or all of their vaca-tions at "Locust Valley Farm" under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian essociation. Here is a hint for some kind and thoughtful Scranton lady. Harrisburg has issued a very pretty an nual report. It includes a brief history of the organization, names of officers, managers and committees, and the reports of the president, Mrs. E. S. Chambers, and the general secretary, Miss Emma Moore. These reports show an encourage ing condition in their association, not only in increased attendance, being 3,000 more than the previous year, but increased in terest in religious work, the Bible classes and Gospel meetings having been very helpful. Eleven known conversions ar reported and many are known to have been helped in their Christian life.

The Pittsburg association had a mos successful commercement, when the im-mense Carnegie I all was packed from pit to dome on a stormy night and during the excitement following the biggest fire the city has seen for years. Every department was represented on the programme by pupils of the classes in cooking, dressmaking, physical training and literary and practical studies. It was a wonderful revelation to many of the great work done by the Young Women's these exercises, as well as all the works Christian association. The success of of the year, was largely due to the energy and consecration of the president, Miss S. E. Pence, and the general secre-tary, Mrs. F. P. Pierson, in addition to the falthfulness of the teachers and the enthusiasm of the members.

Von Storch Trial Breaks All Records for Staying Qualities.

FIGURING OUT WHEN IT WILL END

Plaintiff Has More Witnesses and One Hundred and Twelve Pages of Depositions .- The Defendants Will Have Something to Say on the Depositions and a String of Witnesses in Sur-Rebuttal, the Closing Addresses and Judge's Charge.

The Von Storch case is bent upon breaking all records for long-windedness. This is the twelfth day that the case has been on and this is by no means the last. In all likelihood all of next week will be taken up also with this tedious trial.

This morning the depositions of William Von Storch, the plaintiff, will be read. They comprise 112 pages of closely type-written matter, and it will take a day to read them, not counting in going over these 112 pages to see if the time that the defendants will put they contain anything objectionable, and the further time that will be required for the arguments and such ob-

When Wednesday comes the reading of the plaintiff's deposition will be completed, a few other witnesses will be examined for the plaintiff, the defendants will put in a number of witnesses on sur-rebuttal and then the case will be ready for closing. It will take all of a day for the closing speeches and judge's charge, and it would not be a the case went into the fourth week.

Yesterday's testimony was along the same lines as that of the last few preceeding days, being mainly evidence of William's ownership and Currington's occupancy by suffrage. William Hawkins and Dr. J. K. Bentley testified to having purchased old buildings that were on the Arcade property from William and John Silkman testified that Currington saw him in the act of moving the buildings and made no objection. William Bright, a shoemaker, rented a shop in the Arcade building from William.

William Pierce, an octogenarian, who insisted in establishing his tervimony with reminiscences of "way back when wolves were prowling around houses at night," told that he hauled stone for William from the quarry in the rear of the lot occupied by Currington and that Ferdinand informed him one day that the quarry belonged to

DEGREE TEAM AT PITTSTON.

Last Thursday evening a degree team of the Knights of the Maccables of this city visited Pittston, and exemplified the beautiful ritualistic work of the order before the Sir Knights of West Pittston tent. Candidates were initiated and put through years of stubborn warfare, and candidates and vis-itors were highly pleased with the work performed. The team from this city consisted of the following named persons: B. B. Anthony, commander; H. H. Toward, sergeant at arms; J. M. Hine, first master of guards; W. H. Orchard, T. C. Waldie and W. E. Quick, of Hyde Park tent. No. 268; and Sir Knight Davis, of Scranton tent; E. L. Tallman, organizer.

Past Great Commander E. S. Watson, of Williamsport, directed the work of the team, assisted by Deputy Great Comander Croft, of Tloga county. This order is growing rapidly in Luzerne and Lackawanna counties.
