EXCITING RACES.

A Big Day of Sport at Anthracite Park--Many Scranton Entries.

People need not go out of town for amusement today, for although there will be no big parade and pyrotechnic display there are many other events which will help to make the day pass pleasantly.

The events at Anthracite park will probably be the best yet witnessed in this city, and the numerous entries promise to make them all very exciting. The free for all horse race will doubtless be the most hotly contested, prize will be $200. It will be run in mile heats and the following are the entries:

Bertha C, record 2.20½, owned by H. E. Kidwell, Scranton.

Maud L, record 2.15¾, owned by R. E. Westlake, Scranton.

Maggie Davis, record 2.40, owned by J. H. Davis, Taylor.

Clay Cross, record 2.40, owned by W. C. Norton, Aldenville.

Era Chimes, record 2.19¼, owned by W. C. Norton.

The bicycle races will also be hotly contested. The entries in the two mile bicycle race are T. K. Lee, B. R. Wickwire, of this city; F. A. Detrick, Honesdale; E. N. Wells, Clifford, and John Biggs, Forest City. The first prize is a gold medal valued at $25, the second, silver medal, third L. A. W. pin.

There is much rivalry between the men, and the race will be fought from start to finish

In the three minute horse race there are many entries and the race will be a close one There will also be a half-mile running race and a mile foot race. The team race will probably be the prettiest of the kind seen in the city.

What's the matter with the committee on the Union excursion? We do not hear or see anything about it.

The new flag pole which a correspondent of this place in one of our morning papers has been howling for the past ten days could not be procured in time. JOY AT HONOLULU.

How Citizens of Hawaii Received the News of the Signing of the Annexation Treaty.

Vancouver, B. C., July 4.—Advices from Hawaii say that less than two hours were required by the enthusiastic citizens of Honolulu for the organization of a brass band parade in token of the national satisfaction at the news of the presentation of the annexation treaty to the United States senate. While the steamship Australia, which took the news to Hawaii, still lay at the Honoulu wharf three immense bonfires gave further expression of the prevailing sentiment.

The ratification of the treaty by the senate seemes to be generally accepted in Honolulu as assured and everywhere a feeling of relief is expressed at the probability of a prompt and effective solution of the difficulties by which the republic now finds itself surrounded.

This view of the case appears to be sfhared by the general public in Honolulu, and is mildly echoed by the newspapers of that city, which unite in hailing annexation to the United States as the "natonal destiny of the Islands." They outline in their articles the advantage which the possession of Hawaii will confer upon the republic.

OHIO POPULISTS AROUSED.

Resent Democratic Treatment, and Will Run Their Own Ticket.

Youngstown, O., July 4.—The Populists are put out at the treatment given them during the recent Democratic convention at Columbus and proposes to put a separate state ticket in the field. There can no longer be any doubt about that. Richard Ingals, of this city, who is one of the prominent and influential Populists of the state, is authority for the statement.

He gives the information that at the state convention of the Populists to be held at Columbus on Aug. 10, a separate ticket will be nominated and the party will go into the neld entirely independent of any outside affiliations. This is said to be due to the treatment accorded both last fall and at the convention and because of the fact that the Populists find nothing can be gained through a continuation of their connection with the Democrats.

NEW SAYINGS OF CHRIST.

More About the Oldest Papyri Known to Bear His Words.

New York, July 4.—Several weeks ago the London correspondent of the Sun cabled the news of the wonderful discoveries made in January last by Messrs. Grendell and Hunt on the borders of the Libyan Desert, of the oldest papyri known bearing the words of Christ. That correspondent now cables:

The value of this find in the interest it will arouse in the whole Christian world proves inestimable. It comprises a dozen leaves, each 5½ by 3½ inches in size, remarkably well preserved, and clearly written in uncial characters of the ancient Greek. It dates about sixty years after the crucifixion.

It has easily been translated, and is found to consist of detached sayings of Christ, without context, each beginning with the words, "Jesus saith." The translation will soon be published by the Egypt Exploration Fund. An immense edition at a few pence per copy will be provided, so as to reach everybody.

ANCIENT MEXICAN CITY.

A German Archaeologist Finds Its Ruins in the State of Chiapas.

Oaxaca, Mex., July 4.—J. L. Hebrahn, a German archaeologist, has arrived here from an extensive exploration trip through the state of Chiapas. He reports finding another ancient buried city in the depth of a tropical forest, about sixty miles west of the Guatemalan border.

He brought with him a number of relics of the place, and says that he will go to the United States from here and thence to Germany, where he will organize an expedition for further researches in Chiapas.

THE CURE FOR EVIL IS RIGHTEOUSNESS

or still worse, it may be, in reality—this is the difficulty which faces us. Want of Christlike living sums it all up. Well has it been said: "It is the concrete which moves men. Abstract ethics have not, and never will, become a mighty vital power in the world. We know only one perfect embodiment of Christian ethics, their founder. He must become the personal savior of the labor movement if it is ever to accomplish its legitimate end."

FALSE MINISTERS.

We talk also of the problem of the churches and the masses. We forget that the difficulty often is that we have such churches, with such social distinctions and with such lack of method in work. We forget that we have often such people in the pews, drones in the work of the Kingdom, who regard the minister much as they would a platform orator, intended to furnish pleasant intellectual entertainment and opportunity for the exercises of criticism, not as a prophet of God to utter the commands of righteousness which must be obeyed, not as a general to lead them forth to duty in society. We forget that, in too many cases, we have such ministers, men who yield to the temptation to place popularity above simple truth, who too often prefer false success to persevering struggle. No, modern civilization is not bad because it is modern. But because man is such as he is, therefore is modern civilization such as we find it to be. The problem again is simply, only this, the putting of the personal living of Jesus into this civilization. How shall this be done? Preaching the gospel—what is it? It is saying to this country, to this generation, the Christ has come to you in the Christian. Living the gospel—what is it? Simply living forth in this century, in this generation, the Christlike life.

What, then, we inquire, are some of the leading elements in this Christlike life which the questions of our day demand? I answer, first of all, Christlike living always faces realities wherever found, whether in the sunshine or in the shadow. It looks on both sides of life, the light side and the dark side, with impartial glance. Jesus entertained the largest hope for man that has ever been cherished because he saw reality. He also said the darkest, saddest things regarding man that have ever been uttered; this also was because he saw reality. In this Son of Man was the life which lighteth every man that cometh into the world and also the life which judgeth every man that liveth in the world. There is a truth in looking on the bright side and there is also a truth in looking on the dark side. The whole truth is found in the even balancing of these two, as only the Christ, and the Christlike, can. We Americans have been optimists, and for this very reason we are in danger of becoming—indeed already we are becoming—pessimists. The existing state of affairs has been truly stated in this wise remark: 'Public opinion has been fatally sanguine, prone to the belief that whatever we do—whatever fatal blunders we commit—we shall come out all right in the end.' It is supposed that God is personally responsible for the United States, that he can not afford to let our experiment of self-government fail." The Hebrew commonwealth, its disastrous and total overthrow—the lesson of the Old Testament, of the larger part of the Bible, sufficiently answers this fallacy. Faith in God can not be identical with faith in my blunder, my selfishness, my sloth, my sin. American sloth is thought, the acceptance of a view because it is pleasant, the setting up of an authority because it is hard to think for oneself—the sad results of these things we are constantly discovering in our life as a nation. The outcome is the blind following of this and that leader, the credulous reception of this and that dictum of a school. "In the true state," well has it been said, "the scholar is man thinking, in the degenerate state, he is the parrot of other men's thinking." Even the utterance of the best opinion is dangerous to the mere imitator. Your absolutely sure man becomes often your most dangerous man, for he knows nothing through experience. The reaction is sure to come in indifference, in the abandonment of self and of public interests to chance. Why have we so many indifferent men about us? Why is their number so decidedly on the increase? Because so many have had their thinking done for them. The pupil of positive assertion makes, before long, the worst and the saddest indifferentist. That thought which is the soul of Christlike living alone corrects the matter. Christ stood in a world of dogmatists on the one hand and of indifferentists and discouraged men on the other, and—independently thinking—he calmly said: "There is truth. It is accessible to every man for himself. The pathway to its finding is that of open-eyed, independent search. But this must be a search in the spirit of humility, patience, self-control, self-denial." Note this; forget it not. Such a spirit is all important. There can be no Christlike living without it. It involves intelligent faith in God. Such faith is confidence in righteousness. The message of the Old Testament and of the New, of the prophet and of the Christ is one. It is the proclamation of the unalterable law of man's life—righteousness. It alone exalteth man or nation. Without it, there is no peace. Without it, one dare not proclaim peace. But—at the same time—he whose eyes have been opened to see righteousness, he whose heart has known its power, can not stay long under the juniper tree. Never, in his inmost soul, can he want to die, for righteousness and God ever live. Discouragements must come. He who works for man always has met them; he always must meet them. He who can not stand frosts had better give up work for humanity at once. He who can not endure criticism must live under glass. Expect to give sympathy to all, expect to take sympathy from God alone; for this is the greatness of the Christlike soul. There is but one course to the honest man—it is the path to life both for himself and for others also—let him say his word, do his deed, bide his time, let him constantly do this; then shall the huge world come round to him, if he stand with truth. Yes, only thus—if he stand with truth.

THE TRUE REFORMER.

The day of the great individual reformer and leader is largely past. The true reformer of the present must have that Christlike living which silently reproduces itself. He must work, like the coral insect below the surface. Of his life he builds the reef to keep out the salt, death-bringing sea. We, today, need not a reformer, but a race of reformers. The points of application for personal force are innumerable. For the sake of the nation's safety, it must be applied at every point. Jesus devoted himself to twelve men. One of them sold him to his foes, but through the eleven who were true to him he moved the world. He had no platform at Jerusalem, at Hiberias, at Caesarea; but he put his life into society and he has ever since been conquering.

For this Christlike personal living, of which I have been speaking, conquers by the might of love. Civilization—our American civilization—is in peril. What shall we do? Hide our heads, ostrich like, in the sand? Run away from the world to our Westmoreland valley? Let our neighbor try to do something? I tell you, nay! Property is in danger. What shall we do? Put a gatling gun in the street? No, none of these things. Simply learn to live in love. Put things at their worst, and say: America may fail—what then? It will be because she ought to fail. American Christianity may fail—what then? It will only be because the Christianity of Christ has not been tried. Remember this. Whatever comes or goes, man remains and God remains and love remains. "Love never faileth, therefore, follow love." If a man will do the supreme deed, he must have the supreme motive. Self-defence is a good motive. Love of country is better. Love of man is the best. Why? Because it is God's motive. This love is the power of the Christlike life. It is love of man, not because of his inherent goodness, but because of his inherent possibility. Love is too far-sighted to confuse these things. Love knows how to adjust interests and yet not crush ambitions. Love knows how to teach self-reliance and patience without taking away spirit and hope. Love sees that the interests of humanity, individual and social, in all their length and breadth, their height and depth, are wrapped up in the life and mission of Jesus. Christlike personal living is such as this.

Stand with Jesus and you can not fail to know how to interpret this time.

"No; what is it?"
