Detroit, July 13 .- The National league of Republican clubs was called to or-der by President Woodmansee at 10.30 o'clock this morning. Governor Pingree delivered the address of welcome on behalf of the state of Michigan. At one point in his interesting address he aroused a burst of applause, by an interpolated reference to the miners' strike, expressing the hope that it would be successful.

Colonel Henry P. Duffield, of this welcomed the delegates on behalf of Detroit. E. M. Dingley, of Kalamazoo, as president of the Michigan League of the Republican clubs, also welcomed the delegates. The president of the National league, D. D. Woodmansee, of Cincinnati, then delivered his annual address. Mr. Woodmansee said

THE LEAGUE'S MISSION.

The league has a mission to perform, and it is eminently proper that we should annually determine if this organization has measured up to its possibilities. The pomp and coremony of a national assembly of this character are so useless and so inappropriate, if we cannot learn a les-son and profit by reason of the experience. Democrats and Populists Combine Against the Senator.

Columbus, Ohio, July 13 .- The Demo crats have started to effect a fusion with the Populists in order to defeat Mark Hanna for the senate, taking the initiative at the Populist county convention, when the Democratic managers succeeded in inducing a number of the delegates to break away and hold a separate convention, under the plea that they were the regular acceredited representatives of the party.

This disorganized convention passed solutions indorsing the Chicago platform and pledging support to the Democratic state ticket. The remainder of the delegates nominated a separate county ticket and recommended the placing of a Populist state ticket in the field.

hast year has been during the provided for, and the officers whom you may select at this convention will not be required to divide their time between the wants of the organization and the demands of its creditors. In further reporting to you, it is proper for me to say that since I became your president, less than one year ago, I have traveled in twelve states, and made in each of those states from one to ten speeches. I have addressed six state league banquets. By this means your president has come in contact with the ague workers in a large section of the Union and he is now more than ever impressed with the importance and useful-ness of this organization. Those assoclated with me have labored to establish harmony between the league and the reg-ular party organization. The result of your efforts in this direction have been most gratifying. The league has a right to exist only so long as it is a useful agency for party success. They can and do take charge of political meetings, dis-tribute literature, look after registration, and on election day become respon sible for every Republican casting a bal-lot. I am glad to report that in those states where the Republican clubs were disintegrated, by a sentiment 'n favor of free silver, our cause is full of hope, and by and by the league clubs of the silver states will bring those states back into the Republican column,

FIXED CONVENTION DAY.

As a part of our deliberations at this convention, I would suggest the propriety of discussing the proposition as to whether it would not be wise to establish a fixed day of the year upon which to hold our national conventions. I would also advise that this convention recommend to the various state leagues that the state conventions of all the leagues throughout the Union be held upon the same day. Being thus held, that day would present the league prominently before the people of the country in every state, and such concert of action would bring the various state organizations in closer touch with each other. They would seem to have a common purpose. By having the entire army in the field upon one particular day would very clearly show our con-tinued development in power and influence. I would suggest as the day for this extraordinary event-the birthday of the father of the Republican party, Abraham Lincoln

I am justified in saying that the league is growing. In a number of states a few years ago our party leaders looked upon it with suspicion. Now they recognize its usefulness and gladly encourage and universe it. We have a machine for support it. We have a number of dis-tinguished statesmen who have hardly realized the fact that there exists in this country the National Republican league. They have unsatisfied ambitions, and are somewhat disappointed at the slow pro-gress they have made in national politics. My advice to them is to get in line and not overlook the league men in this country, who with a comradeship of two and one-half million members. have no axes to grind, but naturally think more of their friends than they do of their entemies.

REMEMBERING FRIENDS.

Of the large number of distinguished Republicans who have been friends of the league, there is one who stands out conspicuous among all the rest. That man is William McKinley. As an organi-zation the league cannot assist any can-didate for office, until nominations are duly made, but as individuals, its mem-bers naturally remember their friends. As a Consequence William McKinley to As a consequence. William McKinley to-day is president of the United States. MAY SEE REAL SERVICE.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

Camp Lewis Merrill, Mt. Gretna, Pa., July 13.-In camp tonight a rumor is current that the brigade will be held in readiness for immediate guard duty at Pittsburg, where the miners' strike is assuming dangerous proportions. It gained a special circulation in the Thirteenth regiment, and is rapidly spreading. Not a little genuine excitement prevails, The Tribune correspondent went to brigade and governor's headquarters toright to inquire into the foundation of the rumor. Governor Hastings had left a few minutes previous on a spe-cial car for Harrisburg. General Snowden, commander of the guard, was seen. He branded the report as false, not a word of truth in it, as far as he knew. He said he was in a position to say that the matter had not even been discussed by the commanding lights. The early transaction of the severe camp duties at this camp lend color to the rumor, however.

GOVERNOR'S DAY.

This was Governor's Day, It was marked by splendid weather, and a perfect celebration in honor of the colef executive, who cammands the guard. In the morning General Snowden conducted the brigade inspection. This consisted of the usual field manoeuvers with no especial feature. The Thirteenth bore itself with the customary credit. After the brigade drill Battery B was inspected. The rest of the day up to 5 o'clock was spent by the soldiers in idleness, Promptly upon time Governor Hastings, mounted on a handsome black horse, and wearing a distinctive silk hat, rode with his staff from his quarters at the same moment General Gobin and staff came upon the field.

A large crowd was present on the outskirts of the drill field, but not one instant of cheering occurred during the pageant. The five regiments in the brigade were formed in a long line at the eastern extreme of the field, after General Gobin formally presented the brigade for the inspection of the governor. After the inspection the regiments passed in review. The Thirteenth was distinguished by the silver trophy, which surmounts their colors, and which occasioned much inquiry and compliment from spectators as it glittered in the sun. The inspection over the regiments moved in order to their juerters. Governor Hastings expressed himself as being well pleased with the appearance of the troops.
