AN HISTORIC INCIDENT.

Which, However, Has Absolutely No Foundation in Fact.

The whole United States has heard the famous story of how Daniel Webster and Henry Clay, once upon a time, suffering the pangs of impecuniosity, did proceed to raise the wind in the following manner:

Quoth Webster: "Henry, I will draw a draft for $500 if you will indorse it and get it cashed at Rigg's." Quoth Clay: "Done, Dan. But I haven't a dollar in any bank in the world. Suppose it comes back?" "Then it becomes my funeral, if you cannot meet it. Draw on any bank. The further away from Washington the better."

It has been reported to me by some of the very best people in the capital that the draft was cashed, returned, protested, framed and still hangs on the wall in Rigg's bank,

The way to demolish history is to go at it with hammer and tongs. Being in Washington the other day, I called upon the vice president of Rigg's bank, at Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, to make inquiries concerning the draft. Greatly surprised, he as sured me that he had never heard the story, and that there had never been

GOT WHAT HE ASK FOR. But It Was Because the Waiter Was New and Didn't Know Slang.

From Grigg's Courier. A laughable incident occurred at one of the hotels here, recently, which apt-ly illustrates the saying, "English as it is spoken," There was a big rush in the dining room on the evening in question and the tables were soon filled A new waitress, not familiar with the sayings of the day, was impressed into service to help out the regular force, and, as she approached one of the regular boarders, she called off the menu: "Beefsteak, fried sait pork and cold ments. The boarder was hungry and said:

"Bring me the whole cheese"-meaning, of course, the whole order of meats.

The waitress never said a word as she went to the kitchen. In a few moments she returned with the supper order and a big plate of cheese, but no meats. When the boarder saw that cheese he nearly fell off his chair, and the rest of the boarders roared.
