IS HEIRESS TO ABOUT $150,000

Fortune in Sight for Fifteen-Year-Old Elizabeth Davenport.

SHE RESIDES IN THE NORTH END Her Parents Married Secretly and Her Father Disappeared Years Ago and Has Not Been Heard from Since—His Father Died and Much of His Large Fortune Awaits Either the Missing Son or the Latter's Daughter.

A fortune valued at about $150,000 seems about to be bestowed upon Elizabeth Davenport, a 15-year-old girl, who resides with her grandparents in the northern section of the city.

The romance began in Plymouth when S. Irvin Davenport, a youth of 15, wooed and won Elizabeth Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Davis, who then resided in that town. Davenport was of good parentage and well-to-do but he was a worldly young man and his parents, though they were opposed by his parents though she was attractive, accomplished and had a voice of such excellence as to be in great demand for the better class of concertists down the valley.

DAVENPORT DISAPPEARED. The Davis family moved away from Plymouth about the time the marriage took place and located at Pittston. Young Davenport disappeared but returned soon after a child was born to the secretly married couple. The marriage was then made known. The mother died and the little girl, Elizabeth, continued living with her mother's people, now residents of the North End.

But the young father, he again disappeared and this time for good. Reports of him in the great west were received but were too meagre to insure much credit. His parents were well-to-do and spent considerable money to find a trace of him but to no avail. A large sum was deposited in a Wilkes-Barre bank to the son's credit and has been accumulating interest ever since.

Not long ago Irvin Davenport, father of the missing son, died at Plymouth and left quite a fortune behind him. His only direct heir was the son. Recently the grandparents of Elizabeth Davenport, on her mother's side, and other relatives obtained authentic proofs of the secret marriage by "Squire Gibbons at Pittston and a few days ago legal proceedings were instituted through Vossburg and Dawson to recover the missing son's share of the Davenport estate.

COURT APPEALED TO. Applications was made under an old statute to court to declare S. Irvin Davenport dead. He is entitled to other portions of his father's estate, making a total of $150,000. The young daughter and prospective heiress is described as a bright and attractive girl and popular among her playmates in the neighborhood of the grandparents' North End home.

MR. SCRANTON WAS TURNED DOWN. Then He Trained His Batteries on the Street Commissioner.

Those who read the Scranton Republican yesterday were possibly puzzled to understand the severe criticism made upon Street Commissioner Dunning. The editor of the Republican called the street commissioner into his sanctum last week and told him he wanted ex-Prothonotary Henry Sommers appointed to the position of assistant street commissioner, as he alleged had been agreed upon in a deal with the city hall ring.

WAS IT EDDIE BROTHERTON? Boy Supposed to Have Been Seen Near White Haven.

Jeremiah Huff, a resident of Ashley, believes that Eddie Brotherton, who mysteriously disappeared from Ashley on Jan. 19, 1894, still lives and that he was seen on Saturday at Tannery, a mile below White Haven. The boy's father is now searching the vicinity of White Haven for the organ grinder with whom the boy is said to be.

Young Brotherton left his home on Hartford street, Ashley, to play. Reputable witnesses seeing they saw him standing in front of an organ which was played by Rocco Ballatero, a one-armed Italian. Other witnesses testified that they saw a boy of similar description in company with Rocco and his daughter Rose at the corner of Park avenue and Hazle street, this city.

Rocco was not arrested until Jan. 27 and had abundant time if he had the boy to get him out of sight. The arrest was made in a rooming house, this city, by a Wilkes-Barre officer. Immediately after the arrest of Rocco and his girl Rosa they were separated and the little girl was taken into the office of Chief-of-police Simpson where she was thoroughly questioned regarding the movements of herself and father. She said they took the boy to Luzerne but further than that refused to make any statement. Rocco was tried in Wilkes-Barre and acquitted.

BICYCLE ORDINANCE.

Draft of the Measure as It Will Probably Be Presented to Councils by the Committee.

Bicycles are not to be registered, labelled and taxed. At least not if councils will agree to the ordinance which the streets and bridges committee of the upper branch has prepared. There is a question as to the constitutionality of such a provision and this coupled with the fact that Rochester, which was the first city to try it, has repealed it, prompted the committee to leave it out.

The ordinance as it will be presented is given below. Mr. Chittenden, who was delegated to embody a provision of the committee's ideas, finished drafting the measure yesterday. The question of speed, he says, is as yet an open question and is liable to be changed before it succeeds in running the gauntlet of committees and councils.

The following acts are declared acts of nuisances, and the following penalties are attached: The riding of any bicycle, tricycle or unicycle on the public streets without a bell that can be heard at least thirty yards.

THEY ARE CALM. The Republicans on the other hand are sitting calmly by, with their man to all intents and purposes elected, worrying not a whit about the solidity of their ranks and confident that by the time the vacation season is over and all their forces can be once more

WANT TO DISPLACE SENATOR McDONALD

Democratic Councilmen Believe He Cannot Be Elected.

ANOTHER CAUCUS TO BE HELD Those Who Think the Ex-Senator Has Had His Day Will Present the Names of Other Candidates for the Consideration of the Councilmen. There Is Not Much Likelihood That Those Mentioned Can Command a Larger Following.

Discussion has broken out in the Democratic councilmanic camp and the heretofore likeliest retention of Mr. Torrey as city solicitor is now virtually assured. For some time past there has been a spirit of restlessness prevailing in the camp. Some of the more restless ones believing it impossible to wield the Democratic majority with McDonald as the candidate have been in divers ways throwing out hints that he ought to get down and out and let some one else make a try.

lined up that the Democrats will have, by their own interneine strife, driven vote No. 22 and doubtless several more in out of the wet. It is quite apparent that McDonald cannot be elected. It is positive that Newcomb or Wilcox will not be acceptable to the close McDonald adherents. McKinley is in the same boat as McDonald. The only result therefore is Torrey's retention.
