The New International Match. "Why are your eyes so sad, dear?" She asked with a tender glance. "Have you broken your own pet gold stick?" Or look on that horrid race? Have you bought out a Sunday paper, Or is our ball team's absence The thought your gladness mars?" He smiled not as he answered: "I'm off to say good-bye. I'm off to the Yukon River, Where the yellow gold does lie. And of course when wondrous riches Have swiftly come to me, I must go abroad to marry A princess beyond the sea."

It is a pity that the city councils on some other influential bodies or spirits cannot afford to buy a shadow box as a protection besides a square of mosquito netting for the Chartran portrait of Mr. Joseph Albright at the public library. The beautiful picture might as well be shrouded in crape for all the pleasure it can afford the thousands of visitors to the library in its present state of obscurity. A glass protection would be of small expense and would only enhance the attractions of the portrait. Mosquito netting over a Chartran painting would be funny were it not so painful to see. The librarian has done the best thing possible. The splendid work of art and its rich frame must be protected, but it is for the city authorities to provide something suitable to the dignity of the object.

"Great Scott! but I should think you two women would want to talk about something else besides the width of the ruffles you're going to have on your new skirt and the number of waists you expect to take along on your summer trip," exclaimed a Scranton man the other night as he was catching the hill breezes on the front porch. Then he took up the thread of conversation with a neighbor on the subject of base ball and our team in particular; a subject which had only been interrupted by the necessity for sleep during the last two months. And his wife and his sister smiled a little as they proceeded with the interchange of opinions regarding the possibility of getting one more gown into a trunk after having it was upon by all the available persons in the house in order to close the lock.

Attorney John J. Murphy, who took advantage of the Christian Endeavor excursion to make a trip across the continent, returned yesterday afternoon, and although he saw Yellowstone Park, climbed Pike's Peak, ascended Mount Hood, fished in Cripple Creek called down the Columbia river, did Chinatown, San Francisco, by night, attended a session of the Christian Endeavor convention, when 15,000 persons were denied even standing room, he has but one subject to talk upon and that is the Klondike excitement in the Pacific coast. There was very little talked of when he reached the coast July 4, but when the Portland with its million dollar cargo of gold arrived last week there was absolutely nothing else talked of. Mr. Murphy was in Tacoma when the treasure ship was landed at Seattle. Even at that distance, he says the people were fairly gold mad. The newspaper accounts of the excitement, he avers, are not a whit exaggerated and the stories of the finds made by those who were fortunate enough to go there at the outset are all true as far as he was able to personally investigate.

Miss Charlotte Barker, of Buffalo, who is a guest of Mrs. E. L. Buck, is possessed of exceptional artistic talent. Recently she was one of hundreds to submit sketches in a competition in her home city and much to her own astonishment she received the first prize, twenty-five dollars in gold for one sketch and honorable mention for another. She has since entered the School of Design and is making remarkable progress, which, as she is very young, gives promise of an enviable career.

Richard J. Beamish, the local consul of the League of American Wheelmen, yesterday received notice of his appointment as representative-at-large for the Pennsylvania division of the league. This means that he is a member of the state and gives him a voice and vote in the national conventions. The new office is not incompatible with that of consul.

Max Grigolek, of Germany was a visitor in Scranton Tuesday. Mr. Grigolek is an electrical engineer and is visiting in the electrical companies in this country. He left for Niagara yesterday where he will be the guest of Frederick J. Platt, formerly of this city. Mr. Grigolek was agreeably surprised at the enterprise of this city.

Wilkes-Barre is as proud of the rumored announcement that Eddie Bald is coming to that city, as if a foreign court were en route after some of the superfluous feminine population of the town down the valley.

PERSONAL.

City Treasurer C. G. Boland is in New York City.

Mayor O'Neil, of Carbondale, spent yesterday in this city.

Miss M. Ackerman and mother, are sojourning at Ashby Park.

August Robinson has returned from his fishing trip to Fire Island.

Miss Fagen and Miss Tighe, of Pittston, are visiting Scranton friends.

Official business brought Colonel H. A. Courson from Cottage City for a few days' stay in the city.

Special Officer John Tierney will spend the next two weeks at Atlantic City. He left here yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Anderson and daughter, Miss Anderson, have gone to Monmouth Beach, N. J.

Mrs. G. W. Manley, of Vint Street, is entertaining Mrs. Leonard McWade and son, Howard, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. P. J. Runne and Miss Mame Gregory, of the North End, left yesterday for a two weeks' stay at Atlantic City.

The Misses Clara and Leona Gregory and Miss Mabel Ross are spending two weeks in Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

Misses Elizabeth and Mary Dickson, of Dalton, are visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Dickson, at Block Island.

Fred Russell, of Pine street, has gone to Grand Rapids, Mich., to superintend the erection of a crematory at that city.

J. E. Williams, the former principal of the Dunmore schools, has accepted a similar position at Mt. Carmel. Mr. Williams will remove his family there next week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. White and daughter, Miss Minnie, and Mrs. M. Jones and daughter, Miss Bessie, have gone to Asbury Park, to remain about five weeks.

Professor J. M. Clark, formerly principal of the Harford Soldiers' Orphan's school, now principal of the Soldiers' Orphan's industrial school at Scotland, Pa., is at the city.

John Taylor attended the annual session of the Pennsylvania State Bankers' association held in Wilkes-Barre yesterday. Mr. Taylor was an expert stenographer and acted as general secretary for C. W. Gunster, who is at present in Europe.

W. H. Harris, of the Scranton Packing company, entertained the Misses Mame Maloney, Nellie Haren, Lillian Hayden, Maud Fox and Daisy Alexander, at the telephone exchange, at his home on North Hyde Park avenue, last Friday night.

THEIR MONEY IN SIGHT.

Part of the Deficiency Bill Which Awaits the President's Signature.

The sum of $14,000 will come to Scranton mail carriers as back pay if President McKinley signs the Deficiency bill which congress passed on Monday last. This might have been paid out sooner had ex-President Cleveland signed it at the preceding congress had passed it.

He gave as his reason for his refusal that twenty-four hours was not sufficient time to examine the bill. There seems little doubt but that the carriers will receive the money.

PROMINENT STATE POLITICIANS HERE

Their Presence Caused Rumors That Created a Stir Throughout State.

REPORTS WERE ALL UNFOUNDED

One Came to Pay a Social Visit to Friends and the Other Two Were Drawn Scrantonward by a Large Business Deal—Trying to Prevent the Confirmation of Hon. T. V. Powderly—The Democratic State Convention.

The presence in this city yesterday of State Senator William H. Andrews and his brother, Charles Andrews, caused no little comment in this city and in fact throughout the state. The Philadelphia Times yesterday said about Senator Andrews' visit:

State Senator William H. Andrews, of Crawford county, left this city yesterday morning for Scranton as his avowed destination. Some of the gossip had it that Andrews had gone to that section of the state to consult with the friends of State Senator William H. Andrews, in a view to obtaining an estimate of Scott's strength and availing himself of the opportunity to make a personal appeal to the candidate for auditor general. It was remembered that Andrews and Magee had recently been hob-nobbing together in Pittsburgh and the legislators and others who were inclined to criticize the governor were ready to join that circumstance with Andrews' trip to Scranton and draw inferences in favor of a possible Scott boom. Andrews, it was intimated, might be quietly lining up the state delegates against McCauley, so as to be in a position to inform Quay on the eve of the convention that his friends favor Scott. Harlebergh or some one else other than Scott, McCauley, the choice of Governor Hastings.

Friends of Major McCauley asserted last night, with the most positive emphasis, that no such scheme as that rumored could possibly succeed. McCauley, they declared, would be nominated without substantial opposition. Any scheme like a movement against him had been started, they contended, it was nothing more nor less than an effort to scare the governor and corrupting some bills, whose intended beneficiaries feared his veto. The Quay lieutenants in this city take no stock in the reports. They are entirely confident that nothing stands in the way of McCauley's nomination, and that it will be accomplished with practical unanimity.

The presence of Henry K. Boyer, the speaker of the state house of representatives in this city within the week added to the local stories and not a few of the men who always have alleged inside information on everything looked wide and spoke about certain moves on the state checker board that were under contemplation. The visit of the three notables to this city was for the purpose of getting matters properly arranged in this part of the state, said the wise men.

Mr. Boyer's visit here was entirely of a social nature. He is a friend who is visiting relatives in the Green Ridge section of the city and a desire to pay his respects to his friend brought him to Scranton.

Something entirely different attracted the Andrews brothers to this city. Charles Andrews, brother of the state senator, has for years been the legislative agent of the state liquor league. He came here with his brother to help along the movement now in progress of combining all of the breweries in this part of the state.

They had several conferences with the members of the law firm of Warren & Knapp who are drawing up papers that will be necessary in the event of the consolidation of brewing interests becoming a fact. The Messrs. Andrews left the city again yesterday morning.

The men who tried to destroy Hon. T. V. Powderly while he was at the head of the Knights of Labor and who opposed his appointment as commissioner general of immigration, are industriously engaged trying to prevent his confirmation by the United States senate. The Washington Post of yesterday said:

Terrance V. Powderly, whose name was once a power among the organized laborers of the country, will have a rocky road to travel before he is confirmed by the senate as commissioner of immigration, to which place he was recently appointed by President McKinley.

Already the Knights of Labor and the Federation of Labor, the two most important and influential labor organizations, have given notice that they will file a protest against confirmation, and will also file their protest with the senate. The chairman of the immigration committee which will have to act upon the nomination, said yesterday that he had not received any formal denunciations, but the fact that a fight would be made had been intimated to him. From other sources it is learned that the objections to Mr. Powderly will be numerous and definite. In the first place, it is charged that he was never a Republican until he went into the campaign last fall, but that when he ran for mayor of Scranton he was identified very largely with the Democrats. In the second place, he was an ardent advocate of the free coinage of silver as long as he was identified with labor organizations, but became an apostate to the silver cause last fall. His troubles with the Knights of Labor will also be presented at length to the committee. In deference to the president it is expected that the nomination will not be acted upon until next December.

The Democratic state convention will be held at Reading August 1, and conventions will then be called in each of the legislative districts of the county to select delegates to attend the state meeting. This county is entitled to eleven delegates, two from the first legislative district, three from the second, two from the third and four from the fourth. For several years there has been endless trouble about the selection of state delegates the county and legislative committees claiming the right to elect. As a result rival delegations have been called and conventions fought out their right to seats before the committee on contested seats. The recent rules for the government of the Democratic party in the county provide as follows:

Sec. 1. Delegates and alternates to the state convention shall be chosen by the legislative committee called for the purpose by the various chairmen of the legislative committees of the county not less than two or more than nine weeks before the assembling of the state convention.

Sec. 2. Should the chairman of any legislative committee neglect or refuse to issue the call, the secretary of such committee may, after having been petitioned by five or more members of the committee for the district, issued said call. Should both refuse or neglect to do so then the chairman of the county committee shall perform the duty. Should he neglect or refuse, then the state chairman shall perform the duty.

Sec. 3. No substitution of state delegates or alternates shall be made of any person other than a qualified Democratic voter of the district for which such substitution is made.

Sec. 4. The representation at such convention shall be the same as for the county convention and these rules, as far as applicable, shall govern the state convention. The chairman of the committee of the Second district standing committee, said yesterday that a call for a meeting to elect state delegates in that district will be issued next week. Mr. Duffy, H. T. Koehler and R. J. Beamish are spoken of for state delegates in that district.

KIDNAPPING A CHILD.

Serious Charge Preferred Against Andrew Grage, of Dunmore.

It was announced in Tuesday's Tribune that little Michael Gudagno, of Dunmore, had been kidnapped Sunday last. The parents thought their son had strayed away while they were berry-picking. Tuesday they thought differently and had Andrew Grage arrested on a charge of kidnapping their boy. Grage and Grage denies any knowledge of the boy.

He saw him going up the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western tracks near where he was working and had not seen him since. He was held, however, in a $200 bail for his appearance at court. Witnesses testified to seeing the boy follow Grage up the tracks.

CHILD'S NARROW ESCAPE

Was Snatched from in Front of a D. and H. Passenger Train by Fireman Sampson.

A child's death on the tracks of the Delaware and Hudson railroad, near Avoca, yesterday was averted by the presence of mind and quick action of Fireman L. Sampson, who jumped from the engine cab and snatched the little one while the train was in motion. The mother of the child saw the occurrence and became hysterical from joy.

It was Train No. 13, in charge of Conductor Knapp, and left Wilkes-Barre at 10 o'clock. After leaving Avoca Engineer Alexander Copeland got the train quickly under way and when about six hundred yards had been covered noticed that a child scarcely four years of age had darted across the engine track and three rods ahead. Copeland quickly reversed the engine and applied sand to the rails. Fireman Sampson immediately grasped the situation and swung from the cab.

While the train was coming to a standstill Sampson ran alongside and then in front of the engine, where he snatched the little toddler from between the rails, the pilot going a dozen feet or more beyond the point where the child had stood.

A woman was seen running out of a house near the tracks. She had been a witness to her offspring's narrow escape from a horrible death. To her the child was delivered by Sampson. After excitedly pouring out her thanks to the fireman, the mother laughed and cried by turns and fairly smothered the child with kisses and tears, and the train was again started on its journey to this city.

It is presumed the child was so accustomed to the noise and whistling of engines near its home that it paid no heed to the signals of warning from the engine that came so near to crushing its life out.

SCHOOL BOARD AGAIN BORROWS.

Secures a Loan of $15,000 from the Third National Bank.

The board of control is again on the borrow. Yesterday arrangements were completed for the loan of $15,000 from the Third National bank. This amount will be applied to the payment of the overdue bonding orders. In the recent bond issue provision was made to pay off $5,000 of this indebtedness, orders to that amount demanding immediate settlement. It was thought that the tax collections would come in before the other $10,000 would be due, but the delay in the assessment overthrew all calculations and sooner than have the board's credit called into question the loan was decided upon.

The general accounts will have to stand until the tax collectors make their returns. Last year when the board was confronted with a similar condition of affairs City Treasurer Boland helped it out of its dilemma by

OLCHEFSKIS AGAIN ARRESTED.

A Sufferer from the Explosion Charges Them with Perjury.

Leon F. Olchefski, who is accused of causing the dangerous South Side explosion, and his wife, Helena, were arrested yesterday at the instance of Michael J. O'Hara for perjury. The crime is alleged to have been committed during the trial of a civil case before Alderman Millar last February. The defendants swore that Olchefski's brother was not working for him at the time. O'Hara has since learned, he alleges, and says he will be able to prove that they swore falsely. Detective Will F. Clifford arrested the Olchefskis at their boarding house at upper Lackawanna avenue. They gave bail for a hearing at 2 o'clock this afternoon before Alderman Millar.

O'Hara, the prosecutor, lived to the south of the Olchefski home at the time of the explosion. His home was destroyed and he and his family had a narrow escape from death.
