BOOTBLACK THIEF WAS CAUGHT.

The $52 Not in His Possession When He Was Arrested. Kelley, the bootblack, who so sleekly took $52 from Henry Klotz's pocket while the latter was askep in Lohmann's Lacks wanna avenue hotel, was arrested yesterday afternoon and in default of $500 ball was committed to the county jail by Alderman Millar. Klotz himself made the arrest. It was rumored that Kelley had gone to New York city. Klotz learned that the boy was in the city and after a long chase located him at Nay Aug park. He took him to the central police station and handed him over to Chief Robling.

Kelley did not have a cent of money on his person. He is not 14 years old, but at numerous times has been charged with petty crimes. Three weeks ago he stole goods of much value from a Penn avenue jewelry store, The jewelry was recovered, however, and Kelley allowed to go. He will not tell what he did with the money in the present case, although he admits his

Several Local Wheelmen to Attend

the L. A. W. Gathering. The Scranton membership in the League of American Wheelmen will be well represented at the big meet in Philadelphia week after next. There will be four regular delegates from the city besides a large number of unofficial members. The delegates are: AGONIZING DEATH John J. Van Nort and Dolph B. Atherton, of the Scranton Bicycle club; Charles Carr, of the Green Ridge Wheelmen, and R. J. Beamish, of the resentative-at-large.

Others who will attend are: W. F. Boyle, Crown Price, Fred Beers, Frank and T. Leonard, Richard Henwood, C. A. Godfrey, B. P. Connelly, Charles Krege, H. J. Wightman.

R. J. Beamish will present a report of the local status of the league here, and also make some mention of our proposed bicycle ordinance. The whole party will, in all likelihood, make the trip by wheel, leaving here early Sunday morning,

WILKES-BARRE GREED.

Is Likely to Turn Dollars Scrantonward During the State Firemen's Convention.

The greediness of Wilkes-Barre botel proprietors is likely to turn a great many dollars to Scranton during the state firemen's convention in the former city from Oct. 5 to Oct. 8 inclusive. The leading hotel of the town has raised its rate to firemen to $3.50 from the regular commercial price of $2.50 per day and the other Wilkes-Barre hotels have advanced their prices in proportion. To overcome this injustice the Scranton Volunteer Firemen's asociation has arranged a 50-cent excursion rate between this city and and it is certain that hundreds of delerates will make Scranton their headquarters at that time. The 50-cent tickets will be over the Oclaware and Hudson road and will and barked piteously. When water read from Scranton to Wilkes-Barre met his eye the boy shrank from it in read from Scranton to Wilkes-Barre and return, but they will be in coupon form and may be used in either direction on the regular or special trains.

At Reading in 1895 there were about 17,000 firemen-delegates present and a very large number were at Johnstown last year. It is estimated that at least 15,000 strangers, firemen, and possibly 20,000, will be in Wilkes-Barre next October. The Wilkes-Barre hotels realize that the entire hotel, eating house and boarding house capacity of that city would not begin to accommodate so large a number of strangers and the increase in the commercial rate is the result.

Arrangements have been made with this city's big Hotel Jermyn for the accommodation of delegates at the regular commercial rates of $2.50, $2.00 and $3.50 per day with deductions where no vening meal is served, and negotiations are under way for the same concessions at other Scranton hotels. It is estimated that the Scranon hotel accommodations exceed those of Wiikes-Barre by one-half, and better accommodations at that, and it is believed that the cheap railroad excursion rate and hotel rates will attract hundreds of delegates to this

FINE FACILITIES.

The railroad tickets are to be good on all regular trains and on special trains, the last of which will leave Wilkes-Barre at 12 o'clock each night. This will give delegates the utmost facility for spending the night comfortably and in quiet and without being subjected to the greed of Wilkes-Barre hotel proprietors. There is an-other consideration besides cheaper The delegates who make Scranrates. ton their headquarters will escape the crowding and other inconveniences which always attend conventions of this kind.

There is a particular fact of interest to Scranton attached to the approaching convention. An effort is being made to have Chief Hickey, of the Scranton fire department, and his board of engineers choose Oct. 8 for the day of this city's annual firemen's parade and inspection. The date falls on Friday, the last day of the state convention at Wilkes-Barre, and, if selected for a Scranton blow-out, would attract great number of delegates. It is thought that possibly from 20 to 30 ompanies from all sections of the state yould participate in the Scranton parade. If the date of Oct. 8 is selected arrangements will be made with the Delaware and Hudson company to sell 50cent excursion tickets reading "Wilkes-Barre to Scranton and return."

So it appears that this city will probably in many respects cut quite a figure in the good fortune of the sister

Young Coles Was Bitten by a Hound

Pup Last March .- Other Members of the Family Who were Bitten at That Time Saw the Boy Die Last Night .- Three Men Necessary to Re-

After many hours' endurance of one f the worst agonles known to human suffering - hydrophobia - 16-year-old Jesse Coles, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Coles, of Leggetts street, died at 11 o'clock last night. While he was dying the unfortunate boy snapped and snarled and struggled to free his limbs from the grasp of three men, who held him to the bed. Around him were his father and mother, and the other members of the family, three of whom had also been bitten by the same dog that caused the death of Jesse Coles. The wound was inflicted last March by a young hound, a pup and a household pet. Young Cole's wound was upon the right hand. It was not of dangerous appearance, although it was known at the time that the hound showed symptoms of hydrophobia, The three other members of the family were bitten the same day.

The wound on young Cole's hand healed and nothing more was thought of it until Thursday morning when Mrs. Cloe noticed a peculiar look on her son's face. His eyes glared with a strange light; his mind seemed to waver, and he complained of headache. Still it was not thought necesgary to summon a physician.

PHYSICIAN SUMMONED. At 4 o'clock yesterday morning the family was awakened by the groans of Jesse. He was in bed and when Mrs. Coles reached the lad he was restlessly tossing about and meaning. His lips were immediately wet. Dr. Bessey was called in. The physician immediately announced the case to be hydrophobia Dr. Lackey and Dr. McGreavy were summoned and the three physicians did all that was in their power to baffle Wilkes-Burre during the convention the disease, and afterward, when death was certain, to alleviate the boy's suffering. The torture was terrible. The boy snapped at his friends and during the latter hours frothed at the mouth

The physicians have now turned their attention in an effort to prevent the appearance of the disease in the other members. Grave fears are expressed, as the strain on the death watchers nay prove a goad to the disease.

AN UNPARALLELED DISPLAY. Buffalo Bill and His Rough Riders of the World. It is an aggregation of the peculiar and distinct representatives of the romantic and picturesque classes of humanity. Real Indians, red-skin warriors will ride side by side with real scouts of actual Indian warfare. The series of spectacles presented in the Wild West show form a living panorama, reproducing the romances of life in the ploneer past.

The auditor of an imaginative spirit can conceive himself an actual witness of the thrilling events which strongly mark the history of the march of civ ilization in the far West. Indians, brilliantly colored and richly feathered, dash across the arena on their swift and bardy ponies, repeating their war-whoops. Cowboys and Vaqueros sweep to and fro, lasso and shoot and ride as they only can. The Wild West show, in short, enables the spectator to clearly realize those scenes and characters in the incessant war-fare between white and redskin in the early days. Buffalo Bill, the most gallant cavalier of all of them, has a most striking personality. He is a splendid specimen of a handsome, vig-or us and skillful Anglo-Saxor who has emerged with honor and glory from the most trying tests possible for man to endure. The representations and incidents of Indian and Cowbey life lead up to the equally stirring attractions of the congress of rough riders of the world and the great International Martial alhance, which form an important adjunc: to the Wild West exhibition Among the rough riders are the Gauchos from the Argentino Republic, Cossacks from the Russian steppes, Bedoutn Arabs from the desert of Africa. and the Vaquero of Mexico. In the display of trained military achieve ment will appear detachments from the crack regiments of Germany, Russia, England and both the cavalry and artillery of the United States, making the entertainment the grandest combination of horse and horsemanship and all that pertains thereto possible to conceive. This great aggregation will appear

A GHASTLY FIND

Roaring Brook Dam. DROWNED BENEATH THE FALLS

Dennis Crane's Arm Caught Between Logs When He Fell from the Dam and He Was Held as in a Vice to Meet a Terrible Death--His Mother a Poor Woman with Three Children. Coroner Longstreet Looks Into you will find scores of them here equally as the Case.

A ghastly find was made by a party of boys while bathing in the Roaring Brook dam, on the South Side, early last evening. One of the boys in div ing off the dam came in contact with a human body. It was with difficulty brought to the surface and found to be the remains of Dennis Crane, 10 years of age, one of the four children of Mrs. Kate Crane, a poor woman, of 405 South Washington avenue. Patrick Ruddy, Owen Malia, James Gallagher and James Jones were the lads who found the body. Ruddy discovered its presence under the falls at the center of the dam and several feet beneath the surface. He communicated his gruesome find to his companions and all four immediately began an effort to recover the body.

Their task was not easy. One arm was tightly wedged between two logs below where the water tumbles over the dam. After a few moments of tugging the arm was freed from the vice of death and the body towed to the shore, where it was recognized as that of young Crane.

The little fellow had been missing from his home, only a block away. since noon. At 3 o'clock he had asked a younger boy, named Williams, to go in swimming. The latter declined. That was the last seen of the Crane boy alive. It is presumed he entered the water about that time only to meet his death a few moments later.

SLIPPED AND FELL

The water is not a foot deep where it pours over the edge of the dam into the pool below, but it rushes swiftly. Crane was probably walking along the top of the dam and slipped, falling beneath the falls, where his arm was wedged by the force of his descent between the two logs. There he was clutched in a cruel grip until death ended his agonizing struggles for release. The dam is in one of the most thickly populated sections of the South Side and is a favorite swimming resort for the boys of the neighborhood. They usually choose the evening hours for the sport, owing to the proximity of a arge number of dwellings.

Young Crane was an inmate of St. Patrick's orphanage until the first of he month, when his mother, whose husband has left her, secured his release. She intended to have him enjoy the Fourth of July and then return him to the orphanage. The institution was full when she tried to secure his re-admission, two weeks ago. She has three other children, two girls and a boy, aged 11, 9 and 5 years.

preachers, among whom were his Coroner Longstreet was notified of brothers, Gwyliam and Thomas, and the drowning early in the evening. He crowd of morbidly curious people which was covered with a blanket. The coroner gave Undertaker Cusick permission to remove the remains and impanneled the following jury: L. B. Duhigg, J. W. Brown, Bernard Thies, D. T. Boland, Daniel Gelbert and Patrick Cusick. They will meet at the coroner's office this evening at 8 o'clock.
