DR. HILL & SON FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

He is a prominent hardware merchant of this city, and like a good many other men, he hasn't felt particularly delighted with the progress of business for the past few months. The other day he came home to lunch and found his wife rejoicing over the acquisition of a tiny gas stove.

"Such a bargain, dear," were her words of greeting, "and such a sweet, little stove as it is!" Then as her husband seemed to regard the article in question with some suspicion, she hastened to explair:

"You see it's this way. The man was ro nice to my. He said he was going to give away two stoves on our street, as he was bound to introduce them here, and decided that I was to have one of the two. Wasn't it kind of

"H'm," sniffed her husband rather skeptically, I s'pose he threw in the tuling and fixtures." 'No-o-o, he didn't." replied his wife

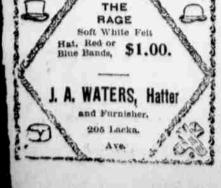

"You see he couldn't afford to do that. and give away the stove too. I paid him $1.75 for the things that belong to "Ob, you did. Well we sell such gas stoves down at our store for consider. ably less than $1.75, fixtures and all," remarked the husband, dismally, as he thought of the women on that street who were probably at that moment feeling very much pleased over the "gift of a gas stove." If you want to read a good short story, and like Octave Thanet's chronfoles of the sheriff, try her latest effort, "The Voice of Nature." Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lynde are receiving congratulations over the birth of a little girl-a "Sunday daughter," sure to be a child of good fortune. Dr. W. H. Pearce was warmly welcomed yesterday at Eim Park church. The weather was intolerably murky and oppressive, but every member of the congregation in the city semed to be present, and not a few came in from near-by resorts on purpose to hear the former pastor, so closely identified with the history of that edifice, Oddly enough the air of Wilkes-Barre seems to agree with him and his wife, who is likewise so dearly loved in this city, and both appear to be in better health than when here. Dr. and Mrs. Pearce are being entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Connell.

Wile STREPT

. . . The summer season at Lake Winola is just beginning to reach its height. Of the seventy-three cottages which encroach upon the edge of the pretty sheet of water all but one is occupied At the Winola house the guests have begun to arrive in the usual large numbers and Colonel C. E. Frear, the proprietor, is making arrangements the entertainment of a large party of Philadelphia people who will come this week. There are at present at the hotel several Philadelphians and a large number from Brooklyn, Trenton, and other cities. The lake is just as pretty a spot as ever. In fact every year adds to its beauty. Colonel Frear has done much to beautify the appearance of his hotel among the trees. Flowers have been placed about the park and along the iron fence, recently built, which hedges in the paths twining flowers are springing up. Among the contemplated improvements about the hotel is electric lighting. Colonel Frear thinks that a row of incandescent lights around the roof of the piazza would add to the beauty of his hotel from a lake view.

The Columbia Construction company eems to have troubles of its own as well as has the dweller along Mulberry street. However, if one is to judge by the all-night marches of the teams hauling crushed stone to and from the quarries, something is to be accomlished. One possible interference has en avoided this week, and that is he heavy hand of Brother Dony and the Sabbath Observance union, for the teaming stopped promptly at 12 o'clock Saturday night. This is about the only difficulty not yet experienced by the company that received the doubtful advantage of having a chance to pave Mulberry street.

DOES HE WANT A WIFE?

New York Herald Says So of a Country Gentleman Known in Scranton.

Under the heading "His Fortune For Good Housekeeper," the New York Herald in yesterday's edition publishes an interesting article concerning the forts of Former Postmaster O. F. Gunther, of Fleetville, Pa., to secure a nousekeeper "who," says the Herald, "if she suits him, will inherit money, houses, lands, horses and carriages." The Herald story starts out in this ost Heraldic style; & McNell's hetel, Washington and Vesey.

The Herald man goes on to say that Mr. Gunther, who is well known in Scranton, inserted the above advertisement in last Friday's Herald. He is sure that what Mr. Gunther really wants is "not a housekeeper but a wife." The way the story tells of his wealth, "reputed to be $50,000," is amusing. Mr. Gunther is not penniless but he either imposed upon the gullible Herald man or the latter imposed upon the reading public, so Mr. Gunther's friends say.

Howbeit the Herald gives a reputed interview with Mr. Gunther, in which the old gentleman says:

MANY APPLICANTS.

I want a sensible woman, past mi.!die age, who can appreciate a good nome when she gets it. I have retired from bus. iness now. I own a fine house and a hun-dred acres of land at Benton Center, not far from Scranton. I have some very fast horses, some stylish turnouts and my place is comfortably furnished. But my wife died five years ago. I am an old mar and I need somebody to care for me—a woman who can keep a house in order and cook well, for I have sound teeth, a fine appetite and I like good eating.

I have had all sorts of applicants for the place today-young, middle aged and old. Most of them did not stay long when I teld them I would only pay $4 a month, but, he added, impressively, they were silly, for the woman I take will, if she suits me, come into my fortune when I

The Herald in all seriousness tells now Mr. Gunther won his wealth as a barber at Carbondale and afterward as a business man at Fleetville. It is also stated that Mr. Gunther has selected a housekeeper-"forty-five years old. tall, with brown hair, thinly streaked with gray." She has a sharp nose and wears eyeglasses. Mr. Gunther, it is said, will start for home today and will send a check for the transportation of his new helpmeet.

The boys who had recovered the body from the water were present at the inquest and told their story as related in Saturday's Tribune. This being the only tangible evidence of the toy's death, the jury returned the following verdict. "We, the undersigned jurors, find that Dennis Crane came to his death by accidental drowning while bathing in Roaring Brook. Signed, Daniel Gelbert, Lawrence B. Duhlgs, Patrick Cusick, John Brown, D. F. Boland and B. Thees,"

TWO DESPONDENTS ATTEMPT SUICIDE

Mrs. Evan Evans, of the West Side, Hangs Herself and Dies.

DANIEL DIMLER'S DESPERATE ACT

Failing to Secure a Revolver or a Razor, He Jabs a Small Pen Knife Into His Throat and Falls Unconscious. Whiskey and No Occupation Made Him Despondent -- Mrs. Evans Mourned the Loss of Her Husband.

Two persons attempted to commit suicide in the city yesterday; one, an aged and despondent West Side lady, succeeded in strangling herself to death with a rope at 11 o'clock last night, the other, a South Side man, driven to inthroat with a penknife and is now in the Lackawanna hospital.

Death entered the household of a West Side family late last night in a sad and startling manner. Aged Mrs Elizabeth Evans, of North Main avenue, without the slightest hint to her children, hanged herself after having apparently prepared for retirement for the night.

She was discovered about 11 o'clock limb. by her son, John Hundon, a dispatcher of the Scranton Railway company. The only cause her son could assign was that she being broken hearted over the recent death of her husband became despondent and while alone determined upon the act. Mr. Hundon and his family occupied the home with the mother and had left her with the grandchildren while the parents made a call upon Mrs. John J. Davis, a sick sister-in-law. Mr. Hundon left his wife at her sister's and came to Scranton, returning home about 10.45.

In passing his mother's door Mr. Hundon called out "good night," as was his custom. This time he received no response. He succeeded in opening the door to the extent of a few inches. Inserting his arm his worst fears were realized by feeling a body leaning egainst the door. Mrs. Evans had hung herself with a short piece of clothesline fastened to a hook on the door. She was attired in her night gown and to all appearances had been first in bed, getting up after-wards and doing the rash deed.

BEYOND MEDICAL AID. Dr. J. J. Roberts was called in but the woman was past help. Coroner Longstreet being out of town Pennypacker, assistant coroner, empanelled the following jury: J. E. Kern, G. A. Williams, D. Edward Vail, C. E. House, John H. Reynolds and John H. Jones. The inquest will be held Friday evening in Dr. Longstreet's

The deceased was borne in Rhymney, South Wales, in 1836, and was over 61 years of age. She came to the West Side with her husband in October, 1879. She was married a second time. Her second husband was burted about nine months ago, and she has never ceased mourn his loss. Two sons, John Hundon and Walter Evans are employed by the Scranton Traction company. The latter is a conductor on the Providence line.

one-legged, middle-aged man, attempted to end his life at 4.15 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home, 525 Cedar avenue. Whiskey and its results brought on Dimler's determination.

He worked as a moulder in the Dela-WANTED-A respectable, well educated, middle aged lady as housekeeper; must have references. O. F. G., room 85, Smith back home he stumbled and fell, injuring his stump leg. Since that time Dimler has not worked and has numbed his sorrows with a flood of whiskey.

To make matters worse, Dimler's wife is visiting out west. She left five weeks ago and Dimler has been compelled to look after the five children as best he could. This was easy when he had work, but when the accident came and he took to drink Dimler couldn't stand the strain, so for the past two days he has threatened suicide. Saturday he said to William Zang, who lives in the same building as Dimler, on Cedar avenue, says he: "Zang, I'm going to end my troubles; you know my wife is coming back, from the west tonight and I want you to take care of the children till she gets here, understand?" "All right," said Zang, thinking that the talk was actuated by whiskey; "lay down and sober up." Dimler did expeet his wife Saturday night, and the fact that she didn't come possibly aug-umented his determination.

HE WAS DETERMINED. At any rate yesterday afternoon he lemanded his razor and revolver from his eldest daughter, Kate. She refused to surrender them, and went downstairs to tell Mr. Zang of her father's "You go up," said Zang, "and get the weapons and bring them to me."

The girl returned upstairs again and the next thing Mr. Zang heard was her screams. He rushed upstairs and found Dimler stretched on the floor with blood running from a wound in On the floor near his hand was a small pen knife with which he had inflicted the wound. Dimler was uncon-Patrolman Sartor was near by at the time, and was called in. Dimler, hour afterward, was removed to the Lackawanna hospital. The wound is quite deep, nearly sevcring the wind pipe. Dimler will recover. His wife had not returned from the west last night, and the children are being taken care of by a relative in

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

Insane Son Assaults His Father with Razor and Revolver.

The neighbors of E. E. Pittinger, of Dalton, were startled on Friday evening by loud cries and a revolver shot which came from his house. Upon some of the men rushing there they were confronted. with the strange sight of a young man trying to shoot his own father. The boy was selzed and securely bound.

The father, almost in a state of ex-haustion, told how shortly before his boy had suddenly become insane and made an attempt to cut him with a razor. After a short struggle Pittinger got possession of the razor, though getting badly cut about his hands and arms. The insane son then drew the revolver, and though he had promptly knocked him down with a chair one shot, which went wide, had been fired. A struggle for supremacy ensued which probably would have resulted fatally but for the appearance of aid. The young man had, previously, cated no change in reason and as he was a well-behaved boy, the case is the more deplorable. He was removed to the Hillside home.

sanity from heavy drinking, cut his She Had One Artificial Leg and She Lost It While Riding a Bicycle.

> What is given in the following acount is true in every particular, as fifty or sixty Taylor people can testify to. It comes from Taylor and it concerns a young lady who unfortunately has to go through life on an artificial calamity whereby science was called in to supply a deficiency in nature happened several years ago on one of the local railroads. The young lady's friends, by a series of collections, secured enough money to procure and present to her a limb of the latest fashion and she has worn it since and worn it with credit to her friends. So expert did the young lady become that a few weeks ago she de cided to retain her place in this fin de siecle procession by purchasing a bicycle. She not only decided, but she did it; and what's more, she learned to ride in a remarkably short time. THE TALK OF TAYLOR.

It appeared miraculous to those who knew the young woman's sad history to see her enjoying a spin on a bicycle as it certainly was miraculous. She ode gracefully and, to outward appearances, comfortably. For weeks the unusual accomplishment has been the talk of Taylor, where the young lady

A catastrophe happened on a recent night. And again the fact of the verity of this report must be emphasized The young lady was speeding along one of the principal thoroughfares of Taylor when suddenly she felt the force on the left pedal melt away and she heard an ominous thud as something was left behind and struck the road. She was going at a pretty fair rate of speed and could not easily bring the bicycle under control, as she was half incapacitated. Finally, however, after a struggle with the right pedal the wheel was brought to a standstill and the rider managed to seat herself on the curbstone, where she waited for some one to chance by. It was in the night time, remember, and of course was dark.

The predicament was sad, to say the After a ten-minute wait some east. one did chance along and to him the young lady explained the embarrassing situation and asked his assistance in restoring herself to her erstwille means of locomotion. A lantern was borrowed from a house near by and the search

Many people stopped to either express ondolence to the young woman on the curbstone or to assist in the restoraion process which was going on on the fusty road. A street car in passing lent its light to the good work and some of the passengers got off at that point to join the humane party. The nomentum of the wheel after the accident had carried the young lady to an uncertain distance; she could only guess as to the probable location.

SEARCHED TWO HOURS. As an actual fact two hours passed sefore success crowned the efforts of the searchers and a young man restored to her her own. She then continued homeward,
