Then they drove on to Heart lake and stayed there over night. Tuesday morning, being satisfied that they had passed the wheelmen at some place where they had stopped for the night, they drove toward home, and soon met the 'cvellsts, who were just starting out for another day's spin. #### TO BOIL A POTATO.

Even This Prosaic Culinary Work Has a Right and Wrong Way.

From the Philadelphia Times. Even in so simple a matter as the coiling of a potato there is a right and a wrong way, which followed out lead to results as adverse as the methods of preparation. The careless cook, after process which she calls "parin" "during which she gouges and slashes and robs the poor esculent of much of its nutritious elements-puts it in a kettle of cold water, because that is handiest, sets it over the fire and leaves it to chance whether it boils dry and escapes from its martyrdom a seared and smoky accessory of dinner or cooks until a sodder, pasty mess of fragments that would tax the somewhat vitiated taste of a mammiferous quad-uped of the genus capra. That, needless to say, is the wrong way and this is the right. Pare the potatoes with a sharp vegetable knife, just as thin as possible, for that part of the tuber lying close to the skin is richest in mineral salts, and put each potato as peeled into a pan of cold water to prevent discoloration. Have ready, meanwhile, a kettle of boiling water, and when the peeling process is complete take the potatoes from the cold water, and covering them with boiling salted water, set them or the range, covered, to boil. Twenty minutes will usually suffice, but to test them use a skewer or fork, and when they can be pierced easily remove at once from the fire, pour off all the water, and set them on the back of the range, uncovered, to steam dry, assisting that process occassionally by a slight shaking of the kettle.

If one asks the reason why potatoes should always be cooked in boiling water, try the following experiment for proof: Take two cups,in each of which has been put a teaspoonful of ordinary starch. Pour over one a quarter of a cupful of boiling water and over the other the same quantity of cold water and observe the result. The one over which the bolling water was poured stays in shape, a compact mass, while the one with the cold water dissolves into a soft paste. The potato is largely composed of starch, and from this trial any one may draw his own conclusions. If you wish a pulpy, watery potato, use cold water, but if a dry, mealy, snowy ball that would delight the heart of Epicurus himself, always use boiling water. To serve boiled potato mashed, add to every quart of the mashed potato two tablespoonfuls of butter, a teaspoonful of salt, one-half of a saltspoonful of pepper, and hot cream or milk to moisten. Then beat until light. white, and creamy, and serve piled lightly on a dish, but never packed down and smoothed over, as was the wont of our grandmothers.

Dr. Edward P. Davis by his attractive subject, "The New Woman," gathered a large and interested audience yesterday afternoon at the Acorn club, 1424 Walnut street, says the Philadelphia Times. The lecturer did not long leave his audience in the dark as to how he regarded his subject. He is unqualifiedly in favor of the up-to-date, progressive woman.

"The new woman has physical advantages her sister of an older generation never had," he said, "and by using them she has prolonged her life by years. Then she has revolutionized cooking, and done more good to humanity than a hundred medical colleges. She has let the soup pot take the place of the frying pan, and dyspeptics are disappearing. She takes exercise, and she wears loose clothing, too, if she is a really sensible new woman." The doctor did not think that the bars of delicacy had been let down Editor W. H. Capwell, of the Dallas by this exercising, but thought that if anything woman now had greater sensibility than her older, more squeamish, but not more delicate sister of the last generation.

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review. New York, July 27,-The anthracite coal shares advanced considerably on buying by interests always identified in the movements of the coal stocks. Otherwise the market sustained slight losses and closed steady. Local speculators liquidated considerably today but commission house purchases about equalized such sales, rendering the market extremely irregular. The liquidation in industrial stocks rather unsettled the list. The gilt-edged securities declined considerably. Professional traders hammered the grangers, but pool buying subsequently caused a practically complete rally.

The total sales of the day were 393,450 shares.
