TWO FOR THE STARS.

Wilkes-Barre's Ragged Fielding in the First --- Poor Pitching in the Secand Was the Factor.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 29.—The Stars won two games from Wilkes-Barre today. In the first game the visitors had Johnson in the box and he pitched a good game, but his support was ranged. In the second, Kissinger pitched a good game, but Keenan was an easy mark for the home team, retiring in the eighth inning in favor of Oddwell, who did much better. Scores

SHOULD TEST THEIR EYES. Ball Players May Ruin Their Optics

by Facing the Sun. Terre Haute, July 29,-When Second Baseman Morrison, of the local club, was saying good-by to President Schmidt, of the bankrupt company, which owned the club, he remarked that, for some reason, he could not tell what, he had been unable to "get his eye on the ball."

President Schmidt, who is an optician, jestingly told him that he ought to have his eyes examined, and Morrison consenting, the examination was It was found that the eye which had been most exposed to the sun while playing second base on the home grounds was badly strained.

President Schmidt now says the ball players ought to have their eyes examined frequently, because it may often be the case when they are "off in their batting" that there is a derangement of the nerves or muscles which control the focus, which, not being as quick as it should be, necessarily has an effeet on the ability of the batter to hit the ball.

BERNSTEIN WINS FROM FRED WRIGHT

They Boxed Twenty Rounds in Music Hall Last Night.

NEW YORKER FORCED THE FIGHTING

Wright Was on the Defensive at All Stages of the Game, but Neither Man Showed Any Punishment -- An Audience of "Quality" Saw the Bont -- Prospects of Another Bout Next Month.

Joe Bernstein, of New York, defeated Fred Wright, of Peabody, Mass., in the 20-round lightweight boxing contest held at Music hall last night under the direction of the American Sporting club. It was one of the best exhibitions of scientific boxing ever seen in Scranton, and the largest respectable gathering of men assembled at an event in the fistic line witnessed it When the twentieth round was ended there was not, and should not have been, a dissatisfied person in the hall. There was not a drop of blood spilled on either side, and from start to finish not the least brutality was introduced into the ring.

Something in a special way might be said of the character of the men who were present. The customary sporting hanger-en with loud-cheeked shirt, loud-patterned garments, and general untained look, was noticeably absent and the better element substituted in his stead. Music hall has a seating capacity of 800, and nearly that many were present. Well known profession-al men, officeholders, and industrious itizens constituted a large proportion of the audience. Now and again the good order was broken by the howl of some fellow with a rooster-fighting intenation in his voice who wanted gore. He quickly subsided, however,

THE OFFICIALS.

It was ten minutes after 10 o'clock when the contest between Bernstein and Wright began. Pat Murphy was greed upon as referee. Al. Rose, the hatter, was timekeeper in Bernstein's interests; Ed. Coleman performed a similar function for Wright; and John T. Brown was delegated by the club to watch the flight of the minutes.

Bernstein was the first to appear. He was clad in a bathrobe of scarlet and gray stripes, and upon entering the ring selected the corner on the front of the stage. In this corner he was handled when he boxed twenty rounds out victorious also. He appeared cool and confident. His manager, Charley negotiations between Germany and other Horan, followed later with buckets, towels, and bottles. "Kid" Brown, the colored boxer, and Larry Ketrick were the others who performed offices in Bernstein's corner.

Wright appeared 10 minutes later, accompanied by his trainer, Jim Rey-solds. He was supplied with the paraand Jack Tighe were also in Wright's corner. After a few minutes of preliminary work, adjusting the gloves, which were the regulation exhibition size, time was called and the battle

It would be hard to say which of the two was in the better condition. Bernstein's flesh was the color of wax and his muscles were like ropes. He was in perfect trim, Not less physically groomed was Wright. His muscles were hardened and there was no fat on his body. His tlesh had a livelier color Wright had a look as if his left eye said they were worth $100,000. was asleep, and in the beginning of the first round the New Yorker made a leap forward and planted his left glove

Bernstein's style of fighting consisted of a catlike spring upon his tiptoes and a lead with his left glove for the face, usually the side on which was located the eye with the far-away look, Occasionally Bernstein varied his tacties by employing his right with a swinging uppercut, but the greater part of his work was done with the left all through.

Wright kept hugging his corner and the one opposite it, and contented himself with blocking Bernstein's fieline springs. Occasionally he lunged forward with a vicious left or a right cross-arm swing, but he didn't do this often, but kept on the defensive.

Up to the tenth round Bernstein did all the leading. The eleventh round and hugged, opened with a different aspect. Wright She and her husband thought then, and opened with a different aspect. Wright began getting away from his own coalshed and branched into the center of the ring. He did a little damage to the New Yorker in this round but not enough to make a showing. He landed two hard raps that made Bernstein sniffle. The ensuing three rounds were tame. In the fourteenth there was a rapid exchange for a few moments that brought forth the belief that there would be a Garrison wind-up. The hardest blow of the fight as it appeared from outside the ropes was in the fifteenth when Bernstein sent a terrific swing on the jaw.

In the seventeenth round Bernstein landed his left glove twenty-eight times by actual count on Wright's face, but the blows, like all his blows, except the one in the fifteenth, lacked steam, and might come under the head of what John L. Sullivan designated vent away like a double team. The | Jim Corbett's blows at the Carson City

SKELLY'S ADVICE.

The men never once changed their tactics. Jack Skelly from the wings kept telling Wright to get into the fight and swing hard, but upon attempting to swing and falling short thereon, he evidently got discouraged and failed to swing again until the pening of the succeeding round. While t was a "beautiful" centest of scientime boxing and not a scintilla of brutalliy attended it, yet the spectators might have been better pleased with a little slugging at times by way of varying the monotony. Nevertheless, t was such an exhibition that will bring big crowds to future events under the auspices of the same club.

There were three preliminary fea tures, acrobatic work by Colleran and Campbell, the bootblacks, a four round bout between "Kid" Brown and John Kelley, of the South Side, and a fourround bout between John Tighe, the clever South Side lightweight, and "Jersey" Gordon, of Camden, N. J., Inte who has for several weeks been living in hopes of a match with Jim Judge. He alleged that he could whip Jim in ten rounds. Tighe, who is 25 pounds lighter din't begin to hit hard until the third round. Kelley struck Brown at his will, and the excuse the "Kid" gave was that he just completed term in confinement and is stiffened with rheumatism.

The American club will conduct another good boxing exhibition on Thursday evening, August 19, at Music hall, and the attraction will be a 20-round bout between probably Joe Gans, the famous colored featherweight, of New York, and an opponent who will give him a battle for all he is worth, probably Bobby Dobbs. If Gans can be secured, the attraction will be first class at any rate.

AN IMPORTANT MATCH.

McPartland and Everhart Are to Battle in New Orleans.

An important lightweight match is said to have been arranged between Kid McPartland and Jack Everhart, which is said to take place before the St. Bernard Athletic club, of New Orleans. Everhart in the meantime is on the Pacific coast, where he is soon to box Spider Kelly, thought to be quite an easy thing for him. Everhart and McPartland are about neck and neck for second place and should meet in a decisive contest to find a winner. The pair boxed twenty rounds last March at 136 pounds, but nothing was proved.

and.—New York Sun.
Gus Ruhlin, Billy Madden's latest ac-quisition in the heavy-weight class, will robably make his first appearance in the ast in a few weeks. Madden writes to be Illustrated News that he will star for New York by Sunday next.

Joe Cheynski will not move from his determination not to fight Kid McCoy at any weight under 1% pounds. Joe said to a reporter that it was useless for him to think of reducing below 185 pounds, as he would be too week. would be too weak. The fact that Tommy Ryan and Kid Mc-Coy are matched is hailed as good news by the sports in this vicinity. Ryan, af-ter he was whipped by McCoy as Mas-peth, declared that he was in poor shape,

Constantinople, July 29,-The demand of the German ambassador, Baron Saurama do Jeltsch, that a provision be inserted in the peace treaty between Greece and Turkey for European control of Greek handled when he loxed twenty rounds here last January with Danny Mc-other ambassadors. They consider that the table of the constant is not covered by their instructions, out victorious also. He appeared cool
