An Anecdote of President McKinley and a Washington Landlord.

om the Washington Post. Proprietor Burch, of the Ebbitt House, has run that hotel for many years, and has a large acquaintance among public men, and never fails to recognize them when they come to Washington, even though they may have been away for years. He has a good memory for dates, too, but he thinks that President McKinley beats him. The President boarded at the Ebbitt while in Congress, and went there when he came back to be inaugnrated President. The day before that event he sent for Mr. Burch and said: won the mile open in 2.07 2-5, beating "Burch, do you know what day this handicap professional was won by C.

BEASON'S POKER GAME.

President of the United States.

He Got Desperate and Almost Risked His Greatest Treasure.

From the New York Journal, The poker game was at its height. Beason had lost all his money, but he was burning with the gambling fever, and would not leave the table. He pledged his watch, a gift of his deceased father, for chips, and quickly lost them all. Then he laid on the table a ring which had been given him by a loving sister. The chips he received in exchange lasted just three minutes. For a moment he hesitated, his face flushed, and he started to leave; but, when he heard a sneering remark about his poker abilities, he uttered an oath,

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review.

New York, Aug. 12.-The volume of deal-ings on the Stock exchange came near the high water mark of last Monday's transactions footing up 743,000 shares as compared with 753,000 on Monday. It was a rampant bull market all through and the most striking feature of it was the assured touch which a number of long burled and almost forgotten stocks were buried and almost forgotten stocks were brought out to the light of day and a very noticeable degree of animation installed into them. Total sales were 732,500 shares. Furnished by WilLiJAM LiNN, AL-LEN & CO., stock brokers, Mears building, rooms 705-706.

Wild with excitement, he sprang to his feet and shouted: "I will do you fellows yet. I will keep up the game even if I have to risk-"

He stopped. His face became livid. He looked around like a caged beast, Then, making a rush for the door, he moaned: "Not that! Oh, heavens, I cannot risk that! No! No! No!" As he disappeared one of the players remarked: "Poor devil! I guess he was going to put up some keepsake from his mother." But such was not the case. For one awful moment Beason had been tempted to risk his bicycle.

DUE TO HIS WIFE.

It Was She That Made William White t'amous.

From the Clack-Book. Here is an interesting bit of gossip in reference to Will White's now famous editorial, "What's the matter with Kansas?' After writing the manuscript Mr.

White pigeon-holed it, thinking it a little too forcible even for the bewhiskered pops of his unique commonwealth; but Mr. White is fortunate in having a wife who is capable of managing his paper during his absences, and on one occasion, running short of editorial matter, she discovered the discarded sheets.

The next morning they appeared in print, and Mr. White returned to find himself famous.
