EGARDING golf playing in this country the New York

Tribune says: Although it has made such strides, some years must clapse before American players can hope to vie with their Caledonian rivals at the royal and ancient game. Golf pre-eminently re-quires the judgment, skill and force which only incessant practice can give, and here, as a rule, American players fail. But there are a number who are rapidly coming to the fore. The recent Shin-nessek burgets coming to the fore. The recent Shin-necock tournament brought out some cap-ifal play, and as the season advances the showing will become more and more creditable. Tyng, who won first place at Shinnecock, has especially distin-guished himself as an amateur of bril-liant qualities, and he is among the strongest candidates for the national championship. His form is thoroughly characteristic, seldom aggressive, but pos-negative a force and confidence that stamp sessing a force and confidence that stamp him at once as a master of the play. His victory at Shinnecock was the fifth that he has won in tournament play this sea Foxhall Keene, of the Rockaway Hunt club, is a new comer in golfing contests, but he has apparently set out to make as brilliant a reputation in them as he has done in other sports to which he has given his attention. The Shinnecock turn-ament marked his debut in open meet-ings, but judged by his success in it, he should be ranked with the leading exponents of the game in this part of the country. He reached the final round against a field of nearly seventy competitors, and was only defeated by Tyng after a close contest. Though lacking the finish of a seasoned player, he has a clever and forceful style that amply makes up for any lack of form. His ap-proach shots are marvellous in their ac-curacy, while his driving, though vari-able, is of a sort that betokens an unable, is of a soft that betokens an un-usual aptitude for the game. His sud-den rise from obscurity to prominence as a golfer makes him a central figure on the links just now, and his future play will be watched with the closest interest. W. G. W. G. Stewart is another crack whose prominence in recent tourneys has been noteworthy. Stewart has but recently come to this country from England, where at his home clubs, the Lytham and St. Anne's, he is rated at plus two. At Shinnecock he won the gold medal for the best gross score. crity. Of the younger golfers, S. D. Bowers, of the Otsego club, of Cooperstown, has held an enviable place this season. His natural aptitude for the game coupled with a fine physique and keen eye have won him a number of important contests. He is a player who combines freedom of He is a player who combines freedom of style with an exceedingly accurate and aggressive driving stroke, and his form, while often uncertain, never lacks the Interest of finished play. Another of the well-known golfers is James Park, the captain of the Richmond County Golf club's team, and a player who has been a familiar figure on the links for years. Park met Tyng in the semi-final at Shinnecock and was badly outclassed. In fact he has not been show-ing his best form lately. He is likely to come overanxious under the trying or deal of an important match, and this fact has often resulted in placing him in a much poorer light than he deserves. He is a brilliant player at times and knows the game in every detail. H. P. Toler, the Baltusrol champion: De Lancey Nicell of the Backway Hunt side

REV. JOHN R. DAVIS, who preached last Sunday in the First Presbyterian church. is an illustration of what may be done with energy and perseverance. In early years he worked in the car shops in this city and struggled hard indeed to lay the founda-gled hard indeed to lay the foundations of hiseducation. Later he worked his way through college, where his scholastic ability was recognized. It was while stationed at Tyrone that he delivered his sermons at Ocean Grove which attracted the attention of a church committee from Fourth avenue, New York. To Mr. Davis' surprise he was invited to that pulpit to follow Dr. Howard Crosby. It did not take him a protracted period of time to dccide as to what he should do. His answer was an acceptance and almost immediately he went to his new post which he has since been filling at a large salary and with great satisfaction to the congregation. Oddly enough it was a church in Hyde Park that just previous to the call to New York was considering its shepherdless condition. When the name of Mr. Davis was suggested, it was thought by some that he was scarcely a "big enough a man" to fill that pulpit so he was not invited to serve that congregation.

Rev. J. E. Price, D. D., will occupy the pulpit at Elm Park church tomorrow. If so many members of the congregation were not absent from the city, the large auditorium could not contain the audience that would gather to hear one of the most popular and scholarly pastors of the church. Dr. Price is busy this summer in his capacity of dean of the summer schoool at Ocean Grove, where he is a great favorite. As Rev. Mr. Bell will leave the city to take up work in his new field, the coming week, this will be the last opportunity his many friends will have to hear him in this city. A cordial in-vitation is extended to all to come to the Washburn street Presbyterian church.

The Rev. C. H. Payne, D. D., LL. D., of New York, for many years president of the Ohio Wesleyan university and now secretary of the board of education of the Methodist church, will occupy the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church tomorrow morning. Dr. Payne stands in the front rank of pulpit orators and is widely known as a preacher of great force and earnestness.

Underfed Ones Cannot Stand the Heat.

Many Sad Mothers Learn by Bitter Experience.

Wrong Food at Bottom of Cholera Infantum.

Diarrhœa Should Never Be Allowed to Run On.

Put the Child at Once on Diet of Lactated Food.

With cholera infantum raging as it is East and West this summer, it is appalling to any one who understands the subject to see the carelessness of parents and nurses in the matter of infant feeding.

It is not enough to merely select a pure nourishing food. It must be acceptable to the delicate, weakened stomach of the little one-high temperature makes it difficult for young children to digest only the most easily assimilable food without irritating their intestines into diarrhoea-food must be taken in sufficient quantities, and with relish to keep the child strong, well and growing.

Lactated food is made with the express intention of forming a reliable infant food and a perfect substitute for healthy mother's milk. An infant likes it. Fretful, peevish bables grow strong, ruddy and healthy on it. It has the unusual virtue of inducing delicate bables to take an abundance of nourishment when other foods disagree with them, and when retarded growth, feebleness and intestinal irritation threaten the poorly-fed child.

Mothers and nurses who have used lactated food all agree that it best supplies the materials for baby's rapid growth and development. It is prepared with a regard to purity, cleanliness and freedom from any possible source of contagion that merits all the praise that has been so lavishly bestowed upon it by parents and physi-

Lactated food has tided thousands of It should be in the hands of every parent. The ill-effects of the intense August heat are far-reaching. Many little ones droop and pine, without appetite and strength. Their usual diet falls to nourish, or more often is wholly rejected. In this weakened condition the mistake of overfeeding, that anxious parents too often fall into, instead of nourishing the little ones, only brings on diarrhoea. And diarrhoea, with the temperature high up, results in cholera infantum. The most carefully, intelligently guarded children are those fed on lactated food. Bables, when weaning, do not throw it up. Funy ones show a decided and immediate gain. Their steady, healthy growth is due to this rich nutritive that is relished even in
