BEFORE BREAKFAST.

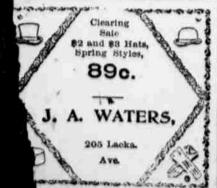

Scranton young man of a thoughtful turn of mind improved his time the other evening while the barber was trimming his hair in counting the number of "clips" given by the shears. The total was 1014; and yet some wives are suspicious as to where their husbands spend their evenings, and are skeptical about barber shops and the lodge and wonder that they are too tired to talk about anything but base ball.

A woman passed along, where the laborers, who were building the street railway, were taking their lunch. She knew it wasn't polite but she cast a sly glance into their pails as she passed and wasn't touched with pain, as she had expected to be at the sight, for the lunches were good, substantial and appetizing. There were nice fat slices of bread and butter, with meat; there were cookies, pickles, apples, cake, and ple, of course, and some of the men had little pots of jam or fruit. It is a comfort to think that the workingman of Scranton is well fed even if the times have been so hard.

The other day a small 3-year-old, not a thousand miles from Scranton, was discovered by his friends to be wildly dancing around in the wildest glee Upon inquiry he remarked: "Why des fink! I'm a doin' over to see Mrs Smith's twins, and I'm des' a doin wight up and pick one out of the bunch and bwing it home!"

Miss Vernon, the young cooking teacher who is to be here in September in the interests of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Luke's church, is a pupil of Mrs. Rorer, but is not by any means as "sassy" as that lady.

The "History of the Presbytery of Luverne," that has been written by Rev. Jonathan Osmond, now of Tacoma. Washington, with an introduction by Rev. Dr. Parke, of Pittston, is now in the hands of the publishers. Robert Baur & Son, and will appear bout the 1st of October. This Presbytery, which was organized in 1843 and dissolved in 1870, embraces the entire anthracite coal field of northern Pennsylvania, and this history contains full biographical sketches of the who labored within bounds of the Presbytery and carefully prepared histories of the churches ney have served. Among these minsters, who have finished their work re: Rev. Richard Webster, Rev. John Dorrance, D. D., Rev. Thomas E. H. Snowden, Rev. A. A. Hodge, D. D., and Rev. Milo J. Hickok. This history which is being published under the uspices of the Presbyterian Historical ociety, and is on the part of the writer purely a labor of love, cannot ut be regarded as a valuable contri bution to the ecclesiastical literature of this part of Pennsylvania. It will comprise about 350 pages and the edition will be limited to 500 copies. The projectors purpose placing it within the reach of all.—Wilkes-Barre Record.

TALKED OVER THE DETAILS.

Conterence Between Rev. E. J. Phillips and Hon. J. P. Quinnan. Rev. E. J. Phillips, of Plains, national delegate of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Board of Erin, was in this city yesterday afternoon and had a consultation with Hon, John P. Quinnan who is acting state delegate of the same order. During the conference the recent consolidation of the two branches of the order was talked over. When seen afterwards by a Tribune reporter Mr. Quinnan said:

"Father Phillips' visit to me today was merely for the purpose to talking about some details of the consolidation affected at Atlantic City. That consolidation is now an assured fact, and it only remains for Bishop McFaul, of Trenton, to agree upon the details. He will reconcile differences in the laws and devise a plan for declaring all of the national, state and county offices vacant. New officers will then be chosen by the representatives of both organizations and the much talked about and long anticipated combining of the two branches will be an assured fact.

"I do not see that anything can occur now to prevent the consolidation as both organizations are so firmly committed to the combination that a withdrawal is not probable."

LITTLE BOY LOST HIS WAY.

Came to the Central City to See the Parade.

Seven-year-old Eddle Bennett, of wetland street came to the central city all alone to see the Knights' pa-rade. Probably visions of warriors mounted on horses gaily caparisoned filled his little head.

When he wanted to go back home, he found he was lost, and then tears flowed. He was taken to police headquarters and soon afterwards his sister, who had been searching for him, came and took him home His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Bennett, reside at 1117 Swetland street.

The genial host and hostess threw open their cosy home and made their guests feel perfectly at home. As they arrived they were received by Mrs. Walter Wilkins, Mrs. John Wilkins and Mrs. Morgan P. Daniels. While waiting for the later guests to arrive the male quartette of the Plymouth church Culture class sang several selections while seated on the lawn.

Later in the evening a programme was carried out. John R. Thomas recited. Miss Edith Gwen James and Miss Phoebe Smith, soloist at the Washburn street church, each sang a selection and then gave a duet. The male quartette also rendered several selections.

PRESENTATION TO MR. BELL.

In a short address, pithy and fraught with the meaning and purpose desired to be conveyed, Charles E. Daniels, on behalf of the many friends, tendered Rev. Thomas Bell a purse containing a handsome sum of money. Mr. Daniels spoke of the intention of the gathering of their appreciation of his earnest endeavors, of his scholarly sermons, and in fact all that went to bind a beloved pastor to his people. Also of the deep regret felt that ungovernable circumstances had altered this relationship to a degree, but where ever he should go or be, the hearty sympathy of all went with him.

Though taken aback, Rev. Mr. Bell feelingly responded to the occasion. "He said words fall, but I assure you that though leaving in person my heart still clings to these dear friends. Your kindly efforts, hearty co-operation and unlooked for gift all tend to deprive me of a proper expression of my appreciation. As in the past my prayers and blessings are for you. In the future, I trust added happiness may come to you, and that the church may prosper and advance."

Rev. Mr. Bell spoke in the above words and visible depth of feeling were felt by all. The remainder of the evening passed pleasantly, and refreshments were then served. As guests departed a farewell handshaking

Rev. Mr. Bell and family leave today at 12:40 for Moravia, N. Y., where he will nter upon his new pastorate. His first sermon will be preached next Sunday morning, and the church is preparing special services. He will preach upon "The Mission of the Church in the World." All the West Scranton ministers who are home at present called and tendered their regrets and well wishes.

The following tribute to Mr. Bell's worth as a man and expounder of the gospel was written by Henry A. Par-

Rev. Thomas Bell, the talented and faithful pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church, being about to leave this city for Moravia, N. Y., there to commence his duties as pastor of the First Congregational church, I feel it my duty (although a tirely propoletted) to although estirely unsolicited) to give his, my public testimony of his sterling worth, not only as a preacher and teacher, but also as a Christian gentleman.

It has been a great pleasure to me to have been associated with him, and to have sat under his ministry during the major portion of his services here. I always found him ready to give friendly advice and practical help and approximately. vice and practical help and sympathy.
"Himself a devoted and carnest follower of the Man of Nazareth," his preaching has consequently ever been character-ized by a fearless presentation of truth, righteousness and purity of life.

righteousness and purity of life.

His sermons have been marked by ar entire absence of superficiality, his con-stant endeavor being to make them prac-ticable to every condition of life, and the salvation of mankind, his ideal being a Christ-like life, to which by both preach-ing and teaching and Christian example

e ever aimed to bring his people. He is well known throughout the city, and is held in the highest respect by his brethren of the ministry, and by all who know him. I venture to think his depart-ure will leave a gap not easily filled, but of this I am convinced, he will carry with him the best wishes for his future wel-fare and the profoundest esteem of the many acquaintances he has made during his residence in our city, not the least among them being those of his most grateful and sincere friends, Henry A. Parsons.

CONDITION OF MISS JUDGE.

After Twenty-Eight Hours' Unconsciousness She Is Improving. Miss Bessie Judge, who was injured so terribly by the fall of a heavy frame of glass on Washington avenue Tuesday afternoon, recovered con-sciousness at 6 o'clock last evening for the first time since the accident, twenty-eight hours previous.

Last night she continued to grow brighter, and Dr. Newbury, of the hospital staff, looks upon her rapid improvement after the shock as a hopeful symptom.

The young lady, however, has not yet passed the point where the result can be stated with any definiteness The wound on the head is of such a nature as to make a thorough examination impossible for a day at least. Since the accident the rush of inquiries after Miss Judge's condition at the hospital from the young ladies friends has been remarkable. The rule of the hospital is that no attache other than the house surgeon can give out any information concerning patients.

It became necessary for Dr. Newbury to prepare written reports of Miss Judge's condition every two hours from which the inquirers were satisfied At midnight Miss Judge continued to improve. AN OLD FOLKS CONCERT.

It Will Be Given at the African M. E. Church.

There will be an Old Folks concert at the African Methodist Episcopal church tonight, and the Scranton people will have a chance to see some home talent among ye old people. The play is very amusing, especially the lecture on "Woman's Rights" by Aunt Malinda Jane: Mary's little new lamb by Cephas Scott, sr., and "Fadder-land" by Mary Ann. There will also be a Mother Hubbard drill by twelve little girls and it will no doubt please the audience.

The play will be put on with the folowing cast: Aunt Malinda, Mrs. Hart; Ma Limkins, Mrs. Julia Hill; Pa Limkins, Uncle Jerry Logan; Aunt Sophia Mrs. E. Nelson; Cousin Jeridiah, Ed Nelson; Pricilla Hopkins, Miss Jennie A. Howard; Uncle Rastus, Peter Hart; Brother Gardner, John A. Walker; Phillis Ann, Mrs. Sadie J. Morton; Aunt Polly, Mrs. Ella Lane; Little

Buttercup, Miss C. P. Foster. Bishop Lee, of the African Methodist Episcopal conference, will be in atendance. The proceeds will go to the pastor, who will shortly leave for the annual conference, TOOK MAJOR WOOD'S VALUABLES.

Philadelphian Had an Unpleasant

Experience in This City. Major John W. Wood, a visiting Knights of Pythias delegate, arrived in Scranton early Monday night, Being a total stranger here he accepted the volunteered courtesy of some man who took him to a boarding house at 215 by his long ride, Major Wood immediately retired and was soon fast asleep, Though Morpheus guarded his slumbers his purse was left to preying thleves who entered and removed it, taking also a heavy gold ring from his little finger. Investigation was made in the morning and the disclosure followed that one of the servants had disappeared. The police were then notified and the girl is being watched for. Major Wood's address is No. 65 East Coulteir street, Philadelphia.
