SLATE BREAKERS ARE AFTER SLATE MAKERS

Democratic Delegates Rise Up in Revolt Last Night.

Halfa Hundred or So of Them Met and Learning That They Were of the One Mind, Hired a Hall and Proceed to Lay Their Plans for Capturing the Convention from the "Organization." --- The "Slate Laughs in Derision and Says it is the "Old, Old Game."

Today's Democratic county convention may not be the most harmonious gathering in the history of Lackawanna county Democratic conventions, as was anticipated. In fact, at 12 o'clock last night the indications were that it would be the diametric opposite. There was a revolt, and a big unmistakable revolt at that, during the night, one that caused no end of worry to the 'organization" and sent the slated candidates to bed with a deep feeling of anxiety for the outcome of the mor-

The revolt was a sort of spontaneous uprising against what was viewed as bossism. The framing of the cut and dried slate published yesterday was looked upon by the delegates-or those of them now under discussion-as an usurpation of their rights and a bold bare-faced attempt to thwart the will of the people and violate the first and foremost principles of Democracy, Parenthetically it might be stated that the bolters deny with indignation that the report that $10 a man was all that was to be allowed for expenses had anything to do with the uprising. About 9 o'clock last night when half a bundred or so of the delegates were assembled about the St. Charles, where they had come to be enrolled under the new rules, murmurings began to be heard. Soon rumblings were audible and finally there was an outburst which culminated in some one suggesting a caucus. All hands fell in with the idea and "hire a hall" was the watchward. A committee went forth in search of a meeting place and in a short time returned with the information that the room over "The Office" at 105 Wyoming avenue had been se-

Thither the malcontents flocked and in a stuffy 12x14 room opened up headquarters and proceeded to form an organization, amidst much confusion and cries of "hurry up it's roasting hot

M'ANDREW, CHAIRMAN. John J. McAndrew, select councilman from the Twenty-first ward, was elected chairman and John A. McNamara, ex-candidate for common council from the Third ward, secretary. Then, according to the reports of the secretary 56 duly accredited delegates answered a call of the roll by districts. Then the pulse of the meeting was taken and after many speeches and many more hallway consultations it was agreed that City Controller E. J. Robinson should be their candidate for sheriff. They had no one in mind to put up against M. J. Kelly for treasurer, but for prothonotary they thought Martin McDonough, of Minooka, who has sought the office for so many years, would be the right man to punch a hole in the slate along the line on which Matthey F. Norton's name appears. Benson Davis had some friends there and they had no difficulty in securing him a place on the ticket for recorder. W. W. Baylor was suggested for register and it was the general opinion that if he could be secured he would be a great help. Mr. Baylor was seen later by the leading spirits of the "agin the government" people and said he would be with them. He reiterated this to a Tribune reporter. John J. Durkin was their choice for clerk of the courts and T. J. Duggan, they avowed, would be nominated for district attorney whether he consented or

George S. Horn to be coaxed, they argued, and he would be accorded the same honor that the "organization" in-tended to confer on Mr. Horn, namely, nomination unsought, undesired, etc. BURKE AT THE HELM. Last, but by no means least, W. J. Burke, the indomitable ex-county commissioner, was chosen as helmsman

He was seen by a committee, agreed to accept their nomination for the chairmanship and bade them persevere in their noble work against boss dictation. Then a committee consisting of P. S. Rohan, Tom Dacey and John McGuire was appointed to secure a larger hall and when they returned and reported they had secured the dining rooms of John Carroll's hotel, just around the corner on Lackawanna avenue, the delegates filed out and headed thither. On the way it was decided that as nothing else could be done just then they should adjourn to meet in the morning and after fixing 8.30 o'clock as the hour for getting together, dispersed, each with the promise and resolve to corrall at least one other delegate on their way to the morning conclave.

A committee was dispatched to announce to Mr. Robinson the action of the caucus and report his answer in the morning. Should he not accept, there is a possibility that John H. Powell, of the West Side, may be

Candidate-for-Chairman Burke, when seen last night, said he was sanguine of the success of the revolutionists. They are going to bust that slate and I will be right on the platform to help them do it."

In his opinion some of the regular slated candidates might be nominated, but if they were it would be by the grace of the bolters. "There will be no slate nomination tomorrow," he said. "We propose to secure control of the convention and then proceed calmly and deliberately to make up the strongest possible ticket. If this man or that man, now on the bosses slate, should in the belief of a majority of the delegates be the best man for the place he will get it. He will get it, however, from the delegates and not from any clique, faction, boss or dictator. There were fifty-six delegates at the caucus tonight and I have heard of twenty-five others who have said since they would have been there had they but known of it. There is but little question of our being successful."

OLD, OLD GAME. The "organization," outwardly, treat the revolt with derision. Said one of the leaders, last night: "Its the old, old game, nothing more or less. We are not even a trifle worried over it. There were only thirty-four delegates at their caucuss and eleven of them were out and out for the regular slate. A number of those who were present came around to us afterwards and told us all about it. It amuses us and nothing

The "slate" opened headquarters in the rooms over Blume's carriage repository on Spruce street, occupied last year by the Democratic county committee. They gave out that no change had been made in the make-up of the ticket, and that the candidates whose names were printed in The Tribune yesterday would be nominated without opposition. Colonel F. J. Fitzsim-mons is to be chairman. THEY WILL NOT BE DICTATED TO There now seems to be no question but that Mr. Horn is seeking the nomination for district attorney. He has not, as far as can be learned, made any effort to prevent his seemingly as-sured nomination, and one of his bustness associates said yesterday without equivocation that Mr. Horn would ac-out any question, and probably with-

There was a rumor about the streets yesterday that ex-Sheriff . Fahey was working quietly among the delegates to make himself chairman of the convention. The "organization" heard of it and to find out whether or not it was so sent for Mr. Fahey. He went up to headquarters and with some little warmth told the assemblage there they had no cause to believe such a story and further that he did not like the idea of deeming him a mischief maker. While he was there he also told them that he was seeking no office; that he would not be Charley Schadt's deputy for $5,000 a year and that all he wanted from them was to let him alone. The convention is set for 9 o'clock this morning, but it is liable to be an hour later before business will be gotten fairly under way. Only two cantests have developed, one in the Fourth district of the First ward and the other in Fell township.

Under the new rules the nominations will be made in this order: District attorney, sheriff, treasurer, pro-thonotary, clerk of the courts, recorder, The two most prominent of the newly mentioned candidates for jury commissioner are Frank Doherty, of Mos-

Rivat Forces. "Local Democratic leaders assert that the Reading convention will be either the theatre for a fight all along the line between the free silver forces and the gold and more conservative men, an incident of which will be the attempted ousting of National Committeeman William F. Harrity, or the scene of a featureless compromise under which Mr. Harrity's membership in the National committee will not be disturbed on condition that his friends do not interfere with the reaffirmation of the Chicago doctrines," say the Philadel-

FILLED WITH NEW IDEAS.

Chief Hickey Home From the Fire

Chiefs Convention in New Haven. Chief Hickey is home from the fire chiefs' convention at New Haven, full of new ideas for the betterment of the department and more than ever convinced that in this city there is ample room for improvement in the fire service. From the ideas he gained he will submit a report to councils, containing suggestions and recommendations for increasing the efficiency of his depart-

There were fifty-two exhibitors in attendance upon the convention and each of them had some new idea in improved fire fighting apparatus. The most novel thing, the chief says, that was exhibited was a self-propelling steam fire engine that can get up a speed of thirty-five miles an hour, climb steep hills and turn around in an ordinary sized alley. The most instructive feature of the convention outside of the apparatus exhibition, the chief says, was the lecture by Captain Brophy, chief electrician of the Boston fire department, on defective electric wiring and plans for remedying the evil. His discourse was illustrated with stereopticon views and was quite as interesting as it was instructive.

There were 602 chiefs and 100 mayors at the convention. Mayor Bailey only staid part of a day, as business required his attention at home. New Haven is a city of the same size as Scranton, 106,000 inhabitants. It has 114 paid firemen and 121 paid police-
