UNION LABEL

BEFORE BREAKFAST.

A Scranton girl has returned from her summer outing with a number of trophies in the shape of spoons "collected" from hotels, steamers, yachts, well Pullman cars, and other points on her tour. They are frankly displayed and are the object of much envy among her friends. You needn't look so shocked; she isn't any worse than a Scranton man who brought home "souvenirs" in the shape of brass candlesticks and sundries from old French, England and Welsh inns. His feminine friends and relatives were unaccountably delighted to receive them as gifts, and they display their ill-gotten gains with much pride, although the purloiner made no secret of the way in which they were acquired. He reasoned that the innkeepers charged him for candles and things that he didn't use, so he had to reimburse himself in some manner.

He was a peach vendor and he had a big voice and a big load of peaches, yesterday afternoon, warranted "large, solid yellow Delaware peaches." He sold a great many baskets on the "Hill," and a great many housewives, in examining their purchase after his departure, decided that he had "sold" as many women as baskets of fruit. The bottom of each receptacle was well filled with peaches the size of olives. It wasn't long until there was an unusual spectacle in that locality. Several of the buyers were discovered sneaking down the avenue in search of their bunco man. On the way they decided to be foxy in their approach and not tell him the real errand upon which they were bent, but lead him to believe that they wanted more fruit. So one woman went on ahead and he returned to her house with alacrity. Then the others gathered about and volubly explained their grievance and demanded their money. This man looked a little scared, but he was pretty brave after all, for after considering the matter a moment he remarked: "Nix, I don't give no money back on a Wednesday. It's bad luck; couldn't think of it, but—" as they began to berate him for a fraud, he hastened to add, "Tell you what I'll do. I'll swap baskets with every one of ye," which he did forthwith, pouring out the contents and proving that he really had some honest merchandise. Then he went off muttering: "Darned if I'd a thought it! Catch me comin' up among the swells again. Stinky as pison!"

There were some women not designed by Providence to ride a bicycle, if a short skirt must be part of the combination. For such, however, a boon seems to have been devised in the tall tan boots, nicely padded in the correct place, which can now be bought. The only worse thing than wearing the clumsy cloth overgaiters or leggings, which button over the shoes, is not to wear them, but to appear on a wheel in low ties and stockings, which are often scarcely modest. The pretty, leech boot, coming well to the knee, is the only sensible and attractive footwear for the wheelwoman's wear.

A small Mulberry street girl, all gay in her prettiest frock, was asked where she was going last Sunday. "Why, to the Second Presbyterian church, of course," she answered, with dignity. "I'm going to hear Dr. Nichols preach. He's the man that advertised me." Evidently the trees of baptism and success in business were slightly mixed in her little head.

The union was decided to have a big representation in line, and to complete arrangements. Another meeting will be held next Saturday night at 334 Penn avenue at 8 o'clock. The parade will start at 1:30 o'clock p. m., and not 10:30 o'clock a. m., as erroneously stated. The first division will form on Linden street, right resting on Millin avenue. The second division will form on Millin avenue, right resting on Linden street. The line of march will be up Linden to Wyoming to Spruce to Franklin to Lackawanna to the bridge, countermarch to Washington to Pine to Quincey to Laurel Hill park.

Notice of His Demise Reaches Bethlehem from Mannheim.

HIS VISIT ABROAD INEFFECTUAL
Short Sketch of the Noted Protestant Episcopal Churchman Who Went to Europe in Search of Health Only to Expire on Foreign Soil—He Was Well Known in Scranton, Where He Had Hosts of Friends.

Word was received in this city yesterday that the Right Rev. Nelson Somerville Rulison, D. D., bishop of Central Pennsylvania, died in Mannheim, Germany. Bishop Rulison had been indisposed for several months and by the action and desire of the diocesan convention, held in June last, he was given leave of absence for six ing disposition and was well liked by his men. Most of his leisure time was spent with his family. He was a veteran of the late war, a private in Company G, Third regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers. He was 52 years old last April. He is survived by his wife and one son, Arthur, weighmaster at No. 5, Delaware and Hudson. He had also three sisters and two brothers living. The sisters are Mrs. E. R. Peckens, of Plymouth; Mrs. P. D. Wambold and Mrs. B. F. Fillmore, of Scranton. The brothers are located in the west. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Rev. O. L. Severson will officiate and interment will be made in Forty Fort cemetery.—Yesterday's Wilkes-Barre Times.

MYSTERIOUS ASSAULT.

months for restoration to health. Accompanied by one of his daughters, he sailed for Europe on July 27, and has been under treatment at Mannheim. His frequent visits to Scranton during the past fifteen years, both as bishop and as assistant to the venerable Bishop Howe, who died a few years ago, were always occasions of welcome from the several Episcopal parishes and missions in this city. He had many hundreds of warm friends and admirers among his own and other denominations here.

An Associated Press despatch from Bethlehem last night confirmed the earlier reports of Bishop Rulison's death received by prominent Episcopalians in this city. The dead bishop was born at Carthage, N. Y., in 1843. He graduated at the General seminary in 1866, and held rectories at Morris, N. Y.; Jersey City and Cleveland. In 1888 he was elected assistant bishop of the Central Pennsylvania diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church and four years later became bishop in full charge of the diocese. The church of the Nativity, in Scranton, was made his pro-cathedral a few years ago, when the bishop took up his episcopal residence there.

Bishop Rulison was president of the board of trustees of Lehigh university and of the library committee. He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. C. P. Coleman, Mrs. Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester, of Philadelphia; Miss C. Constance Rulison, a student at Bryn Mawr college, and Miss Edith Rulison. His body will be brought to this country for interment.

DROPPED DEAD AT PLYMOUTH.

James Atherton Suddenly Expires Last Evening Near His Home. Last evening James A. Atherton, outside foreman at No. 4 Delaware and Hudson mine, dropped dead on the sidewalk in front of his residence. Mr. Atherton has been ill for the past month and yesterday was the first day that he worked. After eating his supper he started down town for some medicine. He had walked but a little distance when he reeled and fell to the sidewalk directly in front of his residence on Willow street. Owen Morgan and William D. Lewis saw him and rushed to his assistance. He was carried into the house and a physician was summoned. He had, however, expired before Dr. Whitney arrived. The physician pronounced death due to apoplexy.

Mr. Atherton was a well-known citizen of Plymouth. He had been foreman for the Delaware and Hudson company for the past fifteen years. First as foreman at No. 4, then transferred to old No. 5. When old No. 5 was abandoned he was transferred to new No. 5 and during his recent illness he was again transferred to his old post at No. 4. He was of a retreunconscious and badly bruised and cut. Duffy, according to the story he told when he recovered, was set upon by five men about an hour previous and knocked over the embankment with a stone. He does not know his assailants and can't explain why he was assaulted. His injuries, except for a bad contusion on the knee, are not of a serious nature.

WAS HE AN EX-SCRANTONIAN?

Wife of a Theatrical Manager Stabs Her Alleged Rival. According to an Associated Press despatch from Chicago, Mrs. Frances E. Middleton, the wife of George Middleton, a theatrical manager, stable Belle Carmen, a variety actress, perhaps fatally. Jealousy was the cause assigned. In Scranton seven years ago a George Middleton was associated with George E. Davis, now proprietor of Davis' theatre, in the management of the old Wonderland theatre and museum. It is not known whether or not the identity of the Chicago Middleton and the ex-Scrantonian Middleton are identical.

SCALDEMA HAD A TRICK OF HIS OWN

He Fooled the Police to Escape Impending Punishment.

PLAYED POSSUM FOR FIVE HOURS
He Snapped a Revolver at Special Officer Harry Courtright in Raymond Court and When Arrested Dropped as if Senseless—At the Hospital His Attempt to Escape Was Frustrated—Sent to the County Jail to Await Trial.

For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain John Scaldema, the man who attempted to shoot Special Officer Harry Courtright in Raymond court Tuesday night, may be safely matched against Bret Harte's heathen Chinese. He was sent to the county jail yesterday in default of $500 bail by Mayor Bailey, but it was only the watchful eye of an orderly at the Lackawanna hospital which gave him the chance to tamper the case at all. When Scaldema fell to the sidewalk on Penn avenue as he saw the star on Patrolman McMullen's chest and was taken in the patrol wagon to the Lackawanna hospital the man was playing one big game of bluff. Scaldema snapped a revolver twice at Courtright, and once leveled his gun at the hero of many a tilt at law Ferdinando Arrigoni. Scaldema probably knew that the offense was a severe one so with remarkable cleverness he feigned unconsciousness. The police remembering of one Washington Davis were only too glad to cart Scaldema to the hospital. He was placed in a bed in the main room but the physicians could find nothing about him on which to administer. Scaldema breathed regularly and his pulse showed no unusual haste.

MYSTERY EXPLAINED.

The mystery was explained when a few hours after the doctors had left Scaldema, an orderly happening to look at the fellow's bed saw Scaldema lift his head and peer cautiously about the darkened room. The only light was from the ante rooms and these threw a shadow on the orderly, while Scaldema was in plain sight. The man after satisfying himself that there was no one in the room, carefully and slowly moved one foot from under the bed-clothes and another. He was about to step upon the floor when the orderly sprang to him and by main force threw him back into the bed. Scaldema at once relapsed into his fake unconsciousness.

Several times during the night the man with the patent-medicine name attempted to escape, but the orderly was by his side at all times. At 5 o'clock a. m., as if tired of playing possum, Scaldema sat up and asked for something to eat. At 8 o'clock he was taken to the police station and given the very proper kind of medicine—a berth at the county jail.
