TEACHERS REBUKED BY SUPERINTENDENT

He Spoke About Those Who Absent Themselves from the Institute.

MANY INTERESTING SPEAKERS

They Addressed the Teachers on a Great Variety of Subjects—Feature of the Afternoon Session Was the Address of Dr. Benedict on "Interest in Education"—Directors of the County Held a Meeting—Evening Lecture in Y. M. C. A. Hall.

Superintendent Taylor does not spare himself in his work and he expects the teachers to do their duty without shirking. Those who have absent themselves from the sessions of the county institute came in for a rebuke yesterday morning at the opening of the institute. Teachers are to be examined this year in Baldwin's school management. He is a member of the state committee, which will arrange plans for a graded course of studies for teachers.

Professor Bovard presided in the main room. Professor Cogswell gave an excellent address on music, in the course of which he remarked that Scranton has not shown the advance in music in the schools that is noted in other cities. In his talk he gave the suggestions that the major scale should be the foundation. Use the pitch pipe; give intervals and time; use vowels with consonant prefix instead of syllables; give rhythm, then songs.

In the other section, Professor Twitmyer continued his work in penmanship, in the discussion, "Relation of a Principal to the School Board and to the Teachers," Prof. Lloyd, of Priceburg; Prof. Taggart, of Mayfield, and Prof. F. R. Coyne, of Old Forge, participated. Prof. Lloyd, in the course of his excellent paper, stated that a teacher should not divide his time with other business than that of teaching, and that the directors should not allow it.

EDUCATOR'S TRUE AIM.

Prof. Hulley, of Keystone academy, began his address on the "True Aim of an Educator" by quoting from Ruskin that the teacher should think more of soul elevation than of salary. The truly educated man is the one who can see the beauty in true manhood and can be of the most benefit to his fellow-man.

Professor Green then continued in his own inimitable way his talk of the day before, a visit to the home of Lowell and Holmes. He also described a call on Whittier, who uplifted others by his writings, and was in turn himself uplifted.

The afternoon session opened with music, as usual, after which Dr. Benedict spoke on "Interest in Education." His address was brilliant and again was evinced his remarkable gift in the way of diction. In part he said: Interest must be awakened to give practical results. It is needed in quickening home, school, church and community. Interest begets knowledge, and knowledge also begets interest. Interest in study is the means of securing knowledge, which will remain when the interest wanes. Again, knowledge may incite an interest that may abide.

The teacher's interest must be twofold. She must be interested in her field, and also in the pupil. She must learn to know the individuality of the child. The speaker made no plea for technical study, but advised observation of the pupil to be taken in the teacher's own way. She may be able to use the branch as the means of instruction. No method is given as the best, although the word needed in reading, with model and pictures phonics, with the sounds of the letters associated with the sounds in nature were suggested. He objected to the word "reader," because it indicated a learning of reading, which is dull business.

WILL BECOME CULTURED.

We do not read for culture, but if we do read the works of the great Scott, Thackeray, Shakespeare, Dante, etc., we will be cultured fast enough. Choose selections as usual, comprehend them, and a good method of awakening interest is by original illustration by pupils. After listening to a story. This may be varied by geography, history, etc. A number of illustrations were shown which were very much interesting by the teachers. Among the advantages of this method are the test of pupils' ability to gain thought from the printed page; the best means for this end. They thus learn the real idea of the thought. "The child learns to do by doing." It helps to make better writers; trains eye and hand; shows good effect on disposition and builds moral character; gives opportunity for individual study of child and finally is a never ending resource of the teacher.

In closing the speaker paid a noble tribute to the value of teaching a love for reading and quoted many gems of the greatest writers regarding books. His address was received with much applause.

A large number of school directors carrying the weight of their responsibilities on their faces filed in and occupied seats facing the "bench."

Professor Green then gave his last address by continuing the suggestions, the study of authors and their writings. In the course of which he justly berated Sarah Grant and the Heavenly Twins, advised the study of the best books, the cultivation of a love for the English language and mentioned many writers who must be selected. In speaking of harmony and beauty of language he spoke of the fascination of "tones" softened by consonants and windowed by opening vowels. Father Ryan, the "Catholic poet-laureate," was recommended Macaulay in his beauty of diction, and a number of poems showing adaptability of sound to subject, notably, Tennyson's Northern Farmer, Caroline Norton's King of Denmark's Ride, Sheridan's Ride, Browning's The Ride From Ghent to Aix, etc. He quoted from Buck-Fanebrow's funeral and then advised study of authors until their literary characteristics could be reduced to synonyms, viz: Lowell—nobility; Hawthorne—purity; Whitman—energy; Prescott—contrast; Franklin—utility; Carlyle—power; Milton—sublimity; Shelley—soaring.

Professor Cogswell then sang most beautifully Bayard Taylor's "Baldouin Love Song."

VOTED FOR LACKAWANNA.

Dr. John L. Stewart, deputy state superintendent, gave an address. He felt that he had been interested in this place for a long time as in 1878 he voted in the legislature for the organization of Lackawanna county. He was pleased to note the progress of educational work in this county; only five counties exceed it in length of term; three counties pay a higher average salary, although thirty counties pay a higher

REUNION AT OLD CAMP LUZERNE

Held by the Survivors of the One Hundred and Forty-third Regiment.

REV. W. P. SIMPSON ORATOR OF DAY

Entered a Protest Against Unwarranted Prominence Being Given to Heroes of the Lost Cause—He Believes They Should Be Made to Understand That They Were Traitors Once.

The surviving members of the One Hundred and Forty-third regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, held their thirty-first annual reunion at Camp Luzerne yesterday. What was left of the gallant regiment met at the Opera house in Luzerne and headed by the drum corps of the Junior Civil War, American Mechanics, No. 139, marched to the historic spot from whence on Nov. 7, 1862, amidst a blinding snow storm they marched forth to do or die. Arriving at the spot around which so many soul-stirring memories cling, the second roll call was made and the following comrades answered: President, Captain P. DeLacey; adjutant, C. H. Campbell; chaplain, S. W. Weiss; prior, J. H. Campbell, R. W. Cox, H. Hardy, G. W. Engle, George W. Keller, C. A. Sherman, J. B. Hobbs, George Lamereaux, William Knorr, J. M. Wagner, Ed. P. Pratt, J. A. Rout, Ava Weisner, Samuel H. O'Neil, Frank Furman, Charles Hess, O. C. Caswell, S. B. Warner, Lewis B. Stark, Richard Kenn, John Meyers, W. S. Randall, R. Bellas, William W. Schooley, W. Hood, J. R. Morris, Alex. McDaniel, Henry Hockenberry, Carter Turpin, James Chuldaugh, M. D. Baldwin, D. L. Graham, M. M. Cowert, F. Harrecht, James W. Moore, Captain D. E. Vaughan, C. H. Finch, Philander Hornbaker, James Strango, Ira Cosner, Levi Silvius, F. M. Lockard, Morris Bush, C. D. Kunkel, Wilbur Rice, William Laubauch, J. M. Wolfe and W. P. Simpson. Among the visitors were M. Edwards, E. New York; J. A. Edin, 131st regiment, P. V., Co. H., of Scranton; H. H. Holmes, Battery M, 5th U. S. Artillery, Kingston, Pa.; H. C. Beck, 3rd P. V., Co. H.; Rev. J. R. Jordan, 7th P. V., of Sweet Valley; Rev. J. P. Tapping, 23d N. Y. V., of Pleasant Hill; Rev. J. F. Warner.

THEY EXCHANGE GREETINGS.

After the roll call was completed a general hand-shaking followed. Comrade greeted comrade and reminiscences of the old days were exchanged. Frequent references were made to the changed condition of the place. But little remained to recall the three months spent there in camp before being ordered to the front. This period of greeting was brought to an end by the calling for three cheers for the old place and the old flag-staff which still stands. The cheers were given with a hearty goodwill.

DOORS WIDE OPEN

This morning for another busy day. No guess work about it—yesterday's great selling predicted it. No wonder we're busy. Cause and effect. Even the most ardent bargain seeker finds surprises. Today four very special values:

THE DIRECTORS MEETING.

Addresses and Discussions the Order of the Day. The annual meeting of the county school directors brought together a very large representation of the various boards. The session was held in room No. 2. President Repp called the convention to order at 10:20 o'clock and after making the smile-provoking suggestion that directors who have relative teaching or seeking a school should not serve on the board, proceeded to call the various orders of business. Secretary James J. O'Malley's minutes of the preceding convention were approved and then the convention listened to a recitation by Miss Mildred Green, of Waverly, and an address by Miss Anna Buckbee on "The Educational Influence of Environment." The morning session closed with the report of Secretary O'Malley on the state convention to which he was sent as representative of the association.

MAKING OUR LAWS.

"Why," said he, "I saw a man in the senate at Washington who was ranked as an officer in the Confederate army and had lost a leg in the service. This man was making laws, which you and I are to respect. Is this right? Is it fair? Is it decent? I think not, for it was those very men who attempted to disrupt the country."

THE KLINE SHOE CO.

Nothing in the Retail Trading of this city in years can compare with our record in Shoe Selling for last Saturday. We have practically been doing the shoe business of this town, and we have sold thousands of pairs at prices that were a revelation. It would seem as if every pair of shoes we sold was telling the story of the sale; how we bought them at one-half their regular price and sold them in the same way.

DOORS WIDE OPEN

One satisfied customer brought another, and so on ad infinitum. There's the story of our success in shoe selling. We will go on this week in the same way, but probably the selling will be bigger, as the attractions are possibly greater than before. We would advise intending buyers to come during the week, as it was impossible for us to wait on one-quarter of the customers who crowded, or rather, over-crowded our store last Saturday.
