GREELEY'S WRITING.

Another Pretty Tough Story About the Old Editor's Chirography.

From the Journal of Education.

There was only one printer who could read Greeley's writing well enough to put it in type. He used to boast that he could read the great editor's wondrous scrawl a mile away.

One night the boys in the Tribune composing room "put up a job" on the old man. They took two roosters, made them walk around on a newly inked form and then run all over ten sheets of copy paper.

The foreman wrote over it in Greeley's well-known scrawl, "The Plain Duty of Congress," and put it on old man Lawton's hook. I think his name was Lawton, but if it was not it does not matter much.

The old printer picked it up, swore a little, remarked that they had to shove the stuff on the old man, as usual, adjusted his spectacles and began sticking type.

The other printers watched him for a few minutes, but beyond a muttered oath or two he gave no sign. Lawton went on setting type until about half way through the "copy."

Then he was stuck.

He took the copy over to the foreman and asked:

"Jack, what is that word?"

"I don't know," replied the foreman. "You know I never could read the stuff."

Lawton took the sheet down to Greeley and pointed out to him a particularly awful scrawl of the rooster's foot, asking what word that was.

Greeley looked at it a moment and replied, with a frown:

"'Unconstitutional,' of course."

Lawton went back to the composing room and finished his task with the utmost sand froid.

The old man never knew how the "copy" was produced.

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review.

New York, Sept. 9.—The market responded to higher quotations in London with a factional rise at the opening, as it responded yesterday with a decline. The market sank quite weakly under the heavy realizing movement in the morning. London buying invited realizing sales and it is likely that the failure of a large outside brokerage house has something to do with the heaviness on account of the liquidation entailed upon agents on the floor. The assembling of the St. Paul directors with a quorum present was the effective influence in checking the decline on account of the prevalent belief that an extra dividend would be declared. When it became known that the decision of the directors was in favor of making the extra dividend one per cent., the stock mounted upward strongly to par, which it touched for the first time in fourteen years. This affected the other grangers by sympathy and extended an improved tone all through the list. The renewed strength in the grain markets, the reports of heavy traffic on railroads and the improvements in earnings helped the rally. Total sales were 605,696 shares.

A MAN'S MAKE-UP

MAY BE as incongruous as anything imaginable. It is not necessary for him to carry a fan and wear an overcoat. He can go to almost any ready-made store and get an outfit that will make him quite as remarkable. Had he come to our establishment he could have had a suit for about the same price, perfect in style, fit and finish and consequently cheaper.
