COUNTY INSTITUTE COMES TO A CLOSE

It Terminated with Yesterday Morning's Session.

INATTENTIVE TEACHERS REPROVED

Superintendent Taylor Says Some of the Things in His Closing Address. Resolutions Adopted Sustaining the Superintendent in His Action in Reconsidering the Decision to Meet in Carbondale—Final Addresses That Were Delivered to the Teachers.

The county institute came to a close with yesterday morning's session, and the teachers, officers, lecturers and other attendants, after much mutual congratulating went to their several homes much pleased with the work of the week and incidental pleasures of the stay in the Electric City.

Miss Buckbee gave as her farewell talk a dissertation on "Children's Motives," which like all her previous talks, was plain, practical and interesting and instructive. She deplored the fact that so many children leave school before they have fairly begun to study and blamed it all to the laxity of the parents.

Dr. Benedict gave an interesting and valuable address on "Lessons in Observations." Among his illustrations was an explanation of the manufacture of an incandescent lamp. He advised every one in the vicinity to shut the eyes after which he hit the lamp a slight blow resulting in a loud report and the scattering of minute particles of glass all over the platform. It was only said that an incandescent lamp would not set fire to the most delicate drapery, but he would not advise exposure of such materials, as he had known of a case where a young man had thought of a brilliant idea in the way of warming his feet by placing a lamp in his bed one cold night. It was a great success as a foot-warmer but consumed the bed clothes in the operation.

PROFESSIONAL READING.

Reporting for the committee on professional reading, Prof. M. W. Cummings recommended for the teachers' perusal and study "Baldwin's School Management," edited by Dr. Harris, United States commissioner of education, published by Kellett & Co., of New York.

Resolutions were adopted conveying thanks to Superintendent Taylor, Dr. Stewart and the daily papers; commending the state legislature for the enactment of the compulsory education law; commending the present course of study followed in the county schools, and seconding the action of the county superintendent in reconsidering the decision of the last convention to hold the institute in Carbondale, "believing the haste in such action, the smallness of the number voting, and subsequent attendant circumstances, to have been ample cause for his reviving the issue, thus allowing the committee a certainty in accordance with the best interests and desire of all."

The resolutions were read by Theron G. Osborne and were unanimously adopted.

HOTEL ELMHURST SOLD.

Becomes the Property of Dr. W. H. H. Bull, of Atlantic City.

Dr. W. H. H. Bull, proprietor of the Gales Hill Sanatorium at Atlantic City, yesterday purchased from Attorney Horace E. Hand, of this city, the Hotel Elmhurst, which is located on the Hillside at Elmhurst, in the corner of the Schoonmaker tract. Dr. Bull proposes to run it in connection with his Atlantic City establishment as a high-class sanatorium and hotel. It is not his intention to make it a hospital, but a place where people can find rest and enjoyment and be well cared for.

Dr. Bull's sanatorium at the sea shore was so successful that he decided to also open one in the mountains, and selected Elmhurst as an ideal spot for such an installation. It will be open all the year around, and immediately after the purchase Dr. Bull was given possession of the hotel. It will be heated next week until repairs and changes are made on the interior. It will be heated by steam, an elevator will be placed in it, and many other changes made.

The hotel was erected in 1891 by Colonel U. G. Schoonmaker and Mr. Hand and at that time Colonel Schoonmaker had in mind using it as a sanatorium some day. The building has sixty-seven rooms.

FAILURE OF FIRM OF WILLARD & CO.

Was a Matter of Extended Discussion in the New York Papers.

EFFECT OF THE COLLAPSE HERE

J. R. Willard, the head of the firm, was formerly a reporter for the Chicago Herald in the Board of Trade of That City—Had Two of the Dwigings Associated with Him. Writ of Attachment Served.

The failure of the firm of J. R. Willard & Co., bankers and brokers, with headquarters in New York city, and branch offices in this city, was a matter of extended discussion in the New York dailies yesterday. Judging from the best reports it appears that the break was not caused by any clandestine effort, but that the condition of the markets in respect to the firm was wholly responsible.

J. R. Willard, the head of the firm, was formerly a reporter for the Chicago Herald, on the Chicago board of trade. The other members were two brothers, Elmer Dwigings and Jay Dwigings, nephews of Zimri Dwigings, the famous western banker. The firm had been in business since September, 1895.

TROUBLE OVER A LINE FENCE.

City Solicitor Helped Unravel the Intricacies of the Case.

Cornelius Ruddy, of the Seventh ward, yesterday caused the arrest of Mrs. Elizabeth Kellher and her son, Patrick Kellher, charging them with demolishing a stone wall on his property on Phelps street. The trouble is a "line fence" argument.

The Kellhers claim that Ruddy built the wall on their property. City Solicitor McKinley represented Ruddy. Alderman Wright held the Kellhers under $300 bail.

Ruddy was arrested on a warrant issued by Alderman Bailey, of the Thirteenth ward, which charges him with firing two shots from a revolver at Kellher. He waived a hearing and entered bail before Alderman DeLacey for his appearance at court.

FUNERAL OF "OLD ABSOLUTELY."

Remains Were Laid at Rest in Forest Hill Cemetery.

Many friends gathered at the African Methodist Episcopal church yesterday afternoon to pay their last respects to the memory of Edward Thomas Whiting, better known as "Old Absolutely."

The remains lay in an oak casket, over which was strewn beautiful flowers, and near which stood several sets of pianos. The services were very impressive and were conducted by Rev. Mr. Grant. His sermon was very pathetic and he made several touching references to the personal characteristics of the deceased.

The remains were borne to the Forest Hill cemetery by pall-bearers, selected from among his most intimate friends.

In setting the bit, he accidentally touched the wrong lever and the five-inch bit was driven nearly through his left hand. Mr. Crowthers was assistant secretary of the Young Men's Christian association of that place for several years.
