COURT RESUMES AFTER VACATION

Grand Jury Met and Was Charged and Constables Made Returns.

SEVERAL TIPLING HOUSES FOUND

There are a few places in the county, the Constables say, where the Liquor Laws are Not Respected. Number of Equity Cases Continued. Hearing in the Case of Borough of Winton and Others vs. Patrick Mulherin and Others.

The summer vacation of the county courts came to an end yesterday, when the grand jury met and constables made their quarterly reports to court. Later in the day Equity court began. Judge Gunster was the only one of the judges on the bench yesterday. No opinions were handed down. From now until next June the courts will be in session almost constantly.

Early in the morning Judge Gunster directed that the grand jury be sworn and he then charged them as to the duties they will be called upon to perform. G. O. Sommers, of Spring Brook, was made foreman of the grand jury and was sworn in. The grand jury is composed of the following: G. O. Sommers, of Spring Brook, was made foreman of the grand jury and was sworn in. The grand jury is composed of the following: G. O. Sommers, of Spring Brook, was made foreman of the grand jury and was sworn in.

One of the cases considered yesterday was that against Alexander Pachaski and Frank Yarnsawich, who are charged with killing Albert Wintergrass at the Northwest colliery, above Carbondale, about two months ago. There was a fight in one of the houses near the colliery and during the trouble Wintergrass received a wound. The next day he was dead and the coroner's autopsy showed that death was due to a blood clot on the brain. Pachaski and Yarnsawich are charged with causing the blood clot, but they stoutly deny all responsibility for it.

RETURNS OF CONSTABLES.

Returns of violators of the liquor laws were made by a few of the constables. Constable Davis, of Old Forge, returned P. J. Conway and Arnelo Sardenello for keeping tippling houses. Others returned for the same cause were John Zierski and Frank Wontowski, of the Second ward of Dickson City, by Constable Henry Dicks; Edward Stragus, of the Second ward of Scranton, by Constable Bernard Davis; Fred. Hug, of the Twentieth ward of Scranton, by Constable Michael McMurray. As part of his report Constable Hollister Carpenter, of the township, presented the following letter:

Mr. Carpenter, Constable of Benton Township:
Sir—You are hereby requested to make return to the next court of quarter sessions of the county that the hotel kept by Mr. Potter at Fleetville, Lackawanna county, harbors from time to time a large number of drunken men who keep a disturbance in the neighborhood during the hours of the night and annoying the peace of the neighborhood, also George Freeman who resides about his place during late hours of the night a lot of drunken men and boys who also disturb the neighborhood and harbors the same in drunken condition and encourages the same. Yours,
O. F. Gunther.

The returns and the letter were referred to the district attorney. After the reports of constables were disposed of a number of candidates for citizenship were examined and granted naturalization papers. The equity list was then taken up and the following cases continued: Joseph Fellows vs. C. Smith and John Stanley Smith; R. E. Hurley vs. the Delaware and Hudson Canal company; Louisa Lyman vs. Lewis Smith and Margaret Smith. The only case remaining on the list is the Borough of Winton and others against Patrick Mulherin and others. It was called up for a hearing. The plaintiffs are represented by ex-Senator W. W. Watson, Attorney W. S. Diehl and Attorney L. H. Burns and the defendants by O'Brien & Kelly and Attorney A. D. Dean.

CAUSE OF PROCEEDINGS.

The plaintiffs are the borough of Winton, T. P. McAndrews, Burgess, and Joseph Langan, Thomas Bell, Benjamin Travis, Henry Dando, James Kane and Patrick Walsh, members of the borough council, and the defendants Patrick Mulherin and M. P. Judge, of the firm of Mulherin & Judge, Michael F. Barrett, Peter J. Burke and Michael J. Gallagher, also borough councilmen. In 1895 the borough council decided to erect a borough building. There was a dispute as to where the building should be located, but it was finally decided to build it on a lot purchased from the Hillside Coal and Iron company and Mullerin & Judge were awarded the contract for erecting a structure to cost about $5,000. About this time the following resolution was passed:

Resolved, By the borough council of Winton borough that no further action be taken toward the erection of a borough house on the lot of the Hillside Coal and Iron company, situated near Church street, and that notice be given to this effect of all bidders.

Mulherin & Judge nevertheless proceeded to begin the work of erecting the building for which they received the contract, but were stopped by the injunction proceedings which were up for consideration yesterday. The defendants assert that the contract for the building was legally awarded and that they have the right to proceed with the erection of it in accordance with the provisions of the contract. The hearing in the case was not completed yesterday and will be continued today.

RENTZ-SANTLEY BURLESQUERS.

A Pleasing Entertainment Given at Davis' Theater.

Notwithstanding the high temperature which usually works against the theatrical enterprise, Davis' theatre was well filled yesterday afternoon and evening by enthusiastic audiences that welcomed the Rentz-Santley Extravaganza troupe. The company includes an amusing variety in the way of band music, acrobats, skit drama, and comedians, and the musical sketches presented abound in artistic scenery and dazzling costumes.

The entertainment is a one designated a "Review of Pleasure," and contained a little of almost everything that is pleasing in the line of burlesque. The first review consisted principally of the latest songs, interspersed with witticisms and jokes. The specialty programme in the second review opened with amusing work by Maddox and King, in which the "Tough Boy" and "Rube" had an opportunity to introduce a number of new jokes. The comedians followed in a musical and terpsichorean sketch, which won much applause. Annie Sylvester, a trick bicycle rider, introduced some venturesome feats which kept the attention of the main portion audience, who imagined that the act would probably end in a job for the coroner, or at least a surgeon.

William St. Clair and Louise Lorens gave a funny sketch, entitled "A Woman of Few Words," which was well received, as was also the song of the Misses Walsh and dancing of J. J. Gaffney.

Probably the most original act of the programme was given by Maud Caswell and Arthur Arnold, acrobats of unusual ability, who astonished all by their marvelous performance.

The company will appear at Davis' theatre this and tomorrow afternoon and evening.
