ANNUAL MEETING OF THE W. C. T. U.

Interesting Sessions at Dalton, Afternoon and Evening. ABLE ADDRESS OF THE PRESIDENT. They Spoke Encouragingly of the Outlook for the Movement—Report of the Secretary Mrs. J. M. Howell, Contained a Number of Statistics. Mrs. Mable Conklin, of Brooklyn, N. Y., Delivered an Address—Programme for Today.

The eleventh annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union opened yesterday afternoon at Dalton. The pretty Methodist church where it was held was a bower of flowers about altar and windows. After devotional exercises, Mrs. C. D. Simpson, president of the union, called the convention to order. A large number of delegates and others were present.

Rev. Charles Newing, pastor of the church, gave an address of welcome that really welcomed and was not the lukewarm effort usually made by pastors toward visiting temperance convention. His remarks were ably seconded by Mrs. Smith, who, in behalf of the local union, cordially greeted the officers and delegates. Seldom have the conventions of the past been so warmly welcomed.

The response was given by Mrs. M. W. Vaughn, of Moscow, who in fitting terms expressed the delight of the visitors at the kindly expressions of their officers. After the minutes of the last meeting, Mrs. C. D. Simpson gave the president's address, which was heard with much appreciative attention. Her words carried weight not alone because of the great cause they plead for their simplicity and directness.

CRITICIZED SEVERELY.

She spoke encouragingly of the outlook and yet criticized with some severity the anarchy to be noticed where its absence should be. She gave suggestions for department work and urged more definite efforts on the part of the officers. Two great channels were mentioned as being available in the way of advance, viz., the public schools and the Sunday schools. Zealous endeavor in these directions will surely work mighty results. They are the open doors where entrance may be made for instruction in scientific temperance and temperance lessons.

The work in the Loyal Temperance Legion has been nobly sustained in the county, through the efforts of Mrs. Pease, the assistant superintendent of that work, while Mrs. Swartz had been obliged to resign, because of illness in her family. Among the obstacles in the way of this work are difficulties in securing places of meeting, superintendents and teachers. Mrs. Simpson spoke of the fact that many newspapers would open their columns to the temperance work if women could be found to keep them filled with live matter.

She then said, impressively: "The Woman's Christian Temperance union of the nineteenth century is a fact. Whatever the future may hold for us, the past cannot be ignored. We have lived and much of our work has been wrought into the warp and woof of eternity. But a great past does not insure a great future. There have been organizations, laws, customs, institutions, even churches which have come upon the plane of past activity have played a mighty part and then have passed away. Whatever goes from the nineteenth into the twentieth century goes not because of the great work it did, but because it fits a place in the twentieth, because the work God would have it do is not finished. What place has the W. C. T. U. in all this?"

POWER OF WOMAN.

The power of woman and her work were then portrayed and the speaker closed with a strong appeal to her sisters in the temperance cause.
