The miners ask for an increase in the price paid for mining coal from 75 cents to $1, less docking for cars, and pay for all rock over six inches thick, instead for all rock over nine inches thick, as at present the price being fifty cents a yard. Superintendent Owens told the men that he would personally see that there would be no unfair dockage and that he would restore the yardage for driving cross headings. As to the third demand, an increase in the rate of mining, Mr. Owens referred the committee to Mr. Lathrop. The latter, however, refused to grant any further concessions. They will, however, return to work with two of their principal claims granted. The employes of No. 2 are still out, but it is expected that their grievances will soon be adjusted satisfactorily.

NEW MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

A Positive Cure for Dyspepsia.

This may read as though we were putting it a little strong because it is generally thought by the majority of people that Dyepepsia in its chronic form is incurable, or practically so. But we have long since shown that Dyspepsia is curable nor is it such a difficult matter as at first appears.

The trouble with Dyspeptics is that they are continually dieting, starving themselves, or going to opposite extremes or else deluging the already over burdened stomach with "bitters," "after dinner pills," etc., which invariably increase the difficulty even if in some cases they do give a slight temporary relief. Such a treatment of the stomach simply make matters worse. What the stomach wants is a rest. Now how can the stomach become rested, recuperated and at the same time the body nourished and sustained.

This is the great secret and this is also the secret of the uniform success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. This is a comparatively new remedy, but its success and popularity leaves no doubt as to its merits.

The tablets will digest the food anyway, regardless of condition of stomach.

The sufferer from Dyspepsia according to directions is to eat an abundance of good, wholesome food and use the tablets before and after each meal and the result will be that the food will be digested no matter how bad your dyspepsia may be, because as before stated, the tablets will digest the food even if the stomach is wholly inactive. To illustrate our meaning plainly, if you take 1,800 grains of meat, eggs or ordinary food and place it in a temperature of 98 degrees, and put with it one of Stuart's Dyspepsia tablets will digest the meat or eggs almost as perfectly as if the meat was enclosed within the stomach.

The stomach may be ever so weak yet these tablets will preform the work of digestion and the body and brain will be properly nourished and at the same time a radical, lasting cure of dyspepsia will be made because the much abused stomach will be given, to some extent, a much needed rest. Your druggist will tell you that of the many remedies advertised to cure dyspepsia none of them has given so complete and general satisfaction as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and not least in importance in these hard times is the fact that they are also the cheapest and give the most good for the least money

JOHN SHERMAN'S INTERVIEW.

He Thought He Had Not Talked Much to the Reporter, but the Printed Report Undeceived Him.

Pixley, in the Times-Herald.

Senator Sherman is not an easy prey for the newspaper boys. Throughout Ohio he has long been called "the Mansfield icicle" because of his personal frigidity; and yet he is at all times kindly, courteous and to those who enjoy his confidence even affable. But when he quietly says that he "has nothing to say for publication" the interviewer may as well retire at once.

"The newspaper reporter," he once remarked to me, "is the greatest enigma of the nineteenth century. I am interested in him always, respect him generally and fear him sometimes. But I never cease to wonder at his resourcefulness in searching for news.

"Shortly after I was appointed secretary of the treasury in President Hayes' cabinet I had occasion to go to New York on business of an official nature which I wanted to keep strictly quiet. I took especial pains to guard against newspaper men and flattered myself that I had succeeded pretty well.

"I transacted my business without reportoial interruption and fancied that I had entirely eluded the fraternity. As I entered the elevator at the hotel to go to my room, however, I found that the car contained one other passenger who, instinctively, I felt was a member of the bohemian tribe.

"The car started upward, but between the second and third floors it got stuck and came to a dead stop. Apparently the elevator boy had lost control of it and was unable to start it in either direction.

I instantly divined that the cause of the stoppage was a half dollar given to the boy by the reporter for making me captive. The shrewdness of the plan amused me greatly and I suppose such enterprises really deserved to be rewarded, but I kept as mum as an oyster and refused to answer a single question of the volley fired at me at point blank range.

"The reporter gave up the interview as a bad job, and the car again started upward. As I left it I couldn't forbear the pleasure of saying with malicious earnestness: 'Young man, you will confer a gret favor on me if you will not print what I have just said to you.

"'I'd like to oblige you senator,' he replied, with much seriousness, 'but business is business, and the story will have to go.'

"Somehow, I recalled that episode a dozen times on my trip back to Washington. When I arrived I picked up a New York paper, and there on the first page, staring at me under great, black headlines, was a two-column interview touching upon nearly all the leading questions of the day and giving my views upon the very financial matters which had taken me to the metropolis.

"At first I was boiling mad. Then I sat down to read the article through. It was a work of art—well written and carefully edited. It gave my views precisely, did not misrepresent me in the slightest particular, and in fact, voiced my ideas in better shape than I probably could have done the work myself. I was more than pleased; I was delighted and really felt quite relieved that the vexed question of publicity had been settled so well. My first work after finishing the article was to send a telegram to the New York paper thanking its representative for the care he had shown in reporting me corectly. Pretty soon a telegram was handed to me. It was dated New York and merely said:

To Senator Sherman: Thank you. The elevator is running all right today.

"It bore the name of the reporter—a name I had never heard before and have never heard since."

Oil Market.

Oil City, Pa., Sept. 23—Certificates opened weak but closed firm with 72½ bid; sales, 1,000 barrels at 70½; cherdit balances advanced to 70, and refined market up 10 points; shipments, 107,561 barrels; runs, 164,895 barrels.

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review

New York, Sept. 23.—The recovery in prices which began yesterday continued today during the earlier part of the session of the stock exchange, and the advance of prices of all stocks was apparently in full force again until the afternoon, when the support seemed to be withdrawn from the market and prices fell away to a general level below last night's close. The advance of the morning ranged from 1 to 2 points in nearly all of the active shares. Besides the share price in Sugar, Consolidated Gas was at one time 6 1-2 points up and Broklyn Union Gas nearly three points. There were other gains exceeding the average but none of them were retained except Hocking Valley, Delaware and Hudson, Pittsburg, Chicago, Cincinnati and St. Louis, Laclede Gas and Susquehanna and Western preferred, which gained a point or over. The losses also, which were numerous, were confined to frictions excepting in the case of Broklyn Union Gas and Baltimore and Ohio among the active stocks. Among the less active stocks, gains of a point or over were shown by Cotton Oil preferred, Lake Shore, Minneapolis and St. Louis (2 1-4,) do. on second preferred, Norfolk and Western preferred, Oregon Navigation preferred and Pullman. Rumors were disseminated late in the day that further engagements for gold for import had been made but they exercised no influence on the market. Dealings in bonds showed a falling off in volume and prices moved in sympathy with stocks. Total sales, $2,800,000. United States new fours adwere numerous, were confined to fractwere 541,400 shares.
