The boy lost control of his wheel and ran into the horses, falling off his wheel, the rear wheel passed over him. Fortunately the vehicle is a light-bodied one, and contained nothing heavy, and as the horses were walking at the time his escape from very serious injury was lucky. OBITUARY.

Francis Brady, sr., one of the best known residents of the South Side, died yesterday morning at his home on Center street after an illness of seven weeks. Mr. Brady was born in Ireland 58 years ago and came to Scranton when a mere youth. He was employed in old rolling mill soon after it was started and afterwards was one of the trusted foremen of the Lackawanna iron and coal company. For some time Mr. Brady had been in charge of the big finishing engines in the South mill. Some years ago Mr. Brady took an active interest in the politics of the Twentieth ward and was a man of much influence. Of late years, however, he has not taken any part in the political conflicts for which that ward is famous. Mr. Brady was a member of St. John's Catholic church, and president of St. Patrick's Total Abstinence and Benevolent society. His wife and six sons and daughters survive him. They are: Miss Mamie Brady, Mrs. Michael Madden, of Manistec, Mich.; Mrs. Martin Cannon, Francis Brady, Jr., John J. Brady and James G. Brady.

Mr. Patrick Conway died at 6.30 last evening at her home, 416 Railroad avenue, this city, after an illness of about six months. Officers Re-elected.

They Will Decide Where the Next Convention of Home and Foreign Missionary Societies Will Be Held.

Yesterday morning in Grace Lutheran church was held the closing meeting of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary society of the North Branch conference of the Susquehanna Synod.

Last year's officers, as elected, are: President, Mrs. F. H. Jenkins, Bloomsburg; vice president, Mrs. J. A. Kinner, Sellersgrove; secretary, Miss Harriet Wertheimer, Danville; treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Weber, Sunbury.

The place for holding the next meeting was left to the officers to decide.

The meeting began with a devotional service. An excellent paper by Mrs. J. H. Barb, of Sellersgrove, on "Individual Responsibility, or the Duty of Everyone to Carry the Gospel to the Heathen." The conference work was discussed by Mrs. E. B. Hill, of Catawissa, and others. Mrs. M. L. Shindel, of Danville, conducted the question box period. The closing religious service was led by Rev. Foster U. Gift, pastor of Grace church.

Resolutions were adopted by a fling in the morning, and along to places without success, and along to places at night, after an unsuccessful visit to the blast furnace, started for home.

On the Cedar avenue bridge he met a couple of rather friendly appearing fellows and inquired of them the way to the Pittston car line. They told him he was going in the wrong direction and offered to pilot him to the right place.

Never suspecting anything wrong he followed them. They took him back over the bridge, and up the embankment to the old Orchard grounds, near the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company's lumber yard, saying to him that it was a short cut to Pittston avenue, where they told him he would have to go to catch his car.

When the middle of the field was reached one of the ruffians struck Miller from behind, and as he fell to the ground the other commenced raining blows on his head and face. He was rendered unconscious, and while thus helpless he was relieved of all his valuables, including the small amount of money, something like $1.25, which he had with him.

Persons who had heard his outcries found him some time after his assailants had gotten away and took him to a nearby house, where his cut and bruised face was attended to. After some little attention he was able to go home alone, his car fare being supplied by one of the men who found him in the field.

Miller gave a fair description of his assailants and the police are striving to identify them. One of the pair was dressed in working clothes, and carried a dinner all.

LOOKS BAD FOR M'HALE.

Bruno Grego Makes a Very Serious Charge Against Him.

The case of Constable John McHale, of Jerome, charged by Bruno Grego with robbing, was heard by Alderman Howe yesterday afternoon in the presence of an office full of spectators. After hearing the testimony of the principals the case was again adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning, when either witnesses will be present.

Attorney John P. Kelly represented McHale and Attorney Nathan Vidaver and John T. Martin the prosecution.

Grego testified that on Sept. 21 his boarding mistress, Mrs. John Spatta, gave him $125 with which he was to pay bills. He placed $85 in his purse and $40 in his stocking. When Grego reached Archbald, he avers, he was placed under arrest by McHale, who held a warrant, sworn out by John Spatta, charging false pretenses. McHale took Grego before Justice of the Peace Gildoy and searched him. The $85 in the purse, Grego says, was taken from him.

Afterward, when prosecution was threatened, according to Grego, the constable offered to give back $65 if he would drop the matter. Grego refused to do this. McHale, when called, said that when he searched Grego he found a couple of bills in his pocket but he returned them to the owner. He also found a knife, which originally was a table knife, but had been pointed and sharpened like a stiletto. He took this from Grego and afterward brought a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

The boarding mistress testified that she had given the sum of money to Grego and that the money was turned over to the $40 which he had placed in his sock.

SAVINGS OF JEFFERSON.

The execution of the laws is more important than the making of them.

Agriculture, manufacture, commerce and navigation, the four pillars of our prosperity, are the most thriving when left most free to individual enterprise.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers, or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter.

If we are faithful to our country, if we acquiesce with good will at the decisions of the majority, and the nation moves in mass in the same direction, although it may not be that which every individual thinks best, we have nothing to fear from any quarter.

I never appointed a relative to office, and that merely because I never saw the case in which some one did not offer, or occur, better qualified.

The introduction of one new culture is worth more to a nation than all the victories of the most splendid battles of their history.

Every man, and every body of men on earth, possesses the right of self-government. They receive it with their being from the laws of nature. Individuals exercise it by their single will; collections of men by that of their majority; for the law of the majority is the general law of every society of men.

Educate and inform the whole mass of the people. Enable them to see that it is their interest to preserve peace and order, and they will preserve them.

The press is the best instrument for enlightening the mind of man and improving him as a rational, moral and social being.

Each generation is as independent of the one preceding as that was of all which had gone before. It has, then, like them, a right to choose for itself the form of government it believe most promotive of its own happiness.

New York, like London, seems to be a cloaca (sewer) of all the depravities of human nature.

I have ever deemed it fundamental for the United States never to take active part in the quarrels of Europe. Their political interests are entirely distinct from ours. Their mutual jealousies, their balance of power, their complicated alliances, their forms and principles of government are all foreign to us. They are nations of eternal war.

Taxes on consumption, like those on capital or income, to be just, must be uniform.

The press confined to truth needs no other restraint.

I place economy among the first and most important of republican virtues, and public debt as the greatest of the dangers to be feared.

The New England townships are the vital principle of their governments, and have proved themselves the wisest invention ever devised by the wit of man for the perfect exercise of self-government and for its preservation.

The true foundation of republican government is the equal right of every citizen in his person and property and in his management.

A government is republican in proportion as every member composing it has his equal voice in the direction of its concerns by reason of his individuality and responsible to him at short intervals.
