SAD CONDITION OF HOWIE CHILDREN

They Are Living in a Hovel on the Mountain Side Near Marshwood.

VISITED BY MRS. W. B. DUGGAN

She Found Their Surroundings Far from What They Should Be and Last Night Laid Their Case Before the Olyphant Poor Board.

A report that the family of Abram Howie, living on the East mountain, back of Marshwood, had eaten a horse's head as food, was investigated yesterday by Mrs. W. B. Duggan, agent for the Associated Board of Charities, and resulted in the discovery of great poverty and degradation.

As the visitors approached two small faces protruded from a single window in the house, which is made of rough logs and about 3 1/2 in. in size. The building stands alone on high stony ground and is about three miles from any other house.

Inside the scene was repulsive. Besides the two children who sat upon a dusty table and looked out of the window there were other youngsters, the eldest a boy, 11 years of age.

STRANGERS TO WATER.

All looked as if their bodies had touched no water in many, many days. The dirt seemed a part of the flesh. A peculiarity was noticed in the closely cropped hair of each. When questioned one of the children stated that the father cut their hair with a shears. They were dressed in ragged, unclean clothing. A five-year-old boy wore nothing except his sister's cloth sack. There was but one room with an attic and in the room was a rusty old stove without any fire, and in all the furniture amounted to two broken chairs and the table. In a far corner was a heap of rags.

"What are these used for?" asked Mrs. Duggan.

"Oh, that's our bed," explained one of the children, a girl 9 years old. "It was brought home some straw tonight," she added.

"What does your father do?" "He sells things in a wagon."

"Has he a horse?" "No, he has a mule though."

It was found that their mother has been dead two years and that the father, Abram Howie, goes away to Marshwood to peddle produce, leaving the children from early morning until night in the house to take care of themselves.

"What do you have to eat?" asked Mrs. Duggan.

"Oh, pa brings us home some things people gives him. We had a loaf of bread last night," said the girl.

"Is it true that you ate a horse's head the other day?" asked the charity agent.

"Oh, no, it was a cow's head."

WAS A CALF'S HEAD.

The girl said this as if a very serious mistake had been made. She explained how things are cooked—by a wood fire in the old stove. A lamp without a chimney was burning on the table. Mrs. Duggan, in looking about noticed this, and asked what it meant. The girl explained that they had to keep the lamp burning so that they could light the fire.

All the water they use is carried by the 11-year-old boy from a spring on the mountain, over a mile away. The children, despite the dirt which clung to their flesh, were fat and healthy looking. They had never been to school.

A visit was made to the attic. Here the floor was covered with clothes, on which some of the children sleep. The stench was terrible.

Mrs. Duggan last night, by virtue of her authority as a state special officer, appeared before the Olyphant poor board and laid the case before them. Action will probably be taken to have the surroundings of the children improved.

BURIAL OF THE VICTIMS.

Three of the Dead Miners at Jermyn No. 1 Laid to Rest.

The remains of Isaac Watkins, William Tompkins and William Franklin, victims of black damp in Jermyn mine, No. 1, were interred yesterday. The services were attended by a great assemblage of sympathizers.

The Watkins and Tompkins funerals were held from the formers' home on Main avenue, Rendham, and interment was made in Marcy cemetery, Lackawanna. "Franklin's remains were laid at rest in the cemetery at Durysa.

ABDUCTION IS CHARGED.

Mrs. Gillon Accused of Unlawfully Detaining Mamie Flanagan.

A hearing on the very unusual charge of abduction took place in Alderman Roberts' office last evening. Mrs. Bridget Gillon was the accused party, and the prosecutors were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Flanagan.

Two weeks ago, it appears Mamie Flanagan, the 15-year-old daughter of the prosecutors, disappeared from her home at 433 and 435 Spruce street.

home, and yesterday it came to the ears of the parents that their daughter had sought shelter with Mrs. Gillon. They went thither to seek her, but failed to find her. Their visit heightened their faith in the story that the girl was at the Gillon house, and they proceeded to have her arrested in the hope of making her disclose where the girl is secreted.

Mrs. Gillon refused to give them any satisfaction at the hearing, and was held in $500 bail for a further hearing.

NOVACK GETTING WORSE.

Fears at the Hospital That He Will Not Recover.

Andrew Novack, who was struck on the head by a stone, and was taken to the Lackawanna hospital with a depressed fracture of the skull, was in a critical condition last night. The hospital physicians gave out last night that Novack was sinking rapidly and his recovery looked doubtful.

Novack is the man, this manner of whose injuries was at first a mystery. The case attracted the attention of County Detective Leshaw, who was given in yesterday's Tribune.

HUNT FOR THE BURGLARS

Is Being Prosecuted by the Police in a Lively Manner—Two Suspicious Characters Arrested.

The robbery of the Bogart residence Thursday night has focused the most strenuous criminal hunt ever made in this city. All day yesterday and late last night the city police department bent every energy to the discovery of anything which might lead to an arrest.

Chief of Police Frank Robling, Detective Moir and the other officers of the police force were at work on the case, and the prosecution of the work has also been entered into by several detectives employed by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company, of which Mr. Bogart is superintendent.

Last night at 8 o'clock Chief Robling and Detective Moir were called to consult with Auditor Bridgeman, of the company, who "had information worth hearing."

The conference was held in a private office at the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western station. George Moir, a young man who says the "probable burglars loitering about the Bogart residence, was present also at the conference. The result would not be given out.

Mr. Bogart thinks the work was done by experts. The clever break in the window glass, made of cut by a diamond in a triangular shape, just large enough to admit a man's hand, the daring lighting of the gas, the opening of all doors so that escape in an emergency might be readily made; the bursting open of satchels at the ends, leaving the locks untroubled; the fact that nothing was taken which might be cumbersome and nothing also which bore a name—these lead to the professional idea. Furthermore the knocking of a man on the door at the approach of any person would appear natural, but might really be a signal to the compatriots in the house.

The opinion that the work was done by local men is founded on the fact that the burglary was so well timed. There was only two hours of darkness in which to do the work—from 6:30 until the train from Binghamton with Mrs. Bogart arrived from Binghamton. It is argued that the burglars must have shined the famer very closely, knowing that only Mr. and Mrs. Bogart lived in the house, and that Mr. Bogart would wait the arrival of his wife. The work was done, also, at a time when it would not appear unusual to see lights in the house.

Telegrams have been sent to Binghamton, Wilkes-Barre, Pittston, Buffalo and other towns and cities. That the men are in this city yet is not improvable.

Yesterday two suspicious men were arrested by Mounted Officer Dyer and Patrolman L. P. Jones on Lackawanna avenue. They turned out to be tramps well known in local police circles.

Five silver napkin rings were the only articles found missing yesterday, which were not included in The Tribune's list.

Mr. and Mrs. Bogart have been affected very keenly by the burglary. Mrs. Bogart, particularly, suffered from the effects of the excitement following the discovery. Special Officer Philip Goertitz was stationed at the residence during Thursday night and last night.

ONE CASE WHERE DOCTORS DISAGREE

Some Say One Thing and Others Say the Diametric Opposite.

BURSHELL BARED HIS BREST

After Three Good Physicians and True Had Looked Him Over They Agreed That He Was Sound in Every Respect and Never Had Been Injured as Claimed by the Three Physicians, Equally Good and True, Who Testified for the Plaintiff.

The defense in the Burschell case against the Scranton Traction company started in yesterday morning to show that the plaintiff is not permanently injured and force the conclusion that he is foxing for the purpose of increasing the expected allowance of damages.

The plaintiff's expert witnesses, Dr. L. H. Gibbs, Dr. William Haggerty and Dr. S. P. Longstreet, testified during the previous day without equivocation that Burschell's collar bone had been dislocated from the sternum, and that sufficient evidence of the fracture is still apparent to convince any physician that such an injury had been sustained.

Yesterday three other physicians, Dr. J. Emmet O'Brien, Dr. N. Y. Leet and Dr. W. E. Allen, testified for the defense that Burschell never had been injured as described, and gave it as their expert opinion that he was shamming.

Burschell was called upon to bare his breast before the jury, and the three physicians, after punching and pinching the alleged affected parts and showing to the jury just how Burschell was not affected in the least, proceeded with the conclusion, as Mr. Burns put "that Burschell was sounder now than he ever was, and he owed the Traction company a bill for repairs."

NEWCOMB AND THE DOCTORS.

There were some rather animated exchanges between Mr. Newcomb and the doctors when they were turned over to him for cross-examination. Dr. O'Brien, in particular, entering into the bantering. The special cause of the by-play between Dr. O'Brien and Mr. Newcomb was an effort on the part of the attorney to draw out from the doctor an admission that he was under salary of the Traction company to go around examining victims of street car accidents, and then giving testimony for the company.

The presentation of testimony was finished at adjourning time and the adjournment will be commenced this morning. Major Warren will go to the jury for the defense and Mr. Newcomb for the plaintiff. Mr. Burns will argue the law points for the plaintiff.

On account of Major Warren, one of the attorneys for the defense in the case, being engaged in the trial in the main court room, Judge Edwards agreed to a continuance of the McHugh case yesterday morning, and it will now go over until next term. In other cases being ready the jurors not engaged in the Burschell case were excused and Judge Edwards applied himself to work in chambers. In the case of Isaac B. Felts against A. R. Fredel, the jury yesterday morning made the following findings of fact: "At the time of the notice to quit there was not sufficient goods on premises to cover exemption laws that the rent due and in arrear April 8, 1894, from Friedel to Felts, was twelve dollars, and the rent due when Friedel vacated the premises was $206."

From these findings Judge Edwards will frame a verdict. It is a victory for the plaintiff.

MANY KINDS OF CANDY.

A candy carnival was given in the Young Women's Christian association rooms last evening under the direction of Miss Vernon.

Twenty-five varieties of candy were exhibited and sold. During the evening practical lessons were given showing how the many varieties had been made from one foundation called "Foudant." The attendance was not large. The recipe for "Foudant" was as follows:

Two cups of granulated sugar, one cup of water, boil together without stirring until it reaches the soft ball stage. Test by dipping finger in ice water and then into boiling mixture and then into ice water. Put on a ball. This can be put away and kept for months and used as the foundation for all candy.

Stereopticon Views.

A very fine selection of portraits, artistic gems, etc., will be exhibited on the large screen, court house square, this evening.
