GAVE HIM ANOTHER TRIAL

Although Stiles Deserted His Wife She Did Not Want to See Him Go to Jail.

Charles Stiles, 55 years of age, arrested for desertion and non-support, sat in Alderman Millar's office yesterday for nearly two hours pleading with his wife, Ellen Stiles, not to send him to jail, making profuse promises to be a better husband to her. He cried like a baby and finally succeeded in melting her resolve.

The Stiles lived in the North End, and about a year ago Stiles left his wife and since that time, with the exception of three days, he has spent his time elsewhere. The three days referred to were July 16, 17 and 18 of this year. On July 15 Mrs. Stiles caused her husband's arrest on the same charge, of desertion and non-support, and at the hearing before Alderman Millar Stiles promised to be faithful to the woman.

He kept his promise for just three days, and then disappeared. The woman saw him little since that time. Once she met him on Lackawanna avenue. He and another woman were walking the street with locked arms. At the office yesterday Mrs. Stiles said that this woman was a daughter of Stiles' sister; that he lives with her, and it is for her that he has deserted his own home. Stiles denied the accusation.

"May Richards," he said, "is in New York city." "No she is not," responded the woman whom he discarded; "May Richards is the woman I saw you with that night, and she is your sister's daughter."

"You're crazy," was Stiles' retort. Alderman Millar suggested that the only way to punish Stiles was to send him to jail. Stiles had been making all kinds of promises. He finally asked his wife: "Well, Ellen, are you going to see me go to jail, or will you let me come home with you?" She gave him another trial.

Stiles was arrested by Special Officer Byars. He had just secured a position as engineer of the little machine which hoists material at the new department store building.

Over $12,000,000 Deposited in Scranton's Central City Banks. At the close of banking hours yesterday afternoon there was $12,126,404.68 on deposit in Scranton's eight central city banks. These figures were obtained by Secretary Atherton, of the board of trade, for the purpose of making comparisons with a corresponding date in 1894, when the deposits aggregated $9,295,419.96.

The deposits yesterday were $2,736,984.70 more than three years ago, an increase of 29 per cent. The greatest increase was noted in savings institutions, though other banks showed large gains.

The Scranton deposits are over $4,000,000 more than those of Wilkes-Barre, exclusive of the deposits in this city's West Side bank.

Twenty-two Prisoners were Released Yesterday by Court. Twenty-two prisoners, who were in the county jail awaiting trial and whose alleged offenses were among those ignored by the last grand jury, were yesterday released on an order of court.

They were: Joseph Brown, Frank Majesky, Was' Arthur, Yurion Simchick, John Flannery, Jenkin Morgan, Martin Gallagher, Charles Albert, Andrew Cruminsky, Joseph Yuba, Matthew Vivord, William Clummin, Evan Jones, John Smith, Michael Leach, Willie General Reed, Mike Muskiel, William Newey, John Costello, Peter Reiber, Charles Varyosky.

Miss Anna Zaugg, of the shorthand department, went to a good position on Wednesday. At least twenty students have secured situations during the past few weeks.

Two requests this week, one for a bookkeeper and one for a stenographer. The exercise in rapid calculation greatly interested a number who visited the night school. Interest worked mentally was something new to them.

Many new students from the city and from a distance will come on Monday. Office open every day and evening except Sunday.

MISS THOMPSON TELLS HER STORY

Pays Her Respects to Dr. W. Donaldson H. Namar.

THEIR COURTSHIP IN NEW YORK

When He Went to Hartford, Conn., He Assured Her That He Was Going There to Make a Home for Her and That Then He Would Return and Marry Her—Exceptions Filed to the Declaration of Plaintiff by Attorneys for the Defendant.

Miss Laura Thompson, of New York city, the plaintiff in the $5,000 breach of promise suit against Dr. W. Donaldson H. Namar, was in this city yesterday in conference with her attorneys, Watson, Diehl, Hall & Kemper.

She had concluded to deny herself to interviewers, but after having read the statements of Dr. Namar, printed in yesterday's Tribune, she was not at all averse to speaking her mind freely concerning the defendant and his doings.

Miss Thompson is a petite lass, of the pronounced brunette type, and apparently of the age she says she is, twenty-four years. She was attired in a fashionable traveling suit of blueish-grey cloth, trimmed in black, and wore a jaunty small hat, with unadorned black trimmings and a heavy black veil, which hid the lineaments of her face, but not the large, lustrous black eyes and lashes and heavy, dark eyebrows.

She is a very intelligent young lady and at times displays not a little natural vivacity. Her hair is auburn and ready to fulfill her contract the affidavit does not state that she communicated the fact to the defendant.

Second—The affidavit does not set forth an offer on part of plaintiff and a refusal on the part of the defendant to marry. Third—Although the plaintiff states in her affidavit that she was "able, willing and ready" to fulfill her contract the affidavit does not state that she communicated the fact to the defendant.

Dr. Namar would have it appear," she said, after the reporter had introduced the matter of the statement printed yesterday, "that I am a loved and loved one, and I have been married for many years, and I have a family of children. I may have loved him once; I confess I did, but my only thing I love about him now is the $5000 of my hard-earned money that he has. As to whether or not my affection was anointed to him, I do not know. When the case comes to trial," holding up as she said this a bundle of letters that would fill a young bushel basket, which she stated were a part of the correspondence that had passed from her recent lover to herself. She would not give any of them out for publication, but she permitted the reporter to see enough of them to satisfy him that they are to all appearances and from common report really-truely mushy-mushy love letters.

HIS SHAME THE GREATER. "He says that Sadie Elder is his lawfully wedded wife and has been such for five years," continued Miss Thompson, referring to another portion of the interview at the jail. "The more the shame for him if that is true, for by this admission he says that as a wife living he made love to and engaged to marry me, and from the fact that during our two years' courtship he borrowed over $5000 of the money I earned as a dressmaker, leaving no other conclusion but that he stooped to the despicable practice of playing on a poor and innocent girl's affections in order to bleed her of the few dollars she made working with the needle."

Dr. Namar in New York through a mutual friend and almost immediately he began paying his addresses to me. He appeared to be a young man whom any girl would be proud to have as a friend or even lover, and when after some casual inquiries and from common report, I felt satisfied that he was all he appeared to be, I encouraged his attentions and when he proposed to me, some four months after our meeting, I accepted him.

He talked of opening up an office and beginning practice and after a time when he intimated that he was in need of money, and I offered to help him he accepted the proffer. After that I didn't need to urge him to accept help. He did not hesitate to ask it and I foolishly let him have it. He always referred to me as "my dear," and a matter of fact way, saying that as we were soon to be one, what was his wife to me, and what was mine would be his.

WHAT HE TOLD HER. "When he was leaving for Hartford I went with him to the station, and he told me that he hoped to soon be on his feet, and when he had made a home for me he would come back and make me his wife. For several months he writes to me every day, sometimes twice a day, assuring me as the letters will show, of his fidelity, and telling how he was working hard to make me a home. The usual plea of poverty and suggestion for a loan to meet office rent or buy instruments, or something of that kind, was continued, and not a month passed but what I sent him money. In fact, for two years I gave him every cent I could save, and I denied myself of every luxury to be able to help him as much as possible.

"In January of this year I was dumfounded upon opening his letter to read that he could no longer keep his engagements with me, as he had decided to marry Sadie Elder. When I recovered from the shock I wrote to him repeated letters entreating him not to thus ruthlessly desert me, but he disregarded them entirely. Then I sent an attorney to seek redress, but just about the time in suit was started he quit Hartford and came here. Now he has got him where he belongs, and I will have redress and show to the world who and what Dr. Namar really is.

ABOUT SADIE ELDER. "Early in our engagement he told me of this Sadie Elder, referring to her as a woman who, above all others, he detested. He related to me with tears in his eyes how she had tricked him and got him into trouble in Pittsburg and one evening when she was under discussion he said to me: 'If I knew I had to die tonight, I would pray to be spared long enough to go to Pittsburg and kill her.' If Sadie Elder was his wife all this time she certainly was a deceiving scoundrel."

Speaking of the unavailing attempts of the accused to get ball, Miss Thompson, with a sneer, remarked: "If he is a nephew of Stonewall Jackson and Dr. J. Marion Simms, as he represented himself to be to me, it is a wonder he wouldn't get some of his influential relatives to go his bail."

Miss Thompson says that Namar's original name is Simms, and that his diplomas contained that name, but that after his trouble with Miss Elder in Pittsburg he changed his name, for the purpose, as she says he told her, to hide his whereabouts from the Pittsburg woman and prevent his family from learning of his troubles, if any should develop from his Pittsburg escapade.

There was quite a little activity on the part of Dr. Namar's friends yesterday in efforts to secure his release from imprisonment. His attorneys, Clarence Balentine, Russell Dimmick and George C. Yocum, filed the following exceptions to the plaintiff's declaration, with Prothonotary Pryor, during the morning: Laura Thompson vs. William Donald H. Namar.

FULLER PROPERTY SOLD FOR $40,000

Was Purchased by L. N. Kramer from E. L. and C. R. Fuller.

BUILDING MAY BE REPLACED

It is Now Occupied by Rexford and is One of the Oldest on Lackawanna Avenue—Lot Extends from Lackawanna Avenue Back to Centre Street and is Improved with a Four Story Building.

L. N. Kramer, the clothier, yesterday purchased the Fuller property at 305 Lackawanna avenue, now occupied by Rexford, from E. L. and C. R. Fuller. The consideration has not been made public, but it is understood that it is $40,000.

The property extends through to Centre street. The present four-story building occupying the site is one of the oldest on the avenue and may before long be replaced with a larger and handsomer structure. Mr. Kramer states that he bought the property with no particular purpose in view, simply taking it from the market as a real estate speculation.

PROSPEROUS SCRANTON BANK.

Scranton Savings Bank and Trust Co. Capital Stock Increased. The stockholders of the Scranton Savings Bank and Trust company held a meeting yesterday at which they determined, in view of the growth of the bank, to increase its capital stock from fifty thousand dollars to one hundred thousand dollars. Nearly all of the stock was represented and the vote to increase the capital as indicated was practically unanimous. In the resolution to increase the stock it is provided that each stockholder may subscribe for his pro rata share of the increase.

This is one of the oldest and one of the most successful savings banks in the city. It was organized by the late Judge Handley in 1875 and he was its president until he was elected as judge of the Luzerne county courts. He was succeeded in 1877 by Judge E. N. Willard, who was the president of the institution for twenty-one years and until he was elected judge of the superior court.

The present officers of the bank are: President, L. A. Watres, vice president, O. S. Johnson; cashier, H. Christy. The directors are: L. A. Watres, O. S. Johnson, Major Everett Warren, August Robinson, E. P. Kingsbury and Milo J. Wilson. The bank has a surplus of $50,000, besides undivided profits.

TROLLEY CARS CAME TOGETHER.

Mrs. Edward Matthews Fell to the Pavement and Had Her Head Cut. Mrs. Edward Matthews, of Susquehanna street, was severely injured Thursday afternoon on Penn avenue, near the Dickson works. Mrs. Matthews was riding in an open Peckville car, which was brought to a standstill by a wagon that was across the track. The motorman of a car that was coming after the one in which Mrs. Matthews rode did his best to stop it, but was not successful and the two cars came together. Mrs. Matthews fell out on the pavement and had the back of her head badly cut. She was also severely shaken up and bruised.
