

SAGASTA IS SUMMONED

The Liberal Leader Is Asked by the Queen to Form a Cabinet.

WORK TO BE UNDERTAKEN

The New Minister Will Have No Sinecure.

He Will Undertake the Task--Weyler Is Making Great Efforts to Remain in Cuba, But He Will Certainly Be Re-elected--Admiral Bermejo Has Accepted the Ministry of Marine.

Madrid, Oct. 3.--Senator Sagasta, leader of the liberals was received yesterday by the Queen Regent, who requested him to form a Cabinet to replace that of General Azcarraza, which resigned on Wednesday last. Senator Sagasta consented to undertake the task.

It is understood that Admiral Bermejo has accepted the position of Minister of Marine.

It is certain that Captain-General Weyler has not resigned. He is making great efforts to remain in Cuba, but Senator Sagasta will undoubtedly recall him.

The ministerial changes will not affect the instructions which United States Minister Woodford originally received from President McKinley. Both General Woodford and Senator Sagasta the premier, maintain absolute reserve on the question of American relations to Spain.

Leading Liberals, however, declare that Spain can never officially accept American mediation in Cuba affairs.

Senator Sagasta had a conference with the queen regent today, and it is expected that the new Cabinet will be completed tomorrow. General Canalejas has accepted the portfolio of Minister of war.

Washington, Oct. 3.--So far as could be learned, no Spanish news was received by the state department today. Assistant Secretary Day said that he had heard nothing from Minister Woodford, and Secretary Sherman said that he had no information to give out. The members of the Spanish legation remaining in town refused to be seen.

CROWDS AT GETTYSBURG.

Thousands of Visitors Through the Battlefield.

Gettysburg, Pa., Oct. 3.--The crowd in town and on the battlefield today exceeded anything in the kind this season, numbering fully eight thousand. Philadelphia led in the number of people, although Reading, Harrisburg and Altoona were well represented. The thousands of visitors crowded the trolley cars and every back in and around the town was pressed into service, while thousands of visitors walked to the more prominent points on the field. The center of attraction seemed to be "high water mark," where the majority of the visitors were to witness the description of the three days' battle. The trains were all on schedule time and the weather during the afternoon was clear and pleasant, affording the visitors all the pleasure they could ask. Everything passed off pleasantly and nothing of an accidental character occurred.

EXPERIENCE OF AN ARTIST.

Henry Savage Landon Is Tortured on the Stretching Log by Thibetans.

Bombay, Oct. 3.--Henry Savage Landon, a well known artist, traveler and writer, and grandson of the celebrated Walter Savage Landon, has just returned to India after a terrible experience. He had undertaken an exploring tour in Thibet, but he was abandoned by all the members of his company except two coolies. Finally the Thibetans arrested him by an act of treachery, sentenced him to death, and torturing him with hot irons, actually carried him to the execution ground. At almost the last moment the execution was stopped by the grand lama, who commuted the sentence to torture by the "stretching log," a species of rack which greatly injured Mr. Landon's spine and limbs. After being chained for eight days he was released. Mr. Landon has no fewer than two or three wounds as the result of his torture.

MONTHLY WEATHER CHART TO BE ISSUED

Secretary Wilson Decides to Make Use of Some of the Great Fund of Meteorological Information Contained in the Bureau.

Washington, Oct. 3.--It is the policy of Secretary James Wilson to extend the operations of the department of agriculture along all useful lines authorized by law. Recently, after a consultation with the chief meteorologist, he decided to make use of some of the great fund of meteorological information contained in the weather bureau by having a monthly chart of the weather prepared and published, showing a month in advance what mariners might reasonably expect. The first of this series of monthly charts was made for the month of October, and the weather bureau yesterday. It gives information relative to the present month of October. It shows the principal tracks pursued by the weather systems in the region. The track of greatest frequency is eastward along the center of Lake Superior. The storm track next in importance is from the northwest, through the northeast to Abena. The next in order is a line drawn from the southern part of Lake Michigan, northeast to Port Huron, and the last mentioned is represented by a line drawn from Port Arthur southeast to Palauky, Mich. In other words, it is during the coming month, a storm center in the region of any of these tracks, he can very accurately determine what the future course and can steer accordingly.

The chart shows the normal wind direction for the coming month at each one of the principal stations, and about the number of foggy days that may be expected on different portions of the several lakes, as determined by the records of the past five years. The chart is printed on the back of the chart shows the location of all the danger signals of the weather bureau--about 125 in all. The chart also contains other information useful to vessel masters.

BASE BALL MAGNATE SUES A RAILROAD CO.

A Case in Equity Against a Cleveland Corporation of Which M. A. Hanna Is President.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 3.--Frank DeHans Robinson, the base ball magnate, has begun suit in equity against the Cleveland City Railway company, M. A. Hanna, president, and the Cleveland City Railway, John J. Shipper, one of the members of the board of directors, asking for relief and the appointment of a referee to investigate the affairs of the company as well as an injunction to prevent the payment of the dividend declared at a recent meeting.

Recognizing that the first obligation of every friend of good government in the greater city of New York is to the cause of united action against Tammany Hall at the coming election, the Republican party has spared no endeavor to bring into harmonious relations all elements in the community which might be united in the interest of a successful campaign and a sound and patriotic government. That these efforts have failed is due solely to the position of the Citizens' Union, which has persistently refused to be a unifying force among the friends of good government, whose nomination by the Republican party has been rendered impossible by the acts of himself and his associates, and whose personal attitude to the question of his own candidacy is a chief source of discord and division. The Republican city committee has therefore resolved, that the candidates nominated by the Republican city convention: For Mayor--Benjamin F. Tracy, For Comptroller--John J. Frawley, For President of the Council--R. Ross Appleton, will remain in the field until the polls close on the night of election day, and any candidate who may not be a unifying force among the friends of good government is opposed to the restoration of Tammany Hall and Bryanism is urged to give his prompt and active support to these, the only Tammany candidates who can be elected.

GENERAL TRACY IS IN TO STAY

Republicans Give Up Hope of a Union Against Tammany.

THEY ARE INDIGNANT AT LOW

From Now On It Is to Be a Red-Hot Campaign for the Straight Republican Ticket--Official Announcement by the Greater New York Campaign Committee--It's Tracy or George.

New York, Oct. 3.--The Republican warriors from Senator Platt down, gave up all hope yesterday of inducing the Citizens' Union to adopt sound patriotic motives in the greater municipal campaign. Since the nomination of General Tracy by the Republican City convention on Tuesday night last, eminent Republicans who are friendly to both General Tracy and Seth Low have endeavored to demonstrate to Mr. Low that the course adopted by him and his friends has been unwise in the extreme. Agreeably to the promise of the Republican club, by General Tracy in his speech before the City convention, every reasonable effort has been made to induce Mr. Low to forego his personal ambition and, with General Tracy, to retire, so that a united candidate of the friends of good government could be brought to the front. Mr. Low and his friends have been impervious to all argument.

It has come to the surface that Mr. Low has steadily and painstakingly cherished for a long time his ambition to be a candidate for mayor of Greater New York. It has furthermore come out that Mr. Low and his friends never intended that he should be a "unifying force," except on the terms that the Republicans should smash their organization merely for the pleasure of supporting Mr. Low. The whole Low movement all along has been only an effort to force the Republican organization into accepting him, with the purpose that if it did not Mr. Low would run anyhow and gratify his ambition, at no matter what cost.

The Republicans said yesterday that while fully acquainted with these facts they had believed it to be their duty in the interest of good government to take every step toward harmony. Their motto has been "everything for conciliation." But the Low tactics within the last few days have been to misinterpret these overtures for harmony, and to base on them reports that General Tracy was retiring in favor of Mr. Low. The Republicans have had enough of such tactics, and yesterday they determined to put an end to them. General Tracy sounded the tocsin yesterday when he said: "Under no circumstances will I withdraw as a candidate for Mayor as long as Seth Low remains in the field."

Senator Platt said: "The stories of General Tracy's retiring are on a line with the tactics that have been pursued by these wretched politicians at the beginning of the discussion in regard to the Mayoralty of Greater New York--tactics of mediocrity and falsehood. The stories to the effect that General Tracy will retire in favor of Seth Low are circulated by those people for the purpose of weakening General Tracy before the people. General Tracy will not retire in favor of Mr. Low. He is going to remain the candidate for Mayor of the Republic, and a well-disciplined body of men, that is enthusiastically in favor of the ticket placed in nomination this week at Carnegie Hall. If the conditions on election day are the same as they are today I would stand by the ticket in the world on General Tracy's success."

President Quigg, of the Greater Municipal Campaign committee, called together all the campaigners at Republican headquarters at the corner of Nassau and Broadway, yesterday afternoon. Every man on the committee was present. Every man was indignant at the tactics adopted by Mr. Low and his friends in circulating the reports that General Tracy was to retire for Mr. Low.

President Quigg and his associate campaigners drew up a document which will set at rest during the campaign the reports of Mr. Low and his friends that General Tracy is to retire for Mr. Low.

Recognizing that the first obligation of every friend of good government in the greater city of New York is to the cause of united action against Tammany Hall at the coming election, the Republican party has spared no endeavor to bring into harmonious relations all elements in the community which might be united in the interest of a successful campaign and a sound and patriotic government. That these efforts have failed is due solely to the position of the Citizens' Union, which has persistently refused to be a unifying force among the friends of good government, whose nomination by the Republican party has been rendered impossible by the acts of himself and his associates, and whose personal attitude to the question of his own candidacy is a chief source of discord and division. The Republican city committee has therefore resolved, that the candidates nominated by the Republican city convention: For Mayor--Benjamin F. Tracy, For Comptroller--John J. Frawley, For President of the Council--R. Ross Appleton, will remain in the field until the polls close on the night of election day, and any candidate who may not be a unifying force among the friends of good government is opposed to the restoration of Tammany Hall and Bryanism is urged to give his prompt and active support to these, the only Tammany candidates who can be elected.

GENERAL NEAL DOW PASSES AWAY

The Famous Father of Prohibition Dies at the Age of 97 Years--His Remarkable Career.

Portland, Me., Oct. 3.--General Neal Dow, the father of the Maine prohibition story and leader of the temperance reform party, died at his home here at 3:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The cause of his death was old age.

General Dow had been for more than fifty years. He was the author of the Prohibition law in the state of Maine, which was passed in 1819. He was born at that state, on March 23, 1801. He celebrated his ninety-third birthday in a hall in that city, across the street from the house in which he was born. General Dow's biographers say that the original reason for his war on the liquor traffic was wholly an accident. When he was a small boy they say he saw a man, an avowed enemy to the liquor business, who was drunk, knock him down and then fell and died. He was so shocked by the sight that he vowed to devote his life to the cause of prohibition.

Whether that story is true, Dow began his career in 1826, when he was a young man, and in his life he led a very busy and eventful career. He went into politics before he was 21 years old, and he was elected to the Maine legislature in 1828. He was one of the original anti-slavery men, and he was nearly 60 years old when the civil war began. He mustered a regiment and went to the front, where he was captured by the rebels and was confined a year in Libby's prison.

Thirty years ago General Dow was elected to the Maine legislature, and he was elected to the Maine legislature in 1856. He was elected to the Maine legislature in 1856, and he was elected to the Maine legislature in 1856.

YELLOW JACK ON A FRUIT STEAMER

The John Wilson Arrives with Flag at Half Mast.

DEATH OF THE CHIEF ENGINEER

The Steamer Loaded with a Cargo of Bananas Left Mobile September 12--The Disease of Which the Engineer Died Was Called Malaria.

Lewes, Del., Oct. 3.--The Norwegian fruit steamer John Wilson, ten days from Boca del Toro, Colombia, arrived at Delaware Breakwater quarantine at noon today, with her flag at half mast. When the quarantine physician boarded her he found the body of the chief engineer, Charles Peterson, aged 37 years, of Bergen, Norway, who died on the passage Friday last, of yellow fever.

The Wilson is one of several fruit steamers that sail out of our southern ports on account of yellow fever and are bringing their cargoes of fruit to Philadelphia and New York. The Wilson left Mobile on September 12 for a cargo of bananas. On the fifteenth the mate was taken sick and died. The disease was there called malaria, but there is no doubt it is yellow fever. On the voyage north Peterson was taken sick on the 27th and died October 1st.

A coffin was taken aboard the steamer this afternoon and the body placed therein, together with a quantity of slacked lime. It was then placed in an outer box and brought ashore and buried in the government burying ground by the crew of the Wilson.

The steamer left Reedy Island at 8 o'clock tonight. She will be thoroughly fumigated there and the crew placed in quarantine for some time. The government quarantine station is located at Reedy Island, which is about forty miles south of Philadelphia. A spread of the plague is not apprehended.

The fever was confined to the single square in which it started. The authorities have also been successful in wiping out the focus of infection in the case of the Home for Homeless Men. An effort is to be made to reduce the time of sailing of about 800 immigrants from Palermo who are quarantined in this city. Among the cases reported to the board of health today are three from Algiers, opposite New Orleans. These make a total of five cases in Algiers.

The quantity of fresh water running through the streets of New Orleans daily has been estimated at about eight million gallons through the use of the mains and machinery of the old Auxiliary Sanitary association. The city council has held today in Ocean Springs for the first time since the sickness there was declared to be yellow fever. There were no cases under treatment today, and the recovery of Ocean Springs now believe that all further danger has passed.

AWFUL NIGHT ON A WRECKED SCHOONER

Crew of the Henry May Cling to Spars on a Capized Vessel Through the Hours of Darkness.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 3.--The crew of the schooner wrecked off Longport last night were rescued today and landed on the beach at Ocean City. The luckless crew of the Henry May, Captain W. O. Perry, from Portland, Me., with a cargo of railroad ties, for nearly twenty-four hours the captain and his five men faced death. That they did not meet it is little less than a miracle. The vessel was their dreadful experience was told by Captain Perry after food and warmth had restored him. The vessel ran into the violent northeast gale which raged along the coast Friday night, when off Barnegat. She was headed for Delaware Breakwater, but the storm grew in fury and she broke over her bows and was called to the pumps, but they were feeble against the roaring waves. Head on, the weakening ship drove crazily before the wind, with the sea running high and the screaming of wind and waves, panting mariners knew that the sail had gone. A moment later the ship whirled in a tremendous sea and capized. This was the last seen of the Henry May. A rescue from shore, but the task of rescue there was hopeless. It was clear that no boat could brave the sea for more than a hour. The Ocean City life boat was determined to try, and Peck's Beach crew turned in to help. The life boat was launched and almost immediately a huge sea broke over her and she was angrily batted upon the sands. Again and again was the attempt made only to be met with the same result. Eventually the life boat was blown back and the would-be rescuers were despairingly compelled to abandon it. The news of the wreck had spread and the beach was thronged with people as helplessly gazed at the tossing hull. She drifted slowly down the coast, her anchor chains dragging and wave after wave breaking over her. When she capized a thrill of horror went through the onlookers. A moment later the forms of the sailors were seen clinging to the plunging hull. Captain Perry tried to give some notion of the fate of the crew. He recognized falling attempts at rescue. Death loomed before them but they prayed that it might be balked. Night fell like a pall. With the cold breeze blowing and the sea and exhaustion creeping over them, they clung to the spars with the desperate love of life known only to those who have faced death. Thus the awful night passed. With welcome sunlight came a full in the storm and they knew their prayers had been heard. At the first streak of light the weary watchers on shore put out their hands, ready to help. The crew carried the weakened seamen back to earth. There was a burst of joy that is akin to tears when the gallant boat crunched against the sand and the storm bound sailors were tenderly lifted out. Women hugged the life savers, men danced madly about, and a cheer went up hour after hour of beating waves. Then all were fed and warmed.
