WATER MAIN AGAIN BROKEN.

Blasting in the Chestnut Street Sewer

Trench Was the Cause. Contractor Vincent O Hara, who is laying the sewer along Chestnut street, north from Jackson, is having no end of trouble, and the residents and Gas and Water company are suffering considerably in consequence. Yesterday afternoon for the fourth time the water main was broken by a blast, and for about five hours in the afternoon no water was available. The last break occurred Friday. Though great care is taken the proximity of the sever trench to the water main precludes the possibility of avoid-Ing breaking the trench at times.

A TALK BY PROF. EVANS.

The Anthracite Glee club held a regular session at their rooms in Jones' half on North Main avenue last evening, and in addition to their regular business had an entertaining adjunct, Several friends were invited to be present and listen to the interesting address made by Prof. W. B. Evans, a retired merchant of Carbondale. The professor recently returned from a three months' trip through Great Britain and continental Europe. He is a pleasant speaker, and being naturally observant told of what he had seen in a manner that brought the listener in close mental touch with the scenes of his travels. The beauties of Scotland, the Welsh and Irish peasantry; and the condition of the English laboring classes formed af und of knowledge upon which Prof. Evans liberally He dwelt specially upon his visit to the home of Shakespeare. The trip in Europe was dealt with in short sketches. The topic, which probably proved most interesting to those present, was the speaker's description and criticism of the recent great national eisteddfed held at Newport, Wales, He was present as an observer and took extensive notes, by means of which he lucidly protrayed that great event, President Joseph D. Lloyd presided at last evening's session, and the Glee club sang several selections, among them being John H. Powell's most recent composition.

BROKE THE WINDOW.

Two boys named Flack and Devine, respectively, got into trouble yesterday afternoon by accidentally breaking a large pane of glass in the shop window of the New York cobbling store on South Hyde Park avenue. The boys say they were wrestling and in tumbling about, bumped against the glass and shattered it. The cobbler, startled, rushed out but the boys ran. One of them, however, had dropped his cap, a new one, and this the man kept as a souvenir. The boys fearing to go home without his headgear, asked for its return. "Alright," quoth the cobbler, "I want fifty cents for the glass The boy went home and his mother, getting his story, sought the kind offices of Patrolman Peters to get the cap. Later a compromise was made. The glass was replaced, the cap returned and the excitement cost sixteen cents and a little manual labor.

The charge was lar-ceny. The alleged stolen goods were ducks. The warrant was served by Constable James Clark, and an immediate hearing was to be given at Alderman Kelly's court, Shawso, says that though he doubted the right of the constable to serve the warrant, submitted and appeared. He denied guilt, and claimed his ability to prove his innocence. Constable Clark, he says, conducted the hearing and proffered him a chance of settling, which was refused. He decided to wait until Alderman Kelly returns from his wedding tour and allow him to pass upon expresses its opinion on all proposed laws affecting charities and correction. One of its greatest legislative functions was in securing the passage in 1883 of the act known as "A Children's Law" and providing that no child over 2 years of age should be kept in an almshouse over 60 days.

Until the association suggested and brought about a change the cost of caring for the insane in state hospitals was borne by the countles. By the new method the expense is borne by state and county and the cost reduced from $4.50 to $3.50 per week for each inmate. Dr. Walk, the president, has just finished serving four years on the board of directors of charities and correction of Philadelphia.
