county Hibernians Meet in the Afternoon and Are Entertained in the Evening.

Delegations from the several divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Board of Erin, of Lackawanna met at Co-operative hall, North Main avenue, yesterday afternoon in third quarterly convention. Business relative to the order in this country was transacted behind closed doors.

Beside the regular business which came before the convention the dele gates were addressed by Rev. D. J. MacGoldrick, of St. Thomas' college, His talk instilled those who were present with much enthusiasm in reference to the future work of the order. Rev. E. S. Phillips, of Plains, was to have spoken, but could not be present. The visiting delegates were the guests of Division No. 1 of this side and were entertained in the evening by this division. An entertaining programme was carried out and was followed by a J. P. Quinnan presided. The pregramme consisted of remarks by J. P. Quinnan, William Dawson, M. F. Conroy, John Devine and Alderman C. C. van; addresses by Rev. D. J. MacGoldrick, City Treasurer C. G. Boland and M. J. Kelley; recitations by T. Boland, H. P. Mellett, William Gilroy and A. Duffy, and solos by Michael Donnegan, Michael Reap, John Connolly and James Bolton.

Edward Brant, 8 years of age, but vell advanced mentally for his years, is given to taking unannounced trips from home, thereby causing his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Brant, of 440 South Ninth street, much anxiety, Yesterday he disappeared about ten 'clock and a long search proved fruitless. Patrolman Kiah Peters, who is on day duty on this side, was notified about 1.30 that a lost boy had been found on Price street, near Grant avenue. It proved to be the nomadic Edward. When asked his name and that of his father he feigned ignorance. The patrolman brought the boy to the station house and was about to put him in one of the cells, thinking that the lad was playing "possum." The ruse brought results, for Edward found his tongue and explained that his father was a railroader and the reason he had gotten lost was because he was tired of staying around the house. The boy was taken back to his worried mother.

PARTY ON EYNON STREET. A party was given in honor of Mis Maggie Morgans, at her home, 1219 Eynon street, Wednesday evening. Games and dancing were the features of the evening.
