IN HONOR OF MORFUDD.

Greeted by a Number of Her Neighbors Upon Her Return from Wales-Original Poem Rend.

Mrs. G. W. Powell, of Snyder avenue, better known as Morfudd, recent-ly returned from a three months' tour Jones. throughout Great Britain and continental Europe. Wednesday evening a party of her lady friends surprised her at her home and spent a very pleasant evening. Vocal and instrumental se-lections were enjoyed and Mrs. Powell told several interesting stories of her

As an expression of the sentiment fe't by the assembled ladies, Mrs. H. W. Evans read the following original DOGPT:

WELCOME HOME. Let every heart be joyid And happiness presail, Let's cast nway our troubles. And every thought that's vile. Tonight, we here assemble To greet the traveler home From dear, old Wales and Pare. From Lendon, Greece and Roma

How often we have heard it, In life as we go by: You'll never miss the water Until the well runs dry: In Mrs. Powell's absence This truth is well applied Ve missed her from among us At high and obling tide, When'er her dear husband Hefore us would appear line countenance was saying? Um longing for my dear; The house, the church, the pathways The Baby Alley dear, And Lizzie often murmured I wish if she was here.

Tonight, dear friend, we welcome You home to us again. With one accord acknowledge The mercy of Him that reign At home, abroad, wherever God's will's for us to be. We're always in His presence, Who reigns o'er land and sea. --Mrs. H. W. Evans.

The ladies present were: Mrs. Henry Evans, Mrs. David G. Williams, Mrs. John Frances, Mrs. Harris John, Mrs. Llow Hyn Evans, Mrs. William Harris, Mrs. Griffith Williams, Mrs. Thomas Williams, Mrs. John L. Davis, Mrs. Thomas Price, Mrs. John S.
