One of the New York Life Insurance companies has lately appointed Dr. Martha Smythe Everitt, of this city, as their chief medical examiner for women in this part of the state. They were induced to make this appointment because of the knowledge that so many women desiring life insurance postponed making application, and somtimes indefinitely, on account of their dislike to undergo the usual examination. Twenty-five years ago there were no women physicians to speak of and but few women who ever thought of having their lives insured.

ROUSING MEETINGS HELD

Doctrine of Protection, Sound Money and Good County Government Dinned Into the Ears of Big Assemblages Simultaneously at Halfa Dozen Different Points -- Candidates and Speakers Received with the Greatest Enthusiasm as They Journeyed From One Hall to An-

From the northern end of the Eleventh ward to the lower end of Mincoka. the two extremes of what is generally understood as the South Side, there was one great big Republican demonstration last night. Harvey's silk mill on the one end of the district and the South steel mill on the other, with nany intervening industries working full blast or double turn, were no small part of the demonstration.

Six meetings in as many different places along a circuitous route of about dx miles were conducted under the auspices of the campaign committee and the local county committeemen A dozen speakers participated, some of them speaking as many as six times and by the greatest kind of hustling all the candidates managed to visit for short stay at least each of the differont meeting places. The way the cabs were rushing about gave the territory the appearance of five minutes to sever m election night.

Every meeting had a big crowd and verywhere the liveliest kind of enthusiasm was displayed. The entrance of any one of the candidates at any of the halls meant a long interruption in the speech that would then be on. It was one grand ovation from the time the candidates started out at 7.30 o'clock until at 11.15 o'clock they made their last stop at Moeller's hall on the Flats, there they found a crowded hall palently and with evident deep interest stening to the closing part of Mr. Maust's final speech.

GREENWOOD MEETING.

At Passhold's hall, in Greenwood, in district where the Republican popuation is rather meagre, the audience ot only filled every seat and every oot of standing room, but also fringed the entire length of the stage front, sitting with their backs towards the speakers and their feet dangling in mid air. Many also sat in the windows r stood in the doorway leading to the all, anxious but unfortunately unable o get in. It was said by many of the peakers that it was the most inspiring neeting that has been held yet.

G. T. Davis was chairman and the peakers were John R. Jones, A A. osburg and W. Gaylord Thomas. When Mr Jones had concluded his speech he was pleasantly surprised o have one of the old residents of the locality and a life long Democrat. #### MORAN FATALLY INJURED.

Van Losen Used a Razor on Him With Desperate Effect and Then Made His Escape.

A reger in the hands of a drunken ex-sailor, Frank Van Losen, cut a gash in the left breast of Anthony Moran, a young man, at Dunmore, Thursday night, and as a result of his injury Moran is now lying at the point of death at his home on Jessup street. Dunmore. Dr. James R. Murphy stated last night that Moran's condition is extremely critical. Whether or not he will recover cannot be stated with any degree of certainty before today.

The slashing was done at about i o'clock in front of William Zorn's saloon on Jessup avenue. The men had words and finally engaged in a fight. Moran got the best of it and felled the sailor to the ground, jumping upon him and wielding blows at Van Los en's face. Suddenly Moran was heard to cry out, "He's stabbed me!" and he fell backward and off Van Losen's prostrate body. Several of the bystanders rushed to his assistance and in the confusion Van Losen arose and made off toward the sast mountain, leaving behind him the razor.

Moran was carried to his home, short distance away, and Dr. Murphy summoned. Moran's condition was such that all that could be done was to staunch the flow of blood from the eight-inch gash on the left side of the body. The sharp blade had cut through the flesh and sliced off a portion of a rib and Moran's left lung. No attempt was made to dress the wounds Thursday night.

TO FOREIGNERS.

And Particularly to Englishmen, of Which Stripe Her Husband Is.

WHEREFORE SHE WANTS A DIVORCE.

An Interesting Divorce Case That Came up in Argument Court Yes. terday .- Oleomargerine Cases are Now Being Heard--Surety on a Note Wants to Be Released on Unusual Grounds .- Various Cases Argued -- Dunmore Contest and Boland Case Came up To-day.

Among the many matters heard in argumint court yesterday was the rule for alimony in the divorce case of Clementine Renwick against Robert Renwick, and among the many novel features of the evidence brought out was the statement of the libellant that one of her reasons for destring divorcement was that her husband was an Englishman and she being a "down East Yankee," she could not learn to like him.

She does not like foreigners of any stripe, and Englishmen above all others she abhors. In addition to this, which, in her mind, is a primal fault, she complains that he was guilty of treating her in a cruel and barbarous manner, beating her and abusing her by calling her names and in general making her life a burden and com pelling her to withdraw from his companionship. These latter allegations were emphasized by ex-Judge Knapp, who argued for the rule.

John F. Scragg, who opposed the motion, strove to show that Mrs. Renwick has no good cause for seeking : divorce. He admitted, for his client, that on account of too much motherin-law and a little more brother-inlaw than is necessary for the peace and happiness of a young married couple, the fireside of the Renwick's was not a place that would inspire eet and peaceful dreams,

It was not such, however, he contended, as would warrant the interference of the court, and believed that there was no outside interference. the estranged couple would get along together in a happy and contented manner. Court took the papers.

BOGUS BUTTER AGAIN.

The eleomargarine cases came un under an appeal from the summary judgment of Alderman John T. Howe, of the Seventeenth ward, who issued warrants for the arrest of the three accused parties, W. A. Beemer & Son, F. C. Day and William Lightner, and fined them $100 apiece. Attorneys S. B. Price and John H. Bonner, who represented the defendants, hold that the statute under which the arrests were made provided that the penalty should "be collected as debts of a like amount are recoverable at law.

He also held that the information on which the warrant was issued was defective, inasmuch as it did not state that the oleomargarine was served, sold or offered as a food product. It was claimed that in Philadelphia a similar case was quashed on this latter Bilger and McGrail were in pursuit of ground, the judge saying that the de-Van Losen. The legal in-terests of the crew were looked after by the company's agent, P. W. Gallagher.
