Rain isn't desirable on many occasions. In fact it is decidedly unwelcome on Mon-day, when the ruler of the kitchen announces with a thunderous brow: "Well, it rains ag'in, ma'am?" Just as if you were responsible. But the Christian Endeavor trolley company hope it will rain on Thursday, for that means more patronage. . . .

One of the strongest and most beautiful illustrations given last might by Dr. Haven in his eloquent address, was th incident relating to the decoration of horse by Napoleon after a great battl with the cross of the Legion of Honor It is this incident, slightly varied, the forms the dramatic climax of the Molly Elliot Leawell's charming new book, "The History of Lady Betty Stair."

Colonel George Nox McCain will lecture Thursday evening in the Penn Avenue Baptist church, His subject will be "Cuba --Its Romance and Revolutions," beautifully illustrated by 190 magnificent views taken by Colonel McCain on the spot.

It is understood that a strong sentiment in favor of Dr. H. C. Swentzel as succes-sor to Bishop Rulison is entertained in various quarters. . . .

at Second Presbyterian Church. Although Mr. J. M. Chance and the alented ones who furnished the programme at the Second Presbyterian church last evening seem to have a redeliction for rainy weather, the leeture room was crowiled to the doors . to hear a repetition of the charming nusicale given hist week. The numers were all of a high order.

The work of the orchestra was a distinct success and if any special mention could be made regarding a selection from the grouping it would perhaps be the plano solos of little Miss Ruth Hanley, who displayed remarkable proficiency. Miss Jordan was in excellent voice and delighted veryone with her songs. The solos of Mr. Williams and Mr. Croft were exceedingly well rendered and few ducts have been heard recently that equaled their work in the "David" cantata, Little Miss Anna Hone played a Mendelssohn number with taste and expression. Mr. Chance is to be congratulated on the promise of the pupils represented at the musicale and upon process his work as a conductor.

VISION AND BERVICES.

His subject was "Vision and Serice" and while the ideas were rich in ertinent illustration and elegance of diction they were strongly practical and appealed to all. In beginning he spoke of the quadtuple periods of life, childhood, youth, maturity and old acc, and referred articularly to youth as having certain characteristics, one of which is growth. It is impossible to tell what is to come: what height will be reached, what altitude of mind or social powers, Everything is uncertain. Another characteristic is plasticity, the susceptibility to the moulding and shaping

This may be disputed by some who will declare and with reason that if there is one time in the world when pinion is set, when there is no possibility of changing plans and when all the ideas are correct it is in youth. It is at this period when perfect confidence in ability to teach and train other people is assured.

In our day, the mysteries of Isainh's prophecies, the relation of Moses to the Pentateuch is understood and decribed by the young man and wopan is your home with the same condence in their own infallible opinions

NOT ALWAYS HELPS.

Sometimes the things we think are the greatest helps are really the least. It is often the very profusion of hooks. and culture that hinders. The young man in the country with his many difficulties to face, with almost impossible obstacles in the way of his education will often accomplish more with the handful of his father's books than the one with a home full of reading, and he may have a better opportunity than the other. Simon Cameron once said that there was one thing which he had, and lacking which, was an obstacle in the way of his son Don, and that was poverty. Whatever you are in this world will come through your own making of yourself. Millions of money will not then hinder you for you can ring above these things because you have learned what is good. After vision comes service. How many there are in this world whose eyes are shut. Who go through life unseeing because their minds are filled
