IN HIS FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS. Followed Them, Though They Led to the County Jail. Sunday night, James Heffron, of Clyphant, was received at the county jail to await trial for beating his sister, Honora Heffron. Yesterday his son James, was committed for the same offense, and last night father and son slept in the same cell. Miss Honora keeps house for her brother and nephew and frequently has had occasion to complain against them, particularly the old man, whom she has put to jail several times. Each time the grand jury is moved to pity and ignores the bill against him. This is the first time the younger Heffron has felt the severity of his aunt's wrath.

ARE RESURRECTING A TEN YEARS' WAR. Second Suit in Ejectment Begun in the Hartley-Hull Case. FIRST SUIT LASTED A DECADE. The Land in Dispute, a Fifty-one Acre Farm at Moscow, is Valued at from $1,600 to $2,500.—The Costs of the Litigation Will Possibly Double That Sum—Another Case in Which the Game Is Not Worth the Powder—Brothers at Law. Once more the famous Hartley-Hull ejectment case is before the courts. It was called yesterday morning in common pleas, Judge McClure, of Union county, specially presiding. Jessup & Jessup appear for the plaintiff, and Hon. W. W. Watson and C. B. Gardner for the defendants. The suit is for a 51-acre tract of land situated near Moscow, and commonly known as the old Potter farm. The plaintiff claims it by purchase from M. J. Robinson. The defendants allege that the transfer from Robinson to Hartley was fraudulent and that their title derived through a sheriff's sale, is the legal one. The plaintiffs make answer to this by the allegation that the judgment against Robinson, on which the sheriff's sale was made, could not cover the land in question as Robinson did not own it at the time. It appears from the evidence adduced at former trials of the case that the whole question revolves around the honesty of the transfer from Robinson to Hartley. They are coheirs, and this coupled with the fact that the conveyance bears the same date, April 7, 1883, as that which appears on the judgment note in question, gives the defendants their ground for arguing that the transfer was made with fraudulent intent.

NOTE GIVEN TO LECK. The note in question was for $884 and was given to W. H. Leck, of Clifton, Susquehanna county, from whom Robinson purchased the land. The note was subsequently assigned to A. A. Tingley and later to William A. Tinker, of Greenfield township. In August, 1887, Tinker died and his widow, Mrs. Minerva A. Tinker, together with her brother, John E. Hull, acting in the capacity of administrators, executed the note to Robinson. They found a deed on record showing Robinson to be the owner of the Potter farm and proceeded to sell it at sheriff's sale. The property was not bid up sufficiently to cover the judgment, so the administrators bought it in for the estate and took the sheriff's deed for the same. Some time after the acknowledgment and delivery of the sheriff's deed, Hartley came in with his conveyance and endeavored to nullify the sale on the ground that he and not Robinson was the owner of the farm. This was the issue in the first trial. The record of the proceedings since that time would fill a library. In June, 1888, the summons in ejectment was issued. The case was referred to arbitrators and in August following an award was made in favor of the defendant. The plaintiff appealed and in a jury trial, which took place in April, 1891, succeeded in securing a reversal of the arbitrators' award. The defendants secured a new trial and in April, 1892, a jury gave them a verdict.

SECURED ANOTHER TRIAL. The plaintiff secured another new trial and in the following June the case was once more heard, the defendant winning. Again the plaintiff secured a rule for a new trial but in January, 1894, the rule was discharged. Thereupon the plaintiff took the case to the supreme court, but the upper tribunal refused to interfere. The present action is a second suit in ejectment. The law in this state requires that two successive ejectments must be won to perfect a title claimed through a sheriff's sale. Usually there is no opposition to the second suit, but in this instance, Hartley chooses to do battle and hence the beginning of possibly another ten years' war. Yesterday proceedings were simply a rehearsal of evidence adduced at previous trials. The only thing brought out which adds in any material way to the story is Robinson's explanation that he acted as agent for the land while Hartley owned it. The case will likely consume several days. The value of the land in dispute is variously estimated from $1,600, the price which Hartley is alleged to have paid for it, to $2,500, the value placed upon it by the defendants. Judge Archibald and a jury in the main court room had to deal with another case in which the costs of litigation far exceed the amount involved. The plaintiff, John Mahon, in 1894 tenanted a house on Leggett street, Providence, for which the defendant, Mrs. Bridget Robinson, was agent. The garden was low and after every storm was filed with water. Mahon told Mrs. Robinson that he would have to move out if the condition of affairs was not bettered, and she, he alleges, authorized him to make whatever improvements were necessary at her expense.

HELD BACK THE RENT. He worked seventeen days filling in the garden and building a drain to carry off the water and submitted a bill for $25. She declined to pay it and after repeatedly trying to collect it by ordinary means, he decided, during the fall of 1896, to hold it back out of the rent. She attempted to collect the rent by legal process, but failed, and then with a determination that he should not enjoy his forcible possession of the house, she caused the doors and windows to be removed one day during the week and until new ones could be made and put in place, Mahon had a very airy habitation. The defense was that Mahon was never authorized to make the improvements and at all events the rent withheld by him would offset his claim. The jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $15. T. P. Duffy represented the plaintiff and A. A. Vosburg the defendant. A verdict of $735 for the plaintiff was taken in the case of Hiram J. Stanton against J. J. Jermyn and others. The defendants are trustees of the now inactive Wayne Rod and Gun club. Stanton was steward of their club house at Upper Woods lake. When the club quit its regular occupancy of the lodge they forgot or at all events neglected to take cognizance of the fact that their steward was there awaiting orders. Before he was told to quit and go home his bill for services and expenses amounted to the figure for which judgment was rendered. The defendants made no objection to the verdict. Beers & Grambs represented Stanton.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF CHARITIES. Boston Couple Who Want to Adopt Twins with a Pedigree. CHANGE OF THE MEETING NIGHT. It Was Suggested That If the Board Met Once a Month on Monday Night It Might Result in a Larger Attendance—An Effort Will Be Made to Get the Poor Board to Pay Miss Kiesel's Salary. At last night's meeting of the Board of Associated Charities the secretary read a communication from the secretary of the children's aid society of Boston, and it was a unique communication without doubt. The Boston secretary writes that there is a childless couple, a college professor and his wife, not far from where he lives and they are anxious to adopt two infants. To begin with the infants must be twins and about six months old, one a boy and the other a girl, they must be orphans, they must be in good health, and last but not least the "pedigree" of the parents must be sans reproach. In exchange for all these qualifications in the twins the college professor and his wife are willing to provide a home for them surrounded with the comforts that wealth can procure. If the professor and his wife cannot get such twins they will be satisfied with adopting a baby boy suitable to their tastes, but they are very anxious to secure the twins. Any person desiring to avail himself of this magnificent offer from the Hub can communicate with the secretary of the Board of Charities.

SHE FELL DOWN STAIRS. Mrs. John Costello, of Palm Street, was seriously injured at her home on Sunday evening by falling down stairs. Her condition is doubtful. She was coming down stairs and was carrying an empty coal scuttle. It caught in the folds of her dress and tripped her. When assistance reached her, she was unconscious and her injuries were of an internal nature. Dr. J. A. Manly is attending her and hopes to bring her around all right. It will pay you to keep your eye on the "Want" Columns of The Tribune. LAMP SHADES And How To Make Them. What woman does not enjoy decorative work in crepe paper—only trouble is to know how. Its inexpensiveness, its adaptability and the perfect ease with which it may be manipulated renders crepe paper one of the most valuable of decorative fabrics. A little 144-page brochure "Art in Crepe Paper" we offer as the most complete of its kind for instruction. Written simply it gives explicit directions for making lamp shades, screens, flower pot covers, lanterns, photo frames, paper flowers, novelties, etc. We sell it for ten cents. In crepe paper we have an endless variety of colors in domestic and imported paper. Prices run ten cents for a large roll to 35 cents for very beautiful imported paper in boxes. First Mortgage Bonds. Attention of investors is called to the advertisement in this issue of the well-known bankers who offer for sale the First Mortgage Bonds of the Pennsylvania Central Brewing Co. The properties securing these bonds and the character of the people connected with it are so well known in this community that a further endorsement of these bonds seems hardly necessary. It is a matter of importance, as well as of congratulation, to know that the parties who have built up these great brewing interests in the Wyoming valley are the main stockholders of the Company and control its management and future destinies.

Every Monday thousands of women labor all day over the wash tub, with faces red from steaming suds and backs weary with hard rubbing. If FELSNAPHTHA soap and cold or lukewarm water were used, the wash would be whiter and the task pleasant. FELS & CO., Philadelphia.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF CHARITIES. Mrs. Duggan reported that Eddie Felker, the little boy that had been roaming around the streets with no one to look after him, has been sent to the Hillside Home. She said that two or three charitable ladies of means had scolded her for sending Eddie to the poor house, but when she told them, with the accent on them, to take him away from there and pay for his schooling at some school, they stopped talking. She said that the city is now pestered with tramps who seek assistance on the plea that they are old soldiers. Colonel Ripple's opinion was that tramps or persons seeking assistance have no right to trade on the fact that they were in the army, and that if they are unworthy they deserve no better toleration than any other beggar. Mrs. Duggan's report for the past six weeks showed that 87 cases had been investigated, of which 63 were found worthy and were aided through various charities. The other 24 cases were not in need and were unworthy. Transportation was furnished for 11 cases; employment was found for 14 persons; eight persons were sent to the Lackawanna hospital; three were sent to the Home of the Friendless; two were sent to the Foundling home; four were sent to the Biskay almshouse; eight were sent to the Hillside Home; four children were picked up on the street for begging; five persons were arrested for different reasons; medical aid was furnished to eight persons; clothing was furnished to nine persons; two cases were referred to the district attorney and two to the chief of police.

BENEFIT FOR THE BOARD. The entertainment that is to be held tomorrow night for the benefit of the board, was discussed, but Mr. Cohen, who is on the entertainment committee, was absent and none of the other members knew anything about it. The entertainment is under the auspices of some out of town party and the board is to get a percentage of the proceeds for allowing the use of its name for the project. Upwards of 400 tickets have been sold already. Colonel Ripple suggested the advisability of changing the meeting night to suit the convenience of the members. This was discussed, but it was decided to hold the meeting on Monday night. Those present last night besides Miss Kiesel were John Gibbons, Thomas Moore, F. L. Terpe and D. J. Phillips. The latter acted as secretary in the absence of Rev. Rogers Israel. This was a bare quorum, and they thought if the meeting is held on Monday night or some other night but Tuesday night, and once a month instead of twice, that it might bring a better attendance. Nothing was done, except that the secretary will send out notices asking the opinion of the members as to a change. An effort will also be made to get the poor board to pay Miss Kiesel for the work of nursing, instead of having the board of charities pay her. The patients she attends are nearly all
