WILLIAM H. DAVIES POST.

The regular inspection of William H. Davies post, No. 187, Grand Army of the Republic, of this city, occurred on Wednesday evening in their quarters in the Odd Fellows' building. The inspection officer was Comrade Richard Holgate, esq., of Waverly, Pa. Comrades Henry Moray and Halsey Lathrop, of Lieutenant James E. Stephens post, Peckville, accompanied him. Comrade Broch, of Susquehanna, and a number of veterans from Jermyn also attended the camp-fire. When the roll was called about fifty members responded. The visiting and home veterans enjoyed the reunion, as they recalled their experiences and told how "fields were won." The Women's Relief Corps had provided a feast of good things to tempt the appetite, and all around the camp-fire were happy to meet under circumstances so pleasant and satisfactory.

BANQUET TO BE GIVEN.

A regular meeting of Branch 39, C. M. B. A., was held at their hall in this city on Thursday evening. It was decided to give a banquet, and a committee was appointed to make arrangements, as follows: R. H. Kirwin, John Boylan, Frank Clifford, T. A. Kirkwood and Alex. McDonald. President B. A. Kelley was in the chair and the meeting was very enthusiastic in plans for the coming entertainment to be given at or after the installation of the new officers. The following officers were nominated for the ensuing year: First vice-president, P. F. Coogan; second vice-president, R. H. Kirwin; recording secretary, Michael McCann; financial secretary, J. W. Kilpatrick; treasurer, James F. O'Boyle; marshall Thomas A. Kirkwood; guard, Murty Meehan; trustees, J. W. Burke, Michael Kelly, R. H. Keating.

A dastardly attempt at arson was tried yesterday morning. Jacob Pellow, who rents a house of Thomas Walkey, was awakened about 1 o'clock yesterday morning by a dense smoke in his room. He at once called his family and went downstairs to find the cause. It was apparent at once that it was the work of an incendiary. The dining room window had been opened and a light applied to a chenille table cover on a table near the window. The window curtain, table and wainscoting was on fire, but the chenille curtain being of wool would not burn, but smouldered emitting a disagreeable odor, Mr. Pellow, by throwing on a few pails of water, extinguished the flames. after the fire they retired again, but could not sleep. About 3 o'clock Mr. James Martin, a neighbor, was awakened by the barking of his dogs. They kept up such a noise that he went and locked them up. A short time afterward Eliza Pellow heard a noise, and going to the window saw that the louse Mr. Walkey occupies was on fire. Mr. Martin heard some one jump over the fence and run through his garden when the second fire was discovered. Mr. Pellow woke the occupants and neighbors, and as the fire had gained out comparatively little headway, by means of a bucket brigade this fire was also put our. #### FIVE TITLES BOUGHT CHEAP. An American Financier's Dealings with His Daughters' Husbands.

From the Chicago Post. It was evident that he was not only pretty well satisfied with himself, but that he didn't care who knew it.
"Five daughters," he said, "and every one of them married a title! That's a pretty good record for a man who wouldn't be considered rich enough to buy more than one high-rate title!" "I don't see how you did it," suggested the man who knew nothing except that the husband with a title was ordinarily quoted at a pretty stiff fig-

"Oh, it's easy when you know how," replied the self-satisfied man. "So far ce I am concerned, I would have preferred to marry the girls to enterprising young Americans, with no titles, but their mother insisted upon getting them something more fashionable, and when their mother insists I have to hump myself and see that things come the way she wants them. I confess it was something of a problem at first, but when I got it figured out in my mind and began playing the cards it was so easy that I was inclined to be ashamed of myself for not trying some-

The self-satisfied man stopped long nough for the listener would be glad to hear the story, and then, in view of the fact that they were all married and publicity could do no harm, he told it. "I took all my available assets," he explained, "and made them a dowry for my eldest daughter. Naturally there was a rush for her, and she was able to take-her pick of five. I rushed metters as much as possible, got her married, gave up the dowry I had promised, and then steered her titled husband against the stock exchange. where I gave him some bad tips, took his trades myself through a broker, and won back all the dowry and part of his ancestral estates. Then I gave the dowry to my second daughter, go her married and played the same game with her husband. I worked the scheme right through the family until I finally married my youngest to a baronet yesterday. I got them to postpone their wedding trip for a few days se as to give me a chance to win back the dowry before they had spent any of it. and by day after tomorrow I expect to be on Easy street again, with out a care in the world. If girls must have titles, why I am in favor of giving them to them, but I don't believe in contributing large fortunes to the support of the tottering monarchies of the old world, and, what's more, I don't intend to do it."

LATE HOURS.

A woman in society is obliged to keep late hours. She must attend receptions and balls. She seldom allows herself a quiet eveningat home. Her whole time is taken up in keeping engagements or entertaining at her own home. How often does she dress for grand, formal occasion with throbbing brow and trembling hands. And does she sink into her easy chair with a sigh of complete weariness. She is too nervous to sleep. Her cheeks are hot and feverish, yet she shivcold. The cold, somber dawn is breaking; everything looks dismal and dreary around her. Presently she falls into a sleep of perfect exhaustion. It is a sleep full of unpleasant dreams, and when she wakes it is only to find herself more tired, if possible, than before. If every society woman knew the value of Pe-ru-na at such a time, if they could realize the invigorating, strengthening effect that Pe-ru-na would have, how much misery could be avoided. If the weary housewife, with her ceaseless round of duties; the overworked school girl, anxious to graduate with high honors; the haggard clerk, working early and late for the necessaries of life, knew of Pe-ru-na and its wonderful recuperating powers, they would never be without it. Some of its many cures are well-nigh marvelous. Dr. Hartman, the compounder of Poru-na, has written a bok especially for women, that will be sent free to any address for a short time. Address The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio. Ask your druggist for a free Pe-runa Almanac for 1898.

WHY SO MANY REGULAR PHYSICIANS FAIL

It was for this reason that years ago Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., determined to step in and help her sex. Having had considerable experience in treating female ills with her Vegetable Compound, she encouraged the women of America to write to her for advice in regard to their complaints, and, being a woman, it was easy for her ailing sisters to pour into her ears every detail of their suffering.

In this way she was able to do for them what the physicians were unable to do, simply because she had the proper information to work upon, and from the little group of women who sought her advice years ago a great army of her fellow-beings are to-day constantly applying for advice and relief, and the fact that more than one hundred thousand of them have been successfully treated by Mrs. Pinkham during the last year is indicative of the grand results which are produced by her unequaled experience and training.

No physician in the world has had such a training, or has such an amount of information at hand to assist in the treatment of all kinds of female ills, from the simplest local irritation to the most complicated diseases of the womb. This, therefore, is the reason why Mrs, Pinkham, in her laboratory at Lynn, Mass., is able to do more for the ailing women of America than the family physician. Any woman, therefore, is responsible for her own suffering who will not take the trouble to write to Mrs. Pinkham for advice,

The testimonials which we are constantly publishing from grateful women establish beyond a doubt the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to conquer female diseases.

ACTUAL DEATH LOSS OF THE CIVIL WAR

An Appalling Catalogue of Sacrifices by Battle and Disease.

NEARLY 400,000 UNION MEN FELL

Large Percentage of the "Unknown." The Dead in Southern Prisons. Difficulty of Making an Approximate List --- Eighty - three Cemeteries Where They Are Buried.

Writes Leslie J. Perry in the Sun: Investigation long ago determined the queer fact of the utter impossibility of determining with absolute accuracy the number of deaths from all causes of Union soldiers during the war of the rebellion. The grand aggregate, of course, is approximately known. Within the Union lines the records of deaths were so systematically kept and filed from time to time in the War department, there preserved, and subsequentbe brought together and collated so carefully that the aggregate number is now settled as near as it possibly ever can be settled. The statistics are near enough to absolute certainty to be satisfactory to historians. The uncertain quantity, the great stumbling block to any close approximation of the melancholy aggregate. is the deaths among prisoners of war in the hands of the enemy. The larger proportion of the official records of the Southern prison depots were lost or destroyed in the hurly-burly of the wind-There were at least a dozen prisons, of which only partial records or next to none at all were secured. The death lists of several of the most important stations have never been found. and the only mode by which the number of the dead at such, and many others, was satisfactorily obtained was by exhuming and counting the skeletons. This was such an almost impossible task that it was not wholly carried out, and thus the total number of Union dead in Southern prisons remains to this day and will ever remain an unknown quantity. SOUTHERN PRISON PENS. At Salisbury, N. C., for instance, one of the leading and oldest of the Confederate prisons, the dead were buried in tiers, sometimes two, three, and four deep, averaging 240 feet in length, No headboards or other marks of identification were set up; no record of the names of the dead seems to have been kept-at all events, none has been found; no coffins or boxes were used; the miserable bodies, incased in their own squalid rags, were bundled into the trench in the most expeditous manner, side by side, in a row 240 feet long, over which a thin coating of dirt was spread; then another tier of dead was put down on top of this bottom layer of bodies, until the receptacle was full. when another trench was opened. The bodies in these trenches have never been exhumed and counted, and in the absence of official lists it thus happens that no exact knowledge of the number of Union dead buried at Salisbury is obtainable. Testimony elicited during the trial of Major Gee, the last Confederate officer in charge of this prison, ates, and others, again, political prisoners and nondescripts. Officers of the United States quartermaster's department, sent to Salisbury immediately in order, after a careful examination of all sources of information, estimated the number at 12,112. This figure has been strenuously disputed. It seems probable that the true number lies between 7,500 and 12,112, doubtless more than the first and considerably less than the last. GETTING AT THE FACTS.

These facts concerning the Salisbury prison alone must prove to any unblased mind how indefinite and uncertain the original statements put out of the deaths of Union soldiers in Southern prisons must have been, and necessarily so from the very insufficient data upon which they were based. So long as thirty-two years ago an official statement of them was made very hastily by Secretary Stanton, fixing the aggregate at 26,328. These were the then ascertained deaths by names at very close figures. from army rolls, rolls of honor, prison rolls, etc., but this aggregate sum did not include the unknown estimated dead, which at that time swelled the known list to more than 36,000 men. But aside from all estimates, the records of the War department now soldiers who died in Southern prisons. The additional names to the number nia. stated by Mr. Stanton in 1865 have been ascertained through testimony taken by the Pension office in the disposal of applications for pensions, and the record is growing from year to year, though in a decreasing ratio.

The authenticity of the figures is unquestioned. There are thousands of others whose names will never be known. It is estimated by those in the War department familiar with the mortuary record of the war that not less than 40,000 Union prisoners died in the South. Besides Salisbury, alluded to above, 13,705 He buried at Andersonville, 3,450 at Richmond, 3,016 at Florence, S. C., and 1,328 at Danville, Va. These were the original fig-Besides Salisbury, Andersonville, Florence, Richmond, and Danville, there were sixty-four other prison posts scattered throughout the Confederacy during the war. THE GRIM RESULT.

Under an order issued June 2, 1884.

by Adjutant General R. C. Drum, Mr. Joseph W. Kirkley, then having charge of all the official returns and kindred data of the Union Army, prepared a statistical statement of the deaths in the Union army during the entire war, from all causes-killed in action, dies f wounds, died of disease, killed after capture, suicides, executed by military authority, executed by the enemy drowning and other accidental deaths. murdered, died of sunstroke, and all other known and unknown causes. Mr. Kirkley was engaged upon this herculean task almost precisely a year, assisted by a corps of intelligent clerks. On the 22d of May, 1885, he made his report, embodied in a pamphlet making seventeen pages of figures in fine type. This was accomplished twenty years after the war. Those who are familiar with Mr. Kirkley's conscientious painstaking in an official statistical job of that kind know that he has exhausted all the avenues of information contained in the archives of 3.15 p. the department, in other words, exhausted the subject, and that his findings are the complete and indisputable summing up of the whole field. They were accepted as final by the War department, and are now the figures used by all historians. Omitting the full details of his tabular statements, it is sufficient to give the totals of deaths found by this statistician. Officers, Men. Total.

Total non-prisoners....9,345 220,665 330,030 Total prisoners...... 219 29,279 29,498 Grand aggregate... 9,584 349,944 359,528

Since this statement was made, in 1885, through investigations mainly of the pension office, as before stated, an addition of 779 names of dead soldiers has been made, almost wholly charged to the prisoner account, swelling the known deaths of Union soldiers during the war to the grand but terrible ag gregate of 360,307. The terrors of battle are ever before the eyes of the world; histories teem with pages descriptive of the carnage of the battlefield, yet Mr. Kirkley's grim array of figures shows that while 67,958 men were killed outright in action and 42,581 died of wounds, making a total of 109,-639, more than double that number died of disease, or, to be exact, 224,586. It is worth noting that out of the more than 2,000,000 individuals who were in the service from first to last, only 267 men were executed for crimes by the United States military authori-
