Columbus council, Young Men's Institute, has adopted the following resolutions on the death of the late William McGaue, who was a prominent member of the organization:

Whereas, Death has called from our ranks our beloved brother, the late William McGaue, who was endeared to us not only for his fine conception of the fraternal spirit of the Institute, but for his personal worthiness, probity, deep sympathy and altruistic nature, and

Whereas, Though profoundly mysterious in the hour of the omnipotent Judge, and though fulfillment brings a twinge of pain to our hearts, yet beneath the keenest grief do we cherish the strongest faith and hope that the summons from this transitory world of sorrows and woes means an awakening in promised land of spiritual light and bliss, therefore, we are

Resolved, that our organization has lost one of its most faithful and devoted members, one whose virility, calm and logical judgment will be missed in our deliberations, one whose cheerful contemplation of the future and liberal and charitable senses exercised in and about the Institute, has often strengthened us in our resolutions, and we are also

Resolved, that the most eloquent panegyric would but inadequately express our feelings upon this occasion, and that though commendable to bestow a full measure of praise upon the dead, it will serve but to bring back the sting to the hearts of those who were removed and dearest to the departed soul whose memory we honor, and we are further

Resolved, that the community feels with us the loss of a citizen who cherished the highest virtues of citizenship, whose devotion to home, friends, church and country, has been a constant example, and that his memory will be perpetuated by the spreading of these resolutions upon our minute book, and by having them printed in the Scranton papers.

We will further manifest our sorrow, through our keenest grief is suppressed, by having a large number of copies of our minute book, and by having them printed in the Scranton papers.
