MUSICAL NOTES.

Verdi, the great operatic composer, has been prostrated by the recent death of his wife, and it is doubtful if he will recover.

Mascagni, composer of "Cavalliera Rusticana," is at work on another opera, which is to be called "Iris." It is upon a Japanese subject. Since bringing out the opera which made him famous in a day, Mascagna has produced nothing of great importance. If the muse which inspired "Cavalliera Rusticana" can be evoked in the present instance, there is no question that a gem of modern composition will soon be heard.

Nicholson people now rejoice because the town is the home of a prize chorus, a band of singers from that village having won a prize for chorus singing at the recent meeting of the Musical Alliance at Factoryville. A prize chorus is a thing to be proud of in one sense of the word, but the experience of Scranton shows that to win a prize is about the worst thing that can happen to a lot of musicians. Before the world's fair, the "Electric City" was noted as the headquarters for gigantic musical enterprises in which magnificient chorus work was a prominent feature. Since winning the $5,000 prize, however, there has apparently been no concerted action on part of the mass of vocalists of Scranton to keep up the interest in chorus singing. Occasionally a small party will rehearse for a few nights and visit some neighboring town and enter into a competition, but since the triumph at Chicago the interest in Scranton that was taken in vocal music in former times has been smothered.

Chamber concert dates: Dec. 16, Jan. 20, Feb. 17, and March 17.

This morning, at 9 o'clock, the diagram for Tuesday's grand symphony concert opens. A glance at the programme, printed in yesterday's issue of this paper, shows that the orchestra as well as the solists will give a number of the most charming numbers ever rendered by this society. The concert on next Tuesday at the Lyceum is the first of the two concerts to be given by the Symphony society. All lovers of dance music, especially, will be delighted. Not alone is the dance character held in the "Dance of the Dead," but in the Gothic symphony is also heard some dance music.

Mr. Reeve Jones gave a pupils' recital yesterday afternoon for Miss Anna Bone, the talented young daughter of Mr. Bone, of the Dickson Manufacturing company. Miss Bone played with excellent effect a Beethoven sonata, the Chopin Nocturne, a waltz and duetto by Mendelssohn and the Chord Divine by Bendel. She received many congratulations for her work. Miss Freeman assisted in the programme by several vocal numbers, sang beautifully, of course.

The Sunday Game.

Fond Mother—"Oh! Peter, Peter, I thought I told you not to play with your soldiers on Sunday."

Peter—"But I call them the Salvation Army on Sunday."—Tit-Bits.

Annoying.

Mollicent—"Aren't bicycle lamps annoying?"

Miriam (vexatiously)—"Yes, mine goes out every time I run into anybody!"—Puck.

THE WHALE AND THE CREED.

Religious fights I always did bewail,
'Tis something that I never take a start in,
I hate to see good people rant and rail
Of things on which no one should feel too "sartin;"
So this dispute 'twixt Jonah and the whale
It's hard to see how one can take much heart in,
And get his feelings all torn up and nettled
About a thing that never can be settled,

I have friend as old as he can be,
His legs are wabbly and his head is hoary,
Who in a thousand ways has shown to me
A faith implicit in the Jonah story:
His old wife with him scarcely can agree,
She says it is an ancient allegory,
And he, in peace, permits his wife to doubt it.
Though years ago they quarrelled some about it.

The Bible is a book that I adore
For precepts found within its pages;
Ofte when I'm sad I turn its pages o'er
And read the record of departed sages;
But matters in dispute, alas, no more
My way-worn and distracted mind engages,
Like Jonah and the whale and Noah's landing
And things that tax my feeble understanding.

I read instead what I can understand,
The story of a Father's love, undying,
The promise of another, better land
Beyond this vale of pain and want and sighing,
A mansion in a city great and grand,
The glory of man's highest art outvying,
Where wickedness can come to torture never,
And weary souls can rest in peace forever.

And while I don't bank much on any creed
And doctrines taught by schools ecclesiastic,
I gather comfort from the things I read,
It makes my heart more mellow-like and plastic.
I cannot follow where some teachers lead,
Nor take their theologic potions drastic;
And this is all my creed, awake or sleeping,
The Lord is good, and I am in His keeping.

The Thanksgiving number of the Christian Advocate is one of the best ever published and contains most interesting matter. One of Buckley's radical editorials contains the following:

SHOULD FOOT BALL BE "OUTLAWED?"

"Deaths, distortions, dislocations, disfigurations, fractures, and sprains are some of its fruits. Crushing, stamping, kicking, and many other forms of brutality attend it;—but all athletic games in which many take part and competition is sharp, are liable to similar evils. What a record of injury and death is charged up to bicyling. Football is a very old game; as played by the students of three or more decades since, there were plenty of minor hurts, but few serious accidents. That very young, untrained, overgrown, or feeble men, or those unaccustomed to general exercise, or liable to any constitutional weakness of disease, especially of lungs or heart, should play the game only with children, if at all, is obvious. That the strong and well should be forbidden by civil law to do so, is not necessary. Every college or university should have a medical or competent physical director, and non should be allowed to play football in match games without a permit from him. Intercollegiate games should not be allowed where the method of play is recklessly brutal. Preparatory schools should be more carefully supervised than many of them are.

Those players who kill or maim should be held accountable for manslaughter, assault, or civil damages; but that it should be made a misdemeanor to play football seems to indicate a tendency, not only to paternalism, but to grand-paternalism, in government."

According to the division of the Christian year, the beginning of the year is marked by the first Sunday in Advent, or the fourth Sunday before Christmas. The first half of the church year extends from the Advent season to the Trinity season and includes the festivals of the church, Christmas, New Year, Festival of Epiphany, Lent, Holy Week, Easter, Ascension, Whit Sunday. The second half of the year is the Trinity season, and the Sundays are numbered from Trinity Sunday on. A FAIR EXCHANGE.

One evening as I walked with Flo
Along the lane where lilies grow,
She cried in fear: "What can this mean?
I've lost my heart. O, have you seen
It lying anywhere about?
I only just now found it out.
I've lost it since you came, I know.
You've stolen it! Your eyes say so!"

I said: "Now don't be cross, my dear.
Though I've your heart, yet never fear,
For, since I have no need of two,
I'll give you mine. Will not that do?"
A smile shone in her tearful eyes,
A rainbow over stormy skies.
She answered: "Since I must confess—"
The rest I cannot tell you. Guess!

EDITOR J. B. WRIGHT.

Publisher Gazette Restored to Health by Paine's Celery Compound.

The Haverhill Gazette, now in the front rank of newspapers, stands for the journalistic ability of one man.

John B. Wright impressed his strong personality on the paper from the day that he secured control.

His accurate sense of news and steady judgment of men and events has built up the Haverhill Gazette to its present newspaper leadership of northern Massachusetts.

Editor Wright's long and brilliant work on the Boston Herald, as chief of department of "special writers," has all been utilized in the building up of this successful newspaper. It will surprise no one that getting out a big newspaper, like the Gazette, morning after morning, and year after year, in the heat and smoke of fierce political conflicts, should entail great mental and physical strain.

Incessant work told on Editor Wright; but because he made use at once of Paine's celery compound, he is today fully restored to his old time forceful, vigorous habit of mind and body. He says of this great remedy:

Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 8, '97.

Gentlemen:—It is with great pleasure that I bear testimony to the beneficial results which almost invariably follow the use of that king of all remedies—Paine's celery compound. As a tonic, free from deleterious materials, it has, to my way of thinking, no equal. This remedy is a positive boon to all nerve-wrecked men of business. I unhesitatingly commend it to all persons who are, as I was, thoroughly worn out.

Very truly yours,
JOHN B. WRIGHT.

Paine's celery compound creates a wholesome demand for food, and cures a disordered stomach and costive bowels.

For all ailments and weaknesses that have grown out of defects of nutrition, such as nervousness, loss of strength, thin and pale blood, loss of weight and lowness of spirits, Paine's celery compound is the legitimate and logical cure. It overcomes loss of nervous power and lessened power to digest food, by generously feeding the nerves and regulating their action. It banishes that continual tired feeling by cleansing the blood of clogging impurities, and by stirring the kidneys and other purifying organs to healthful activity.

Paine's celery compound has cured many and many cases of dyspepsia, sleeplessness, disordered liver and stomach trouble that had puzzled physicians, and the outcome of which seemed hopeless.

Many obstinately dyspeptic persons have gotten rid of every distressing symptom by its invigorating help. Grave general defects of nutrition that have shown themselves in a wasted condition, weakness and loss of strength have repeatedly yielded to this remarkable remedy.

The worn face, that attests loss of sleep, soon loses its haggard appearance as the nervous system gets nourished by Paine's celery compound; the accumulation of aches and pains vanish, the blood grows ruddy and abundant, and the mind shares in the well-being felt all over the body. Paine's celery compound should be taken by every person "run down" or nervous.

OLD-TIME COURTESY.

Of the Sort Which Was Found in Oregon When She Was Young and Unfettered.

From the Pendleton East Oregonian.

There wasn't any particular excitement over the hanging of the man pointed out and arrested at Big Bend as the chap who stole a pack mule from Col. White's camp, over on Fish river. One of White's men, who was over after bacon, hanpened to meet the stranger, and he went to Redfern, president of the vigilance committee, and said:

"Jim, is it a good day for a hanging?"

"Wall, tolerably fa'r," replied Jim.

"The kuss who stole our pack mewl is down in the tin front saloon."

"I see. And you want him hung?"

"I don't keer no great shakes about it myself, but I reckon the Kurnel would be pleased."

"I'm willing to obleege Col. White, as he's a good friend of mine; but do you think the critter down thar has any objecshuns to bein' hung?"

"He don't look like a man who'd kick about it. 'Pears more like a critter who'd be glad to be off the airth."

"Wall, we'll take chances on him," said Jim, and he went to his shanty and got a rope and asked eight or ten of the boys to go along. When the crowd reached the tin front saloon, the stranger was just coming out.

"Say, we want you," said Redfern.

"What fur?"

"Goin' to hang you."

"'Cause why?"

"Fur stealin' Kurnel Whites' pack mewl."

"Wall, fire away."

He was escorted to a tree whereon a dozen more men had been duly hanged, and, lifted up on an empty whisky barrel, the noose was soon placed over his neck.

"Want to say anything?" asked Jim as all was ready.

"Nothin' 'tall."

"Then let 'er go."

An hour later, White's man, who had started for home, returned to hunt up Mr. Redfern and say,

"Look-a-yere' Jim, that feller didn't steal our mewl."

"No?"

"No. They got the feller and the mewl out at Clay City, and hung him this mornin'. I thought this was the feller, but I must hev bin mistook."

"I see. Wall, he's bin hung and burled, and we can't help him any now. We'll jest let the next one off, to even up things. My compliments to the Kurnel, and tell him I shall always stand ready to obleege him."

IMITATION OYSTERS.

Artificial Bivalves Being Produced in Paris Resturants.

"The most singular thing I saw while in Paris," said a gentleman who has just returned from Europe, to a Washington Star reporter, "was artificial oysters. I don't mean what are called mock oysters—that is, meat done up in a patty or a potpie—but the real bivalve intended to serve raw. And as far
