From the New York Sun When one comes to discuss rifles, range and the average distance at which game is shot, one is likely to strike contradictory opinions. A prominent hunter, in speaking recently of the great effectiveness of the American iffe, said that in his experience elk. moose, bears and white-tailed deer were apt to be discovered within this istance, not because of any lack of carrying power in the rifle. When this datement is contrasted with the prosctus of the latest rifle, which has a first sight of 250 yards, a flat trajectory and a maximum range of 2.200 yards. that is the average hunter to think? Of one thing there is no room for loubt, and that is that this year many ople are preparing to go to the woods Mich. deer shooting, and will take with them the new rifle. Its wonderful range and penetration are due to the new smoke ess powder employed in conjunction with a bullet sheathed in copper so as o present a harder surface to the rifling than lead. This projectile is forced through a baired from 20 to 24 inches long, the ritting of which has about me turn to every eight inches. The great objection raised by experience hunters to such an arm as this is that with the long range one never knows where the bullet is likely to bring up once it has left the gun. A few years ago a hunter fired at door at a distance of 183 yards as measured after death

If such a thing is possible with an ordinary rifle sighted to 100. 150, 300 and 500 yards, what would be the possible result with the copper sheathed bullet, low trajectory, and 2 200-yard range in a wooded district? In still another case a well-known hunting writer from the West, now residing in New York, chanced upon a monse feeding about 200 yards away and, with the idea of taking the second shot himself, told his convention, an iny chance of failure from breakdown amateur, to try the first shot.
