

Our Locomotives Lead the World.

One Avenue in Industrial Activity in Which Americans Clearly Are Unequaled

R. Newbury, in Times-Herald.

There is a direction in which there has been a startling, almost a triumphant, development of American trade during the last two years, and of which the public has as yet heard practically nothing. It has been in the building of locomotives for foreign countries.

To accomplish his purpose man has put together some 8,500 parts and has called the whole a locomotive. It is claimed that the first American-built locomotive to be put into actual service was the "Best Friend," constructed by E. L. Miller for the South Carolina Railroad company in 1829.

Our engines everywhere. Exclusive of the United States on the western continent, American engines are now taking the place of the iron horse of commerce in Mexico, Brazil, Colombia, Peru, Chile, Ecuador, Bolivia, Uruguay, Argentine Republic and Canada.

There is no room for play of a poetic imagination in the picture of an American-built locomotive awakening the echoes of the holy land; but more picturesque still have been the incidents connected with the building of American engines in Russia.

Locomotives for the czar. Even as it was, Russia had a narrow margin of being short of engines to haul the crowds. It was not until Jan. 29 in January of last year that the imperial government discovered that they had not locomotives enough to handle the throngs that would be coming to Moscow in April.

Extension of trade. The Brooklyn Locomotive Works of Dunelm is now at work on an order for forty engines for Japan and Russia, which are to be delivered this coming December and January.

In the Cuban war. Baldwin locomotives are used in the Spanish service in Cuba. The locomotive is armored and especially built with steel shutters to the cab, etc., to withstand attack.

The business which American locomotive builders have done in foreign countries during the last two or three years of hard times has, of course, been of considerable assistance to them. The first locomotive of great help to the United States in furnishing labor at a period when domestic business was almost dead.

Introduced into Japan. From a purely technical point of view, in the eyes of railway men and locomotive builders the most interesting engines which have been built in this country for foreign use are probably those which have been exported to China and Japan.

supply this demand, and the superior methods of the American manufacturer enabling him to build a larger number of locomotives in a given time, also enabled him to compete successfully with those of other countries.

IT IS VERY DURABLE. and looks almost as light and airy as chiffon. The shirring is done by machinery, and one side gives the effect of flounces as the other side spaces are not shirred.

FINEST RAILWAY IN THE WORLD. The American public has many grievances against its railroads, but in many particulars the American railway is unquestionably the finest in the world.

Another beautiful fabric. It is beaded white chiffon, for fronts or costumes, and the variety of colors combined and the beauty of tiny white satin or velvet leaves edged by colored beads, bring up the price of the finest quality to $25.

Middle-aged or elderly ladies. take refuge in plain or velvet or brocades, and although skirts are plain, waists are fringed and trimmed with spangled passementerie and lace.

New York fashions. Evening Dresses, Lace and Net Costumes, Liberty Silk, Beaded Chiffon, Handkerchiefs, Roman Sashes, Gloves, Ties.

A very important accessory. is the Roman sash or tie; the latter in subdued colors contrasts charmingly on a street jacket, in a large hat bow at the front, or wrapped around the throat.

Another net dress. is of turquoise blue net dotted with blue chenille, and the white satin under-dress is of such fine quality and so elaborately trimmed with very narrow blue satin ribbon runs, put on in fancy designs, that it is practically two dresses in one.

Sunday School Lesson for December 5. Christ's Humility and Exaltation. Phil. II, 1-11.

By J. E. Gilbert, D. D., LL. D. Secretary of American Society of Religious Education. INTRODUCTION.—The Apostle Paul experienced the utmost concern for the people who had been brought to Christ by his ministry.

Selfishness.—How shall this spirit of vain glory be suppressed, and this spirit of humility be made to take its place? Looking more deeply into the heart for help, he found the apostle's answer: "Let every man love his neighbor as himself."

Humility.—This is the secret of the Christian's power. It is the secret of his victory over the world, the flesh, and the devil. It is the secret of his peace and joy in the midst of the most trying circumstances.

LANGUAGE OF THREE STARS. They told a lot to the Postoffice Officials. Form the Chicago Record.

One of the United States Post-office inspectors assigned to duty on Western star routes tells an interesting story explaining why postal routes, supplied by couriers on horseback or on stage, came to be designated "star routes."

Years ago three words found place on the records of the Post-office. They were "Certainty," "Celerity" and "Security." Up to 1845 no contract for carrying the mail was let unless the bidder made known the manner in which he proposed to carry it.

After a broth has been carefully skimmed and all the atoms of grease appear over the surface, lay a piece of clean brown paper over the top and the brown will cling to it.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS. When small pieces of pie crust are left from making pie, instead of forming them into tarts as is usually done, secure some round hardwood sticks about four inches long, and after the pieces of crust are rolled out, cut them into narrow strips, with a jagged end, flour the sticks and put the strips around them, letting one edge overlap the other. Place these on a tin and put in a hot oven to bake.

L A CONCLUSION.—The apostle made such a sudden transition from the practical and perceptive part of the lesson to the theoretical and speculative part of it that one is in danger of losing the drift of his thought. He desired brotherly love in the Philippian church and in order to that urged humility. Assuming that some would be slow to accept his advice, he shows that the humility of Jesus, as the governing quality of his character, and that he portrays the future exaltation that will result from His humiliation. The argument is complete and irresistible. See the man of Galilee, going about doing good, with no home or honor (Matt. xli, 20), blessing all whom He met. See Him now on the metaphorical throne, drawing all men unto Him (John xii, 32). See Him again when the Jews have passed and His work is done (John xii, 32). See Him again when He is in the price to be paid for honor, (Luke xiv, 11). It is the condition of concord among men and angels. (Psalm cxxviii, 2). It is the condition of pure love, that binds hearts in blessed unity. When men behave Christ-like, they live together in peace.
