How the Office Boy Explains it to the Rural Bride and Groom. rom the Fourth Estate.

The rural bride and groom timidly approached the elevator leading up into the building wherein was located a great city daily, and the man asked the elevator boy, "How d'y"?" " 'D evenin'," responded the boy, in manner which made the shrinking bride cling to the arm of her long, green husband.

"We're in town on our weddin' trip, he said, blushingly, "and me kinder." and Mattle thought as we was seein' the sights we oughter to see the newsaper office, too. Our parents has been akin' your weekly for a good many ents.

"That's right," said the elevator boy encouragingly, "the people will be glad you did, but I haven't got time to show ou around. Here's the office boy, though, and he's an expert in that busitess, he is. Afn't you, Snips?" Snips, being appealed to, came out om somewhere he had no business to e, and assumed importance.

"What I don't know about the news aver business, mister," he said, "I uess you won't find around here. It's in hour till midnight, when I go on eatch, and if you make it worth while Ill show you everything. A bargain was struck.

"Now," said the office boy, "follow ie, and when I'm done with you if you lon't say you got more for the money than ever you did before in your life I'll say you don't know punkins when ie leaves is off the vines." This homely reference brought a mile to the bride's cheek, and she followed the boy and her husband down into a cellar with more confidence than she felt at first. "I brought you down here so's you could see the engine," the boy ex-plained, "and then you wouldn't have to come down here any more, for it ain't very clean and purty for the lady." The lady looked her thanks. You see, there's four b'llers.' "Bout the same as sawmill billers, I them around to several machines. "In there," he said, stopping on the way, "is where they stereotype. But you don't care for that. What you want is to let the lady see the press go 'round.' One of the presses was going when they reached the room, and the boy held a council with the pressman. "Sorry," he sail, rejoining his guests but the whole shooting match won't be ready till two or three hours yet: but you can see what this one is at. Now, when the whole thing is goin' she

The voluntary advance of 20 per cent, in wages of Oh, How Thankful worsted workers at Providence, restoring the rates of 1893, is evidence of the prosperity of that manufacture. After much hesitation in other branches which may be justified, this important department of the woolen industry puts itself at the front, virtually declaring its ability to face any foreign competition. The purchases of Australian cool at Heston have again been large, 2.465,000 pounds out of 6,170,000 pounds of all wool at the three chief markets | finally a sore broke out above the knee. against 8,821,300 pounds for the same It discharged a great deal and the pain week last year

Other markets are extremely quiet, and Boston is doing the selling at prices not named. Nothing appears in the cotton manufacture and the low price of cotton still hinders the buying of goods. Lower prices than have ever been known are quoted for print cloths, advised me to try it. I began taking it and also for some grades of prints, and and when I had used a few bottles I the average of cotton goods is remarkably low. The wheat market has deceived everybody, dropping in the face of an enormous foreign demand, just when an advance might reasonably have been anticipated. So the enormous receipts of cotton from plantations, exceeding those to date of the great crop of about ten million bales in 1894, tend to check all speculation. although both foreign and domestic
