THE PASSING OF THE INDIAN. Dr. Dixon's Lecture at Penn Avenue Baptist Church. These slides have been colored in natural tints, and together with the description of the lecturer will represent to the audience the wild scenes of frontier life, the early settlement of this country, the savage traits of the Red man, his massacres, his sports, his wars, his home, the prairies, the mountains, the desert—his manner of life, his hunting expeditions, his pathway leading toward the setting sun. It will be in short, "The Story of the Indian." The only lecture on this subject (illustrated) which is of such continued and absorbing interest to the whole country.

CHARLES VETTERNER KILLED.

Deliberately Walked Onto a Crossing Before an Approaching Train. Charles Vetterner was run down by a Delaware and Hudson engine yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock, while attempting to cross the tracks near the Marvyn breaker on North Main avenue. His body was terribly mangled and his death must have been instantaneous.

The engine was in charge of Engineer Joseph Blanchard, and was coming out of the Leggett's creek branch at the time of the accident. From the story told by an eye witness, it appears that Vetterner was strongly under the influence of drink and his attention was occupied by the passing of a North Main avenue car.

The bell of the locomotive was ringing loudly at the time, but despite this warning he deliberately walked to his doom before the awe-stricken spectators could apprehend his course. He was dragged about one hundred yards before the engine was brought to a standstill. His remains when picked up were minus a leg and an arm and his clothing was torn completely off his body. The features were so badly mutilated that they were unrecognizable.

Coroner Longstreet was notified of the accident and he ordered Undertaker Jones to prepare the body for burial. The unfortunate man boarded with a family on Charles street. This is the second accident within the short space of three months at the same crossing. Some time ago Mrs. Gallagher and her sister of Dickson City miraculously escaped death while out driving, the carriage being struck and hurled up the embankment on the north side of the track. Both women escaped with slight injuries.

SCHADT WILL NOT HOLD OVER.

Gist of the Law Governing Succession in County Offices. There was some talk about town yesterday to the effect that the incumbent county treasurer holds over during the pendency of an election contest for that office.

For the sake of those who might be misled by the street talk, it would be well to state that there is no foundation whatever for the rumor.

Every man who on the face of the official returns is elected takes his office notwithstanding a contest. Before 1888 this was not the case with officers commissioned by the governor, such as prothonotary, sheriff, clerk of the courts, etc. They could not qualify until they received their commissions and the commissions could not issue under act of assembly if a contest for the office was regularly instituted. The act of 1888, presented by Hon. John P. Kelly in the house and fostered in the senate by Hon. M. E. McDonald, changed all this, and now the governor is authorized and directed to commission the man elected on the face of the returns. The general law affecting succession in the treasurer's office simply says: "Shall hold office until his successor is duly qualified." To qualify a treasurer-elect simply secures a certificate of election from the prothonotary, upon the receipt of which the county commissioner must issue to him a commission; he files his bond, takes the prescribed oath and on the first Monday of January, following his election, takes possession of the office.

FOR THE GREEN RIDGE LIBRARY.

Bazaar Will Be Held on the Evening of Dec. 10.

The ladies of the advisory board of directors of the Green Ridge library will hold a fair for the sale of fancy articles, fine groceries, fruit, flowers and confectionery together with attractive toys and books for the children on the afternoon and evening of Dec. 10 in the library building on Green Hill street. The proceeds of the fair will be used in defraying the current expenses of the library, and it is earnestly hoped that its friends and well wishers will visit the fair, where they will find many pretty and suitable things for the Christmas season. These things will be offered at prices corresponding to those of our tradespeople, and not at "fair" prices. There will also be other things of interest which will go far to make an hour spent in the bazaar one of pleasure to the visitor as well as of profit to the institution.

FUNERAL OF A YOUNG WOMAN.

Miss Ella Walsh Laid at Rest in Hyde Park Catholic Cemetery.

There was a large attendance yesterday morning at the funeral of Miss Ella Walsh, from the home of her mother on No. 1005 E. 1st street. A high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. D. J. MacGouldrick who also referred in a beautiful way to the Christian character of the deceased. The remains were followed to Hyde Park Catholic cemetery where interment was made by a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends. The pallbearers were: John Clark, Daniel Connell, Robert McLean, Michael Mangin, Michael Callahan and James V. Gavigan. The flower bearers were: Thomas Mullarkey, John Honan, John Ruddy and Owen Ferguson.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. DUHR.

It Was Supposed Death Was Not Due to Natural Causes.

THE CORONER IS INVESTIGATING.

He Held an Autopsy at the Duhr Residence in Lackawanna Last Night and Found That Death Was Due to an Aneurietic Heart.—The Coroner's Jury Will Meet Next Friday Night to Hear Testimony Concerning the Case.

Frederick Duhr, an aged man, ran through the rough streets of a desolate part of Lackawanna, Thursday night, announcing that his wife was dying. He knocked at several houses, but was turned away with angry imprecations on his head for his disturbances.

The people thought him crazy. In the morning the whole settlement was abuzz with the truth of the old man's claim. The woman was dead. Then followed a natural theory—that she had died from unnatural causes. The neighbors remembered that only two weeks before old man Duhr had tried to hang himself. He had rushed out on the street in the early evening and called loudly for assistance. When she returned to the house Frederick Duhr was alive. He treated her badly for the scene she made on the street.

When Mrs. Duhr died so suddenly the supposition was that Frederick Duhr had killed her. Accordingly, word reached Coroner S. P. Longstreet and an inquest was begun last evening. The jury will meet next Friday night to pronounce a verdict.

Coroner Longstreet, Dr. Adam Stegner, a Tribune reporter and the members of the jury reached the Duhr house after dark last evening. The structure is one-story high and about ten by fifteen feet in dimensions, blackened by the coal dust from the Old Forge breaker, across the Lackawanna river. It is altogether an uninviting place. The Lackawanna station of the Bloomsburg division, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company, is nearby. The house was entered through a small shanty posted to the rear. It was here that old man Duhr attempted suicide two weeks before.

WAS FRYING MEAT. Duhr was found lying meat over a fire. There was no lamp-light in the room. Neither was there any other person than Duhr, except the corpse in an apartment to the left. There are no children. Duhr is a German and speaks English imperfectly. He showed the coroner the room when asked to tell of the death, he said: "I sleep in that room there"—indicating the other side of a board partition—"about 11 o'clock Thursday night I heard my woman groan three times." He struck the sound. "I knocked on the wall and said, 'What's the matter, you?' She did not answer. I say once more, and she was quiet. I sick myself, but I got up and go to her room. I rub her; she was getting cold. I take a brush and rub her feet. It was no use, and I went out to Tom Robinson's. "I was not dressed, I knock at the door. Tom Robinson look out of window and say, 'Who's there?' I said, 'It's me, Tom, my neighbor.' Duhr: my woman is dead; won't you come and help your neighbor?" The scene in the room, dimly lighted now by a dirty, smoky lamp, as the old man told of his plea for help in the cold night and he but a few days before, was affecting. The corpse of the woman was uncolored and as the man spoke and gesticulated, he sometimes touched the body, so small was the space in the room. He continued: "I went to Sullivan's and knocked on the door. Sullivan came to the window and says: 'Who's there?' I says: 'It's me, Sullivan, your neighbor, Fred Duhr; my woman is dead; won't you come and help your neighbor?' I went next to the 'squire's and to other places and then back to the house and neighbor Sullivan was there and his wife. My woman was dead. I went to the undertaker's and he came. That's all I know, Mr. Coroner; that's all I know."

THE SUNDAY NEWS.

Tomorrow's Issue the Greatest Paper Ever Printed in This Town.

A corking article on the W. L. Jones divorce case, in which all Green Ridge is interested. The real cause of the election contests. What Langstaff's contest means. A splendid article on the Scranton Elks, with a copy of Archie Boyd's poem, dedicated to F. J. Fitzsimmons. The evils of crowded tenements. A Hyde Park house where the family and boarders are huddled in one room. How Larry Keirick beat a question which will be determined by the committee. The alumni officers are: George G. Brooks, president; Russell Dimmick, secretary; E. J. Platt, vice president, and L. E. Grambs, treasurer.

WELL AS A FISH.

"Was she sick any time recently?" asked Coroner Longstreet. "No, no she was so well as a fish," was Duhr's quaint way of saying it. Duhr left the room where the corpse was and took a chair in the larger apartment, where the case was first found. The meat had been allowed to burn on the stove, and that was being used in the room where the autopsy was being performed. So Duhr sat in the dark, silent.

As he sat there he was questioned by the reporter. He cited as a coincidence that his wife's mother had died suddenly from heart trouble. His wife's age was 57 years; his was 58 years. They never had any children. He had not heard what the neighbors were saying about him. All he knew was what he told to the coroner.

Mrs. George Taylor, whose residence is near by, was seen. She said that Duhr beat his wife most shamefully. He drank a good deal and has not worked for a long time. He was a miner in the Jersey No. 2 mine. "I often used to see him in the garden beating his wife. No body would dare go to help her. When he was hanging himself in the shanty two weeks ago, said Mrs. Taylor, the woman came out on the street crying for some one to cut him down. She said she was going in the house when she saw him hanging by a rope from the roof. She wanted me and Mrs. Richardson to go in and cut him down, but we were afraid. When they took him back to the house he had got loose and was walking around."

MRS. RAYNOR IS A TRUE PATRIOT.

Would Not Have Her Child Born Beneath a Foreign Sky.

MADE A LONG, WEARY JOURNEY.

She Left Her Home in Johannesburg, South Africa, Two Months Ago. Yesterday She Gave to the World a Little Baby Girl at Dr. S. P. Longstreet's Private Hospital.—It is a Strong and Healthy Mite.

A baby born in this city in the hour of yesterday morning is a child of patriotism. It will someday grow up and know the story of the love of a mother for her native land; a love which sometimes let a foreign sky beam on her baby's birth in order to cross the sea that the sacred soil of the stars and stripes might be placed upon her child.

The husband of the mother is William Raynor, formerly a resident of this city, but now engaged in prospecting in Johannesburg, the renowned city of the Transvaal in South Africa. Two months ago Mrs. Raynor and her husband decided that she should come to America and to Scranton, their old home.

It was a great risk and sacrifice, but Mrs. Raynor crossed the seas and came here, her husband surrendering the right of his presence at the birth of their first born.

The baby came—was born at Dr. S. P. Longstreet's private hospital—and is a healthy little mortal. Although—it was fate's decree—the baby is a girl the soldier of the country will be richer in the generations to follow. It is hoped, by the blood of the patriot mother.

FIREMEN'S RELIEF ASSOCIATION.

At a Meeting Next Week a Permanent Organization Will Be Formed.

Next week there will be a meeting of the Firemen's Relief association in the City hall at which a permanent organization will be effected. The city treasurer has received from the state $2,220, this city's share of the fund collected from foreign insurance companies doing business in Pennsylvania. The relief organization consists of two members from each fire company of the city, the mayor, city treasurer, city controller and chief of the fire department. Bills of insurance who become sick or disabled while in service will be passed upon by this organization and if approved will go to the auditing committee in the same manner as other accounts against the city. After being approved they will be paid out of the foreign insurance fund.
