THE SCRANTON TRIBUNE-SATURDAY MORNING. DECEMBER 18, 1897.

SEWER IS COMPLETED.

South Garfield Avenue Improvement Has Caused Much Trouble.

The repairs to or rebuilding of the South Garfield avenue sewer main was practically completed yesterday by a force of street employes under Assistant Foreman Joseph Boniel. The section of sewer which required the work extends from the middle of the block between Jackson and Washburn streets and empties into the Washburn street main sewer, and the alterations consist of the laying of an eighteen-inch pipe, instead of a twelve-inch; grading the pipes about nine inches to the hundred feet, where, before, practically no pitch existed, and the construction a sewer basin midway between in the block.

The total cost will reach $1,500, though but little more than half that amount was originally appropriated. to the final completion yesterday.

Always abreast with the liter-ature and the questions of the day, Mrs. Leighton was a bright entertainer, and the visitor lover to linger under the spell alike of her discourse and social chaim. She divined the mooils of all who came. The dull and despondent never left ner uncomforted, nor the triffer without an uplifting thought, "Her worst she kept, her best she gave."

After so many years of this strong life it was difficult for Mrs. Leighton to ad-mit that time was sapping her endurance. She repelled the suspicion, indignantly, almost. Those who loved her felt that the days were come for the arm chair, for peace and rest. Her children longed to surround her with case and observto surround her with ease and observ-ance.
