MONTHLY STATISTICS.

The Mortnary Rate For December Was Low .- Other Facts.

The local board of health has recorded thirty-two deaths for the month of December but of this number only twenty-eight can be accredited as Carbondale residents. One of these died at the poor farm, one at Scranton and one at Danville. The remains of residents of Scranton, Mayfield and Farview were brought here for interment, and one body remained in this city over night, which was enroute from Cincinnati to Honesdale. Fifteen bodies were laid to rest in St. Rose cemetery, nine in Manlewood and one in Brookside. One was taken to Prompton, one to Jermyn and another to Clinton Center for interment.

Following are the causes of death: Accidents, 3; bronchitis, 2; unknown, 2; pneumonia, 2; mine accident, valvuiar disease. membranous diphtheria, ureamia, puerperal fever, grip, gastritis, Bright's disease, burns, cerebro spinal-meningitis, cancer, premature birth, tuberculosis, convulsions, heart paralysis, acute mania, alcohol-1sm, one each. An unusually large number of ladies who had passed life's meridian were called away during the month.

POLICE RECORD.

Fourteen men were arrested by the city patrolman during December. Six were plain drunks and fourteen added to their offence by being disorderly. Six were fined, the aggregate amounting to $26, two were committed and the others got off with reprimands. But two of the men have wives, three are widowers and the rest live in single blessedness. Ten of the fourteen could read. Seven were laborers, five miners, one a blacksmith and one a farm hand. oldest was seventy-eight years of age, the youngest twenty-one. The only non-resident was a Greenfielder.

An Agreeable Story of a Case of Very Sensitive Conscience.

rom the Cleveland Plain-Dealer Forty years ago a certain Cleveland amily lived on Huron street, close to the corner of Miami. Horon street was a leading thoroughfare then, and a umber of prominent Clevelanders re sided in the neighborhood. The lady of the house was a young bride, and he and her husband had arrived in Sleveland quite recently. On Miami street lived a family in very moderate circumstances, and among the numer us children that filled the tiny house va a boy called Johnny. He was a right, manly little fellow of perhaps years, and the Huron street bride ook quite a fancy to him. He would ome to her home every day and do her simple errands, and she always had omething nice to give him. One day was playing in front of the bride's home with some other boys, when he chanced to throw a stone that missed its mark and crashed through a parlor The bride happened to see the accident, and as the little fellow The funeral of Mrs. Nettie Griffiths looked up and saw her an azonized expression clouded his face and he turned and took to his heels. THE EAGLES OF TENNESSEE.

In a Single Night and Day a Fullgrown Eagle Can Fly 1000 Miles.

no the New York Evening Post, Eagles are not often seen near their nests together, but when the sun is shining they frequently take their malestic flight straight toward it until they disappear from sight. Sitting upon the mountain side their vision is so keen that they can see far down in the valley a sheep or young goat, a hig turkey or rooster, a small pig, a rabbit, or partridge, and almost instantaneously they descend upon their victim. Often, when a large calf or goat is to be attacked and carried off, four or six of the great birds will unite and remove the carcass to a safe spot, when they will immediately begin to fight it out to see which of them is entitled to the choicest bits, and it is truly a survival of the fittest in such combats as these. But an eagle is always confident of his strength, and rarely overreaches himself in such conflicts or in his desire for prey, lingering by the mountain rivers, watching for ducks or geese, or even fish, a pair of eagles will display their natural shrewdness. They swoop from opposite directions upon the fowl. which tries to escape by diving, and could outwit one eagle, but suddenly, as the bird comes to the surface of the water, the second eagle seizes him.

With its wonderful power of sight, covering a radius of miles, the cagle combines a swiftness of flight marvelous. In a single night and day a full-grown eagle can fly 1,000 miles Oftentimes the visitor in the Tennesco nountains can just see him like a little speck in the sky, moving restlessly and capidly in majestic circles about the crest of a far-away-peak. The sightseers and mountaineers who love to watch eagles always choose the break of dawn or a calm sunset. Then they are to be seen wheeling in circles and gliding about in herizontal sweeps, ust before starting out on a day's hunt or settling for the night.
