OBSERVANCE OF THE DAY.

There Were a Number of Small Quiet Celebrations.

The observance of the first day of 1895 was ordinary so far as West Scranton residents were concerned. There were less parties, receptions, dances, etc., than in former similar periods, It seemed as if each family had a home affair. However, the few outside er public affairs were fairly well at-

The members of the Sabbath school of the Scranton street Bantist church repeated the Christmas contain, "The Counterfeit Santa" and a happy evening was spent. Every person who dined or lunched at the Washburn street Presbyterian church Saturday were well satisfied with the menu in both cases. The affair was in charge of the ladies and nothing was lacking which would tend to please. The several rooms in which the refreshments were served were artistically and appropriately decorated. A handsome sum was realized.

directors and matron, Miss Smith, of the West Side hospital, were kept busy all day Saturday receiving both visitors and donations. They were satisfied having invited the work by announcing that the day had been designated as the annual denation day of the Institution. The donations were placed in a separate room and the visiters were escorted throughout the hospital and shown its working capacity. Assistant Nurses Misrcs Kennedy and Fewderly, and Janitor Perbert Evans, assisted in this pleasant task. Many exclamations of surprise and resultant encomiums of praise were heard from those who went through. So liberal were the responses to the announcetoent of the directors that the directors and staff of the hospital are in-

The thorn in the side of regularly licensed hotels classically known as 'spank-casies" must go. At least, this is the edict issued by Constable Timothy Jones, of the Fifth ward, and Constable John Davies, of the Fourth ward. This same reform, or good in tentioned movement has happened ofttimes before, but, judging from the activity displayed by the above mentioned constables, much will be accomplished in this instance.

The first to fall into Constable Jones' reform net were John and Theresa Dudki, who kept a place at 1614 Luzerne street. They gave ball in the sum of $500 before Alderman John Wednesday evening. The defendants asserted that someone told them a United States revenue license was enough. They will quit the business henceforth, they say.

The next morning John Brown came before Alderman John, waived a hearing and entered ball in the sum of $500 for his appearance at court. Selling Pocono. without license and to minors was his Mrs. offense. This is the same Brown Into whose place Stephen and John Renp. Friday evening Alderman John had three cases before him on the charge of selling without license and to minors, and in each instance bail in the sum of $500 was entered for their appearance at court. These three were rounded up by Constable Davies, of the ward. John Selss, corner of Price street and Filmore avenue; John Brown, a Polander, residing at Price street, and James Gethings, corner of Lafayette street and Everett avenue, are the three.

not suffering from actual disability. Some of the ablest men in the organization are opposed to pensions altogether, except in cases of total disability, and they have never hesitated to speak their minds openly. "Whether there is fraud or not I do not know. Statements and figures to which my attention has been drawn seem so startling as to be almost in credible. I cannot except the statement that there are 40,745 more 'survivors' and 'widows' drawing pensions than there are actual survivors and widows of the war. I propose finding out the actual condition of affairs, not for my own satisfaction, but for the benefit of the organization. If my investigation shows that there is anything like the 'padding' in the pension rell that is claimed, I shall lay the matter before the executive committee and the organization will take emphatie action. If there is a single person on the pension roll whose name does not belong there the Grand Army of the Republic wants it stricken off. "The number of survivors should be

If the publication will do any good, if it will result in the detection of the unworthy, and the striking off of their names from the roll and the punishment of the guilty, I believe that the Grand Army will advocate the publication. I will go so fas as to say that the Grand Army of the Republic will favor stricter laws if it is shown that the frauds are such as have been claimed.
